Supreme Court's religion-work ruling scored by solon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress soon will be asked to wipe out the effects of a Supreme Court ruling that says workers have no legal right to take a day off for religious reasons.

"The Supreme Court decision is wrong," Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said Thursday after hearing the high court's ruling. "I shall renew my legislative efforts in this issue."

It was Randolph who in 1972 pushed legislation through Congress making it clear that under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 employers would have to accommodate religious employes whenever possible.

But the Supreme Court, in a 7-2 decision Thursday, ruled that employers are not requird to give an employe certain days off because of religious beliefs if a seniority system bars such accommodation or if such action would amount to preferential treatment.

"In the absence of clear statutory language or legislative history to the contrary, we will not readily construe the statute to require an employer to discriminate against some employes in order to enable others to observe their sabbath," Justice Byron White said in the majority opinion.

The ruling is a major legal defeat for millions whose religions dictate that they not work on particular days of the week. It carries impact for Orthodox Jews, Seventh-Day Adventists, Seventh-Day Baptists and members of the Worldwide Church of God.

Randolph, a Seventh-Day Baptist, indicated he would seek a new law that could not be misinterpreted by the court.

"Our great tradition of religious freedom and our nation's accommodation of religious diversity has been severely damaged," he said in referring to the high court's action.

The court's two dissenters used even stronger language.

"All Americans will be a little poorer until today's decision is erased," said Justices Thurgood Marhsall and William Brennan. "The ultimate tragedy is that, despite Congress's best efforts, one of this nation's pillars of strength — our hospitality to religious diversity — has been seriously eroded."

The case decided by the court involved a Trans World Airlines worker, Larry Hardison, who was fired in 1969 for refusing to work from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday, observed as the sabbath by the Worldwide Church of God.

Hardison sued TWA and his union, the International Association of Machinists, charging religious discrimination. He won in the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, but TWA and the union appealed, arguing that the 1964 Civil Rights Law and its 1972 amendment violate the Constitution's ban on government entanglement in religion.

The Justice Department urged the high court to rule for Hardison, saying TWA did not do enough to accommodate him.

But White wrote that TWA had met its legal obligation and that anything more it could have done would have imposed undue hardship.

The court did not rule on the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Act or the amendment.

Test flight of space shuttle delayed

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A computer failure today forced a 24-hour postponement in the first manned test flight of the Space Shuttle Enterprise, the spaceship designed as the workhorse of the American space program for the rest of the century.

The malfunction was in one of the four computers that control the complex manuevering gear scheduled for testing aboard the shuttle, officials said.

The flight was rescheduled for 8 a.m. on Saturday.

The piggyback flight atop a Boeing 747 jumbo jet will be the first in a series of four dress rehearsals for the crucial day when the 150,000-pound shuttle will be cut loose from the mother plane to fly on its own.

Fred Haise Jr., the spacecraft commander, and pilot Gordon Fullerton were assigned to man the airliner-sized ship, with its control, electrical, hydraulic, coolant and other systems activated for the first time.

Wearing low-altitude flight suits, they were to climb into the roomy cabin of the craft about two hours before takeoff. With the shuttle perched on the Boeing's back, the two crewmen sit more than 50 feet above the runway.

Plans called for the shuttle and its carrier to reach an altitude of no more than 15,000 feet, but the Mission Control Center in Houston, Tex., was put into action to issue directions as though it were an actual space flight.

The Houston center, which ran America's moon and other manned space flights, was to receive data from instruments aboard the shuttle and the mother ship that would tell engineers how the shuttle's flying gear performed.

Haise, 42, is the only space flight veteran among the four crewmen selected for the shuttle approach and landing tests, of which the current flights are Phase Two. He was aboard the ill-fated Apollo 13 ship that had a power failure en route to the moon and limped safely back to Earth in 1970.

Fullerton, 39, has been in the astronaut program since 1969, and was a member of the support crews for Apollo 14 and 17.

Phase One of the tests was carried out in February and March with the unoccupied shuttle not yet wired with its active systems. The flights established so efficiently that the piggyback arrangement was safe and stable that the last flight was canceled.

The shuttle's free flights, or "drop tests," once planned for late July, are now scheduled for mid-August. They are designed to prove gliding ability of the shuttle, which with its massive body and thick wings looks anything but air-worthy.

Rocket pioneer von Braun dies of cancer at age 65

Ex-German guiding force behind U.S. space, moon shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Wernher von Braun, the German-born rocket pioneer whose talents helped the United States put men on the moon, died Thursday after a long bout with cancer. He was 65.

Von Braun had been in poor health for some time. He underwent surgery in 1975 for removal of a malignant liver tumor and had maintained a sharply curtailed schedule since that time. He died at Alexandria Hospital in suburban Virginia.

Last year, he had a recurrence of cancer, coupled with an infection that developed following surgery. He spent long stretches in the hospital, including a final stay beginning last October.

Even while hospitalized he continued limited work on his job as vice president of engineering and development for Fairchild Industries. He joined Fairchild in 1972, and worked mainly on space projects until he retired last Jan. 1.

Von Braun spent much of his time in the hospital reading, visiting with family and friends and selecting papers for a permanent collection that will be exhibited at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

Once bitterly hated by the free world, von Braun became its top rocket expert after he and 129 other German rocket experts surrendered to the United States shortly before the end of World War II.

The man who once helped design the dreaded V2 rocket for Adolf Hitler designed the U.S. Army's Jupiter C rocket that allowed his new country to recoup some of the prestige lost when Russia launched the first space satellite in 1957.

Von Braun told President Dwight D. Eisenhower well before the Russian Sputnik launching that his team had the capability of putting a satellite into orbit around the earth. But Eisenhower wanted to use a rocket developed for nonmilitary uses for the first effort to emphasize the peaceful uses of space and von Braun was turned down.

Sputnik and the subsequent failure of the Vanguard rocket, America's much publicized first attempt to rocket a satellite into space, forced Eisenhower to turn to von Braun.

On Jan. 31, 1958, the Jupiter C lifted off, carrying a 30-pound satellite called Explorer into an elliptical orbit and giving the U.S. program its first success.

Von Braun also was instrumental in designing a longer-range Jupiter rocket, the Saturn 1 booster and the massive 36-story-tall Saturn 5 rocket that powered men beyond the earth's gravity and sent them to a soft landing on the lunar surface.

Von Braun came to the United States in September of 1945 under contract to the U.S. Army. He and his men spent five years at Ft. Bliss, Tex., working on the V2 rocket they had developed in Germany. They were transferred to the Army's Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., in 1950 to develop the Redstone missile, the forerunner of the Jupiter C.

In 1955, von Braun became a U.S. citizen. He and his team, now grown to 4,000 engineers and technicians, were transferred from the Army in 1960 to the newly formed National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He finally left his laboratories in 1970 to come to Washington as NASA's deputy assistant director for planning. Two years later, he resigned his government job to join Fairchild Industries, a private firm that was developing scientific satellites, as a vice president for engineering.

Until his death, he continued to push the government for increased efforts in space. He was instrumental in forming the National Space Institute, a nonprofit organization that promoted the peaceful use of space as a tool to help all mankind. He served as a top officer of that organization.

Ironically, he died one day before the first manned test of the space shuttle, the reuseable rocket ship expected to be the workhorse of the American space program for the next decade or so.

Senate taking firm stand on Korea pullout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressing its own views on foreign affairs, the Senate is unwilling to endorse President Carter's proposal to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea.

Senators also don't want to impose preconditions on talks which could lead to normalized relations with Cuba, and are making it clear they are not prepared to accept any administration proposal for aid or reparations to Vietnam.

The Carter administration has not recommended any such assistance for the communist government in Vietnam.

The Senate made its views known on foreign affairs on Thursday during a 10-hour debate on a $6 billion State Department authorization bill. The measure passed 64-21.

The Senate dropped from the bill a provision recommended by the Foreign Relations Committee endorsing the timing and wisdom of the proposed pullout of ground forces from Korea.

Instead it voted 79-15 that any reduction or withdrawal should be ordered only after a "joint decision by the President and Congress." The provision was written by Majority Leader Robert Byrd.

The vote made it clear that the Senate wants to be consulted on any withdrawal, a concept on which it is still sharply divided.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said the vote was a defeat for the President. Baker and other senators said that withdrawal over four or five years, as Carter is proposing, could tempt North Korea to invade the South and could lead to a possible war involving the United States.

Not going to sit by idly

Nazi march angers Jewish community

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Concentration camp survivor Sol Goldstein says a Supreme Court ruling clearing the way for Nazis to march in a July 4 parade protects the spread of hatred rather than free speech.

"We have 6,000 to 7,000 survivors of the holocaust living in Skokie, and they're not going to sit by idly while Nazis march in the street," Goldstein said Thursday.

"This is not a matter of free speech. This is a matter of protecting somebody's freedom to spread hatred, something we don't need," said Goldstein, who lives in this Chicago suburb and is president of "Remnants of the Holocaust," a group of 16,000 concentration camp survivors.

The National Socialist Party of America plans to have members from across the country gather here on July 4 for the parade and a "white supremacy" rally. Skokie is Chicago's most heavily Jewish suburb.

"The idea that we shouldn't have free speech rights in Skokie because of some holocaust is just Zionist propaganda hogwash," said Frank Collin of Chicago, the national coordinator of the National Socialist Congress.

On Wednesday, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5-4 that Skokie could not permanently bar the Nazi organization from holding a rally in the city after the group appealed a lower court ban of the demonstration. The high court said free-speech rights could not be adequately protected if the Nazi group were barred from demonstrating during a long legal battle.

Despite the high court ruling, Harvey Schwarz, Skokie village attorney, said he expects three recently passed ordinances that bar marches in military uniforms to prevent the Nazis from coming to Skokie.

"This was a major victory for the First Amendment," said David Hamlin, executive director of the Chicago American Civil Liberties Union, which represented the Nazis in court. He said he expected the three ordinances to be declared unconstitutional.

"It showed that no matter how unpopular a cause is — and it was very distasteful to most of us here — the First Amendment still works."

Hamlin said Thursday he hoped that the threats of a counter-demonstration by anti-Nazis wouldn't occur.

"The Jews have a legitimate complaint that in Germany nobody spoke up when Hitler began his rise, and they feel they must not be silent now," he said. "I just hope we can have free speech on all sides — the Nazis and the Jews — without any violence."

Collin said: "The Jews have no reason to complain. All we're doing to them is just what they did in Dixie — use freedom of speech to ramrod the civil rights movement in the South. The Jews are acting like the white sheriffs in Selma."

But Goldstein says the idea of Nazis marching "tells me that some people don't think the holocaust should have ended."

Man shot dead outside market by youth gang

A man was shot and killed outside an Industry market early today after he was confronted by a group of youths who demanded to know where he lived.

The victim, Joseph Perez, 29, of El Monte, was killed outright when he was shot several times. The incident was outside a market at 1019 S. Stimson Ave. shortly before 1 a.m.

Sheriff's deputies said that Perez was confronted by four or five youths, ranging from 15 to 18, who wanted to know where he was from. When he told them El Monte, one drew a small-caliber pistol and shot him before fleeing, they said.

Swiss general given 18 years for spying

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss Brig.Gen. JeanLouis Jeanmaire was convicted today by a military court of spying for the Soviet Union and was sentenced to 18 years in prison.

The seven-man court-martial, ranging in rank from colonel to private, found the 67-year-old retired one-star general guilty of passing for more than 10 years of vital Swiss defense data to intelligence agents serving as diplomats in the Swiss capital of Bern.

The sentence, which included demotion and expulsion from the army, was the stiffest ever handed to a Swiss for a peacetime espionage. In times of war, Swiss military law provides for a maximum penalty of death.

Bonita Class of '77 celebrates graduation

The 266 members of the Bonita High School Class of 1977 celebrated commencement Thursday evening in Bearcat Bowl on the La Verne campus.

Valedictorians for the class are Donna Budzan and Sander Eller. Michael Riley is the salutatorian.

Both Eller and Riley spoke at Thursday's graduation exercises.

Also speaking were Dana Mabrey who brought an inspirational message combining poetry and verse from several patriotic songs, and Robert Burton who discussed the meaning behind graduation saying, "Life is a long spiral staircase on which each person must set the goals for the future."

Eller's speech centered on what each graduate wants out of life. He said each human being is a creative animal who achieves satisfaction through what he does.

Riley described life as a great adventure in intellectual curiosity and compared graduation to an eagle trying its wings.

Bonita principal Louis Rosen presented the class for graduation and Howard Wigell, assistant superintendent of the Bonita school district, accepted the class.

Bonita school trustees A. Eugene Bowers and Vera Mae Gephart presented diplomas.

The invocation was presented by Kathy Hauger and Lori Blackwell delivered the benediction.

San Dimas graduates 248 seniors

The 248 members of San Dimas High School's class of 1977 received their diplomas at commencement exercises Thursday evening in the school's quad.

Valedictorian of the class is Lisa Kay Cartwright. Salutatorian is David Scott Brode.

Class speaker's for Thursday's ceremony were Perry La Mont, Paris Williams and Paula Johnson.

Ed Burns of the First Methodist Church and the Rev. Muni Jittu, evangelist, also spoke.

Theme for the evening was, "We May Never Pass This Way Again."

Recalling his attendance at San Dimas, La Mont told his audience, "The past four years have seen us through many pleasant and difficult situations; moments when we have been exuberant and joyful and moments when the pressures of high school life have left us overwhelmed and depressed. But each experience has served to strengthen us, develop our character and make us better people overall."

"As graduates," said Miss Johnson, "we look upon commencement as an ending, but it is an ending in appearance only. Every ending is also a beginning. We are closing doors which will never again be open to us. Yet every closed door forces one to look for new openings."

Members of the Bonita school board awarded diplomas to the members of the graduating class.

Three grads give speeches at Chino

Chino High School's commencement exercises for 475 graduates Thursday night at the school's Memorial Stadium featured speeches by co-valedictorians Beverly Goodrich and Kim Hall and salutatorian Jim Brinkerhoff.

Miss Goodrich discussed "You've Got a Lot to Live" and the title of Miss Hall's speech was "Let it Shine." Brinkerhoff's speech was entitled, "Our Luck Turned Into Gold."

The invocation was given by the Rev. Terrell Berry of the Southern Baptist Church of Chino and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Aaron L. Plueger of Christ Lutheran Church of Chino.

Presentation of the graduates was made by Principal Richard Ferguson and the diplomas were handed out by school board members Lyle Briggs, Al McCombs, Dan Santo and Pete Vander Poel.

The school choir and Treble Tones sang "A Place in the World."

Ganesha graduation theme: 'Foundations of Success'

Graduation exercises for the Ganesha High School class of 1977 were held Thursday evening at the Mt. San Antonio College stadium.

Theme of the graduation was "Foundations of Success."

Speakers included valedictorian Wanda Roshon and salutatorian Walter Otto. Gail Russell gave the invocation, Irene Brandenburg the class farewell and Don Hinshilwood delivered the benediction.

Otto remarked on the power of the individual to determine his own fate. He told his listeners, "If you think you dare not, you won't. If you like to win, but you don't think you can, it's almost a cinch you won't. But, if you think you are better, you are. You, the individual, are the key to your own success."

Miss Brandenburg struck a more humorous note in her speech poking fun at some of the school's faculty and more vivid personalties. Remarking on Ganesha's name she asked her audience, "What can you say about a school whose name sounds like a sneeze?"

Music for the ceremony was provided by the Ganesha madrigals, singers and concert choir as well as the school band directed by M. Susan Winckler and Donald Root.

Pomona school trustee C. Allen Braswell represented the board of education.

Citizens' Forum meets Saturday

The Citizens' Forum, recently established by Frances M. Livingston, Pomona school trustee, will have its first regular meeting Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the board room at the Education Center.

The forum is open to persons who live or work in the Pomona district or students, sixth grade and up. Membership will be closed after this first regular meeting. A regular schedule of meetings will be determined Saturday.

The purpose is to identify educational problems and concerns of citizens and, through group process, do problem solving.

Walnut speakers focus on future

Walnut High School held its eighth annual commencement exercises honoring the class of 1977 Thursday evening on the school athletic field.

Speaking on the theme, "Do You Know Where You're Going?" student speakers included Karen Huntsman, Tim Ball, salutatorian Laurie Cason and valedictorian Lucinda Shockley

Debbie Gillette, accompanied by Larry Cline, presented the theme for the evening musically.

Jack Ingram, Walnut principal, presented seniors graduating with highest honors.

Other student participants included Cecilia Baquedano, Kathy Jensen, Kelly Wyatt, Elaine Sewell and Creg Fenwick.

Walnut Supt. of Schools David Brown presented the class to the audience. Walnut Valley school trustees Frank Morales and T. Ladd Hollist awarded diplomas to the graduates.

Miss Shockley urged each graduate to "search for his gifts and develop them to the greatest potential."

Ball, Walnut's outgoing ASB president, said, "A stage in our life is over and a new one is now beginning, be it a career, an advanced education, a trade school or whatever direction you choose to take. I hope we can use our education to intelligently decide, 'Where we are going' not only for the good of ourselves, but for the good of everyone."

Driver's license good for 12 years may be proposed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If you have a good driving record and are under 55 years of age, you may soon be able to get a drivers license good for 12 years instead of four, state officials say.

Motor Vehicle Director Herman Sillas has suggested that possibility, which would require legislative approval, as one way of cutting costs and temporarily increasing his department's revenues.

A four-year license now costs $3.25.

Under Sillas' proposal, a driver could get an eight-year license for $6.50 or a 12-year license for $9.75

Narcissistic students attacked

"Narcissism is thriving in our contemporary American society," Michelle Darling told her fellow Chaffey High School graduates during commencement exercises Wednesday night at Graber Field.

Miss Darling noted that people have become "somewhat baffled and have confused self-respect with self-adoration." Many people are totally involved with just themselves, she added.

She proceeded to castigate "narcissistic students" who "cheat, ruin our campus with trash and graffiti and do not accept responsibility for what they do ."

Mike Bare, a second student speaker, told the 580 seniors who received diplomas that, "We must search, not outside, but within ourselves to find out who we are."

Students should not expect a diploma to automatically mean finding themselves, he said.

Hope Kaufman, a third speaker, asked whether seniors are any different now from when they were younger.

"We have no one else to look up to but ourselves," she said. "We have our memories but most of all we have our friends."

Miss Kaufman told the graduates not to forget the "times" we had as seniors. "This graduation is not the end of any experience nor is it the beginning of another, it's a chapter in a very complex mystery "

State water bill

Ayala moves to clear way for compromise

Sen. Ruben S. Ayala, D-Chino, said Thursday he would amend his legislation proposing construction of a Peripheral Canal to include a compromise on water quality reached by environmentalists and developers and announced by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. in Palo Alto.

Brown, speaking before an Associated Press newspaper editors meeting, said a "major breakthrough" had been achieved after a 15-year squabble over $3.5 million worth of water projects, including the canal.

Brown called the breakthrough a "fragile agreement," because conditions are posed, and the compromisers range from water developers to environmentalists, and include farm interests and labor, he said.

"The environmentalists have seen the need for the Peripheral Canal, and the water users in the San Joaquin Valley have seen the need for guarantees of water quality in the Delta," Brown explained.

He said that a major condition of the agreement is that there be a federal guarantee of water quality in the Delta.

"If this is achieved, the state will commit itself to build the Peripheral Canal and start within three years," the governor said.

Ayala, chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Water Resource Committee, in early May introduced S. B. 346 which appropriates $900 million for the construction of the canal. The bill calls for the spending of at least $100 million annually for the project starting in 1978.

Ayala quickly amended the compromises into his bill to authorize construction, and the Senate Finance Committee quickly sent it to the floor on a 9-3 vote.

The Peripheral Canal, a major artery in California's water system, would move Northern California water across the Delta to be pumped to the San Joaquin Valley and into Southern California.

All laughing and joking

Ray, 6 others given solitary

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP) — Laughing and joking among themselves, James Earl Ray and six other prison escapees appeared before a prison review board today and were sentenced to 30 days in "administrative segregation."

The sentence is the second most severe punishment the escapees could have received. It means they will remain in 'D block,' a building isolated from the main prison population, and will be allowed to leave the building only under guard escort.

Each of the seven men was also ordered to forfeit a total of three years of "good and honored" time that was to have been taken off their sentences, officials at Brushy Mountain State Prison said.

Ray and the six others appeared at a hearing before an in-prison review board, which found them guilty of being involved in the escape last Friday night.

Ray, the only one of the seven who refused to enter a plea, said: "I have no statement to make."

Deputy Asst. Warden Herman Wayland said Larry E. Hacker was the only inmate to plead guilty to the charge.

"They all seemed to be in a good frame of mind," Wayland said. "They were all laughing and seemed to be treating it like a great caper."

Two inmates who were involved in a fight that diverted guards' attention while the escape was taking place were earlier sentenced to punitive segregation — a more severe punishment that denies inmates televisions, cigarettes and other luxuries for 30 days.

Meanwhile, the guard stationed closest to the break said he "doesn't want to talk" about his being fired for negligence.

Guard Floyd Hooks, 38, of Oliver Springs, Tenn., declined to say whether he planned to appeal Thursday's dismissal, which had been recommended by Warden Stonney Lane.

"There's no question but what he was negligent," Corrections Commissioner C. Murray Henderson said of Hooks. "We're not looking for a scapegoat, but we have to take corrective action when this happens."

ERRANT GENERAL — Lt. Gen. Donn Starry was to meet in private at the Pentagon today with Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Bernard Rogers. Gen. Gov. Shapp election campaign is probed

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The FBI is investigating financial irregularities in the 1976 Democratic presidential campaign of Gov. Milton Shapp, says U.S. Atty. John Cottone.

Washington sources had disclosed earlier that the Justice Department was planning a grand jury probe of the campaign.

In addition, the Federal Election Commission said Thursday that several persons have agreed to pay fines for making illegal contributions to the Shapp campaign.

Cottone, U.S. attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, declined comment Thursday night when asked whether he expected the FBI investigation to lead to a grand jury probe.

"There's a field investigation going on. That's all," Cottone said in a telephone interview. "Every investigation starts with a field investigation. The grand jury process is a final step."

Shapp's campaign has drawn FEC scrutiny because of financial irregularities. The commission ruled May 12 that he was not entitled to almost $300,000 in federal matching funds he received last year.

The millionaire governor denied any knowledge of the irregularities but agreed to return the funds.

"This was a national election," Cottone said. "The investigation right now is being done by our office, but that is not to say there are not other aspects ... being investigated by other U.S. attorneys."

The governor's office acknowledged Thursday night that Shapp has been contacted by federal investigators.

Driver fleeing bullets rams police car

An Ontario man who told highway patrol officers he was trying to escape from a person shooting at him from a car rammed into an Ontario police unit at I Street and Grove Avenue about 1:45 a.m. today.

Treated at Ontario Community Hospital for injuries and released were Santana Acuna, and Officer Roger Remlinger, 32.

Acuna told officers he was driving in the vicinity of Calaveras Avenue and I Street when someone in another car shot at him.

Acuna said he sped west on I Street, tried to make a right turn onto Grove Avenue, crossed over into the south bound lanes and collided with a police unit driven by Remlinger.

Remlinger said he slowed down his car when he saw that Acuna was not going to make the turn at the speed he was going.

Driver hits pole

A 27-year-old Montclair man sustained cuts on the head and back early today when he reportedly swerved to avoid a rock and slammed into a utility pole about half a mile north of the north tunnel on Mt. Baldy Road, highway patrol officers reported.

Randall Dean Patton, 9191 Central Ave., Montclair, told officers he was southbound on Mt. Baldy Road about 3:30 a.m.

Insurance clerk robbed

A woman working alone in an insurance office in Pomona, was robbed by a man who demanded money after gesturing as if he had a pistol in his pocket.

The robbery was at the Farmers Insurance office at 115 W. Center St. where the victim was alone. She said the man entered shortly after 2 p.m., demanded money and fled after she surrendered cash.

The man was described as black, 20 to 25, 5 feet 10, weighing 160 pounds. He wore a beige shirt with a floral pattern and dark trousers.

Couple robbed in parking lot

An Aurora, Colo. man and his woman companion were robbed about 1:45 a.m. today at the Holiday Inn, 1801 E. G St., Ontario by two men.

The victim told police that as he pulled into the hotel parking lot the robbers, having a gun, approached both the driver's and passenger's doors simultaneously.

The robbers fled with about $207 in cash.

Hearse rams police cars; driver arrested

A La Canada motorist was arrested early today by La Verne police who charged that he rammed one department radio car with his hearse and tried twice to strike another before being halted on Foothill Boulevard.

The man, Robert Paul LeMay, 43, was booked on a variety of charges including felonious assault on a police officer.

Police said the incident began when an officer was flagged down at 1 a.m. by a motorist who said that a driver had attempted to run him off the 210 Freeway. Another officer spotted a similar vehicle on a parking lot along Foothill Boulevard. He said the driver twice tried to ram the patrol car on the lot and did swerve the hearse into the side of one pursuing radio car before being boxed in and stopped. The driver of the patrol car, Officer James Strona, was unhurt, but the impact of the collision sent his car into the center divider, the officer said.

The suspect was driving a 1965 Cadillac hearse, police said.

Pomona man shot from car dies of wounds

A 23-year-old Pomona man, shot from a passing car late last Friday night, died Thursday in the intensive care unit of Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The victim was Robert Espinoza Rodriguez, who was shot in the face shortly before midnight as he and several others were standing in a vacant lot near Commercial and Newman streets. Police said that between eight and 10 shots were fired from a speeding car containing several occupants. They said the shots probably were fired from a rifle and shotgun.

A second victim also was wounded in the fusillade. Henry Gonzales, 28, was struck in one arm and was released after treatment at the hospital.

Police subsequently arrested two persons in the shootings, but they were released later without charge. No other arrests have been made.

Investigators reported that the incident possibly was the result of street gang rivalries.

Woman, 80, fights to keep purse from thief, is injured

An 80-year-old woman was hurled to the pavement early Thursday afternoon as she fought to keep her purse from a youthful thief on a Pomona parking lot.

The victim, of Pomona, suffered elbow injuries when she was thrown down, and she also lost her purse. It was found later, minus the wallet and a small amount of money.

The incident occurred as the victim was walking from her car in the rear of 399 N. Garey Ave. The pursesnatcher was described as black, about 15, 5 feet 5 weighing 110 pounds. He had a 2-inch afro hairdo and wore a brown jacket, brown knit cap and dark trousers. He fled with a young companion after getting the purse.

No place for you, Harvard class told

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard graduating students were told not to go out into the world by George Plimpton of the class of 1948.

"My strong recommendation is that you don't go. Stop. Go back to your rooms. Unpack. Settle in. There's not much in the way of pleasurable choices out there," Plimpton, editor of the Paris Review, told students at Harvard's Class Day ceremonies Wednesday.

He said another reason not to graduate was that college graduates are not wanted in the world off campus, particularly because all graduates hit the job market in June.

"Why can't they be squeezed out one at a time, like peach pits, so society can absorb them without feeling suffocated," he said.

Tractor catches fire in field

A broken fuel line caused a tractor discing a field in San Dimas early today to catch fire. The fire was limited to the engine and equipment, causing about $1,200 damage.

The fire did not spread to the field at the corner of Cienega Street and Arrow Highway where the tractor burned.

Los Angeles County firefighters responded to the 7 a.m. blaze. Glen Yamabe, the tractor driver, escaped injury. The tractor is owned by a South El Monte commercial lot-cleaning firm.

Murder charge dismissed

Murder charges against Raymond Porter, 20, Chino, in connection with the Dec. 18 shooting death of Robert Moreno Aguilar, 19, Ontario, have been dismissed by West Valley Superior Court Judge Clifton L. Allen.

Judge Allen granted a defense motion to dismiss the charge on the basis that he had a reasonable doubt himself in spite of the evidence which had been presented.

Testimony in the trial began last week.

Porter, defended by attorney Charles Wolfe, was accused of taking part in a shooting in De Anza Park in Ontario which resulted in Aguilar's death and the wounding of Aguilar's 14-year-old nephew, George Aguilar.

Man faces action in slaying

An East Los Angeles man has been bound over to Pomona Superior Court — charged with murdering Dewayne Simkiss, 48, on Easter Sunday.

Simkiss was killed when he was run over twice in front of his home in La Puente. Sheriff's homicide detectives said he was pursued by a motorist after he went to the aid of a neighbor who had gotten into a dispute with several young men. One of the youths reportedly went to the car and got a firearm, sending Simkiss and his neighbor running. Simkiss was run down by the motorist who turned around and ran over him again.

The suspect, Alphonso S. Altamirano, 22, was bound over at his preliminary hearing in Rio Hondo (El Monte) Municipal Court.

Accused of selling heroin

Juan Murietta Liscano, 50, of 1371 S. Gibbs St., Pomona, has been charged with three counts of selling heroin locally, police reported.

Liscano was arrested after a three-month investigation conducted jointly by Pomona police and agents of the state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement.

Investigators charged that Liscano is suspected of dealing in small amounts of heroin.

The suspect was arrested on a warrant issued by Pomona Municipal Court Judge James Piatt. He set bail at $5,000.

Pomonan arraigned

3rd brother in heroin case

A Pomona man has been arraigned in Pomona Municipal Court on a one-count felony complaint charging him with the sale of high-grade Mexican heroin.

The suspect, Ignacio Guzman Vera, 36, of 1283 W. Seventh St., was arrested Wednesday, climaxing a two-year investigation which involved both the Pomona Police Department's narcotics bureau and the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department narcotics task force, Pomona Detective Lorenzo Zambrano said.

Zambrano added that Ignacio Vera is the third Vera brother to be charged with narcotics violations in the city. Salvador Guzman Vera, 28, faces probation hearing and sentencing June 22 in Pomona Superior Court on a conviction for offering to sell heroin, Zambrano said. And Juan Guzman Vera, 34, is scheduled for trial July 29 in the Pomona court on a charge of possessing heroin for sale.

Ignacio Vera was arrested on a warrant issued by Pomona Municipal Court Judge Thomas Nuss which called for $50,000 bail. Zambrano said that Vera sold an ounce of heroin to an undercover policeman for $3,000, that it was from Mexico and of extremely high grade and had a street value, when cut, of $18,000.

County orders study of law center needs

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors has hired a consulting firm to study expansion needs of the West Valley Law and Justice Center in Ontario.

The firm, Gruen Associates, will be paid $145,284 to assess new building needs, how to best use already constructed county buildings, parking facilities, and interim space assignments at the complex which presently houses courts, sheriff's station and welfare, probation and other county offices.

When the new county building is completed at D Street and Cherry Avenue near downtown Ontario, many of the county agencies not directly connected with law and justice will be moved from their present location at Sixth Street and Mountain Avenue.

The study will consist of a master plan of the 15-acre complex on Mountain Avenue. This will include site and circulation plans, construction phasing and building costs, an analysis of police and prisoner security problems, and an environmental impact report.

"The need for the study is based on the continued growth in the West End and space implications resulting from the move of many county service activities into the new Ontario office building," said county Supervisor Robert Townsend. "We are looking for a plan that will prove adequate at least through 1986."

The study is expected to be completed by February. Supervisors have set aside $4.9 million in federal revenue sharing funds to revamp the complex.

In a related action, supervisors this week ordered a similar study be made of the county office "superblock" in San Bernardino, the county seat.

That study will be performed by Kurt Meyer and Associates of Los Angeles at a cost of $168,000. The study will recommend how best to use existing office space and determine future construction needs.

Supervisors have earmarked $8.8 million in federal revenue sharing funds for the revamping project.

Sister Bertilia arrived at Pomona Catholic in 1950 and has taught sewing, tailoring, home management, meal planning, and typing. Recognition is also given for being an assistant principal, homeroom teacher, registrar, counsellor, practical arts department chairman, and club moderator.

Lincoln's estate

Upon Abraham Lincoln's death in 1865, his estate was appraised at $110,974. Most of this had been saved from his salary as president, at that time, $25,000 a year. The salary of a president of the United States currently is $200,000 annually.

Linney receives fifth Hausam-Fish Award

Thomas Linney Jr., a doctoral candidate at Claremont Graduate School, has won the fifth annual Hausam-Fisk Award in higher education.

The $1,000 award is named for the late Winifred Hausam and for Helen Fisk, founders of the College Student Personnel Institute. It is given annually to a Claremont Graduate School student who demonstrates academic excellence and scholarship in writing, has a rewarding internship experience, and gives service to colleagues and fellow students.

Linney, who is in the Ph.D. program in higher education and government, is serving an internship as staff assistant to the Business and Financial Officers Committee of the six Claremont Colleges. His dissertation, which he expects to complete next spring, is on the interrelationship between universities and the state and federal government as it affects student aid programs.

He is a graduate of San Francisco State University.

Rountree honored at dinner

A dinner honoring the Pomona school district's assistant superintendent of business affairs Lynn Rountree was held recently at Griswold's restaurant in Claremont.

Over 300 persons attended the "roast" of Rountree, who has been with the district since 1942 with only a brief two-year hiatus as superintendent of the Dixon School District.

Rountree was honored by his fellow employes who gave him a gas barbecue.

The Pomona school board presented Rountree with a plaque commemorating his work in the district.

Rountree's service to Pomona schools has included principalships at San Jose, Hamilton, Madison Elementary Schools and Garey High School as well as service in both the assistant superintendent for personnel and business positions.

He has served on the Pomona Planning Commission and is a past president of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

Rountree's wife and his three sons were on hand for the retirement dinner.

LYNN ROUNTREE

Olympic flame

The modern version of the Olympic flame was adopted in 1936 and symbolizes the continuity between the ancient and modern Games. The torch used to kindle the flame is first lit by the sun's rays at Olympia, Greece, and then carried to the site of the Games by relays of runners. Ships and planes are used when necessary.

S.B. County program to serve 2,845 youths

The Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY) will serve 2,845 San Bernardino County youths, the county Board of Supervisors was told.

The summer employment program will focus on youth between the ages of 14 and 21. Primary recruitment emphasis is on those determined to be most in need of the summer opportunities.

In addition to actual worksite experience, each participant's learning experience will include job application techniques, interviewing for jobs, researching job clusters, employe responsibilities and career decision-making skills.

Selection of actual sites is determined by these factors:

—Ability of the employer to provide work experience to match the participants aptitude, interests and abilities.

—Employment experience will be meaningful over a period of nine weeks at an average of 20-26 hours per week.

—The willingness and ability of supervisors to instruct participants effectively.

—An assessment of the worksite in its ability to comply with child labor laws and standards.

—Health and safety considerations.

Four employers will participate this summer. County schools will take care of 1,195 job slots; the City of San Bernardino, 400; West End Multi-Service Center, 1,040 and county Client Service Unit, 210.

Supervisors attack UCLA students' housing problem

College students in the valley apparently are better behaved and more popular with their landlords than their counterparts at UCLA.

That, at least, is the opinion of Supervisor Kenneth Hahn who wondered aloud Tuesday why students around Westwood had so much trouble finding housing accommodations.

His thoughts were triggered by a motion by Supervisor Ed Edelman to support an Assembly bill that would prohibit discrimination in housing against students.

Edelman contended students around UCLA found it almost impossible to find adequate housing.

"Why is the problem mostly around Westwood?" Hahn wondered. "I am told that the people in Pomona, La Verne, and at Pepperdine, Loyola and Long Beach welcome students."

He suggested that if the UCLA students used their rooms more for study and research "to learn how high the pyramids are and what year King Tut was buried in the tomb, perhaps we wouldn't have this problem before us."

"Perhaps the reason students aren't more academically inclined is because they have to learn when King Tut was buried," Supervisor James Hayes quipped.

"Some students go to college not to study but for some other reason that keeps them up late at night," Hahn added. "I don't know what that reason is, but the landlord doesn't like it. I want to make a motion to urge students to study more and not cause trouble."

After a 10-minute discussion the matter was tabled.

Allentown

The area of Pennsylvania around Allentown was settled in the 1600s by immigrants from Germany seeking religious freedom. The city itself was founded in 1762 and was the hiding place of the Liberty Bell, removed from Philadelphia, during the Revolutionary War. Flag Day as an annual observance was established at Allentown in 1906 by the Grand Army of the Republic.

State campsites

Reservations for state park campsites during the July 4th weekend are being filled rapidly, said officials.

Half the campgrounds in the state park system are reserved, with reservations particularly heavy along the coast from San Diego to Humboldt county and in the Lake Tahoe area.

Some state park campgrounds do not take reservations and have family campsites available on a first-come basis. But starting a holiday weekend camping trip without a reservation can easily end in disappointment, with all available campsites filled by the time the vacationing group arrives, officials warned.

Reservations may be made through Saturday for the following weekend at Ticketron outlets. All state park units are expected to be in operation during the weekend, and services will be normal or near-normal in most units. Restrictions in water use will continue at some state parks, beaches, and recreation areas, and reduced boat launching service will continue at some inland lakes.

D.B. residents show support for sheriff's station building

Diamond Bar residents indicated in a recent survey their strong support for construction of a sheriff's station in that community.

The survey was made by the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Council's priorities committee. A committee spokesman reported 85 per cent of those persons surveyed said they were supportive of the substation's development.

Most of those opposed to the construction cited the country's financial problems as their reason for opposition.

Sgt. Jim Gardner of the sheriff's Industry station told members of the council a feasibility study is presently being prepared by the sheriff's office on the need for a new station in the eastern end of the county. He said that five sites have been examined on an extremely preliminary basis and that two of these are in Diamond Bar.

Gardner said that part of the study presently under way is aimed at determining if a new police station is needed to replace the currently heavily used Industry station or if a new station is needed in addition to the present Industry and San Dimas stations.

Gardner said the Industry station currently serves an area approximately 112 square miles in size with a population of 225,000 with a great population increase anticipated over the next few years.

The council also continued final approval of the Diamond Bar general plan presented by the Trans america Development Co. until its meeting of June 28.

YMCA to hold swim program

Pomona Valley YMCA will hold a "Learn to Swim" program for one week beginning Monday.

Boys and girls of elementary school age, grades one to six, may register for the program through Friday.

Cost for five days of instruction is $2. Classes will last 30 minutes and children in the program will also be allowed to use the YMCA pool during open swim hours.

The goal of the program is to teach youngsters basic swimming safety and techniques for the summer.

Beginning Tuesday, the YMCA will also offer an advanced lifesaving course. The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. and will be taught by a Red Cross certified instructor. Cost is $5 for members and $10 for non-members.

For information, persons may call 623-6433.

Valley residents should check sodium content in their water

More use of Colorado River water may make difference

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Heart patients and others on restricted sodium intake should check the source of their water supply to see if the drought had caused an increase in the sodium content.

It may affect many valley residents, a local spokesman said.

"All of the water coming out of taps contains some sodium," says Mrs. Ruth Johnson, nutritionist for the Los Angeles Affiliate of the American Heart Association. "How much depends on the source."

Her statement is supported by Stan Kawa, general manager of the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District who says the amount of sodium in water in some areas of the valley is "increasing markedly."

The Heart Association warns the system supplying water to Southern California is extremely complex and may vary drastically from area to area.

"Because of these variations we ask anyone with questions about water to call their local water department," advises Mrs. Johnson.

Kawa says that the water systems in the valley, too, are extremely complex.

"Under normal conditions, the valley uses a mixture of water from its own wells, water from the northern part of the state and water from the Colorado River," Kawa said.

"Even then, the amount of sodium in the supply in various cities is markedly different because the content in wells differ."

Kawa said water from the northern part of the state normally supplied through the Owens River is low in sodium. But current drought conditions have resulted in a decreased supply from the Owens River Aqueduct which is fed largely by snows from the eastern slopes of the Sierra Nevada.

This naturally soft water contains 30 milligrams of sodium per liter. The snow-melt water is now being replaced in the valley, to a great extent, by undiluted Colorado River water which contains 106 mg. per liter, according to current measurement.

Kawa says the sodium content of the Colorado fluctuates, but is always higher that water from the north.

Kawa said the wells which supply the City of Pomona have a relatively low percentage of sodium, from 10 to 23 parts per million, while Claremont's water supplied by its wells has a high sodium content.

The ratio of sodium is also increased in the Claremont water supply, Kawa says, because the city imports from 30 to 40 per cent of its water.

"We have discovered that Claremonters use a higher percentage of bottled water than most other valley areas because of this," adds the district manager.

Kawa added that Walnut and Diamond Bar water users also face a possibility of high sodium content in their tap water.

The Pomona Valley Municipal Water District may be forced to increase its use of the Colorado River during the summer months, Kawa warns, thus increasing the sodium content.

"In view of current conditions, the Heart Association recommends that anyone on a 1000 mg. a day sodium restriction consider using distilled water in preference to tap water," comments Mrs. Johnson.

"It is essential that individuals who must limit their daily sodium intake to 500 mg. use distilled water," she adds.

Kawa adds that pregnant women and others bothered by water retention due to sodium should consider the use of distilled bottled water.

Kawa added, "Don't use a commercial water softener if sodium intake must be limited since they increase the sodium level to from 210 to 220 parts per million."

Individuals restricting their sodium intake should also be aware of the sodium content in bottled water, cautions Kawa. The differing sources and processing techniques used by individual bottling companies do result in a product with greatly varying mineral content.

Both "purified and "distilled" water have negligible sodium content.

WHAT'S IN IT?

Individuals who are concerned about their sodium intake should check the local water supply where they live. Due to the drought, water from Northern California which has a low sodium content is being replaced by water from the Colorado River which is high in sodium.

Improved bus service is sought

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Complaining about the "antiquated" buses the Southern California Rapid Transit District is running on the loop from Los Angeles to San Bernardino and Riverside, the West Valley Transit Service Authority agreed that improvements are in order for the upcoming fiscal year.

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair opened the discussion about the downgrading of equipment and service by RTD for the West End and San Bernardino County leg of the freeway run that links the three counties of Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Riverside.

"They're running the oldest, doggiest buses they can find," Hayes said. He described the buses as "Tijuana, pre-war" vintage and verbally admonished RTD for the "audacity" of offering passengers such poor service.

"They've probably had those buses since the year one. It's a shame that people riding the longest are in shabby, inconvenient, non-air conditioned buses. We should ask that the buses utilized in the West End are of the vintage offered in the Los Angeles central areas," Hayes said.

Paul Marsh, general manager of Omnitrans, the transit operator for San Bernardino County, reported that he and San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG) executive director Wes McDaniel had held several meetings with RTD over the problem.

"What happened is that they pulled their better buses off the inter-county route for airport service. We are pursuing this concern in our upcoming contract discussions with RTD," Marsh said. "It is uppermost in our minds that they provide equipment and coaches that are of the level of service we're paying for."

Marsh estimated the length of the run from Los Angeles to San Bernardino and Riverside at at least 65 to 75 miles.

The WVTSA board unanimously approved a motion to send letters requesting air conditioned and modern equipment be utilized by RTD "for the comfort of the riders," and that this be spelled out in the new contract for 1977-78.

In another matter relating to RTD, Marsh reported that the Holt Boulevard line to Ontario International Airport (OIA) operated by RTD will probably be discontinued next fiscal year because of low patronage.

City Manager Roger Hughbanks of Ontario commented that figures show that on the line beyond Euclid Avenue and to the airport "ridership is nil."

Marsh said the Omnitrans Route 14 between Yucaipa-Calamesa and Montclair will be altered slightly in the upcoming year to provide service to OIA from both the east and west; and this should meet airport traffic needs.

In Ontario-Montclair District

Spanking policy unchanged

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

There will be no rush to spank children in the Ontario-Montclair School District.

School trustees decided on an informal vote Thursday night not to change their current policy which requires parental permission before a child is spanked.

The vote was 3-2, with trustees Sam DiGiovanni and Kathleen Brugger favoring more corporal punishment. Rose Kelber, Richard Pearson and Bill Hennie voted to retain the present district policy.

DiGiovanni had raised the issue at last month's meeting. He referred to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in April which said paddling does not violate constitutional protections against cruel and unusual punishment.

Supt. Jack Jones has maintained that district policy (and state law) requires prior written permission from parents before school personnel can spank children. Jones says state law has not been superseded by the Supreme Court ruling.

DiGiovanni claimed Thursday that the Supreme Court held school officials don't have to provide students with a hearing before they are spanked.

He called on the board to expand the present district rule to allow spankings without permission or a hearing. "Kids aren't going to get a Supreme Court ruling each time they get spanked."

DiGiovanni said he disagreed with requiring teachers to notify parents before children are paddled. "We're putting the teacher in jeopardy — if he acts, he's in violation of law. But not according to the Supreme Court."

Mrs. Kelber said she did not want "teachers raising their hands in anger. They need time to think about it. It's better if they have to seek permission before spanking."

DiGiovanni said there are many "ills" in society, "and this is one of them. We're becoming too permissive."

Negotiations for salary, fringe benefits

Montclair team denies police attorney's claim

Members of the City of Montclair's negotiating team denied a police attorney's claim that the city picking up the tab for police officers' dependent health coverage would provide a long-term savings to the taxpayers.

Mike Milhiser and Laurie Page, assistant city administrator and administrative assistant, represent the city in current negotiations with the Montclair Police Association for salary and fringe benefits for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Stephen H. Silver of the Los Angeles firm of Silver and Wells which represents the 34 officers in the association, reported an impasse had been reached following a meeting with city officials Wednesday.

The major issue, according to Silver, is the officers' request for the city to use a portion of the recommended salary increase to meet the costs of dependent medical and dental insurance.

Silver contended that because the city ordinarily increases the percentage payment into such areas as retirement fund, workers compensation, long-term disability, life and unemployment insurance on the basis of salary level, the city would save money because the salary would be less.

Miss Page estimated that about 2.4 per cent of the 5¼ per cent salary adjustment could meet dependent health costs. She guessed a savings of about $4,000 in the city's increase of related fringe benefits this year.

But the factor that Silver and police have chosen to ignore at this point, said Milhiser, is "if the city consents to dependent coverage, the salary adjustment could put Montclair officers on pay scales comparatively lower than other West End and surrounding officers.

"And next year when salaries fall behind, they'll want a salary adjustment and we'll already be locked into paying dependent health coverage. That coverage will be an astronomical increase to Montclair taxpayers over the next few years," Milhiser added.

The administrators added that the Montclair City Council "is opposed to paying dependent health coverage. Any opening of the door (on this issue) would be a violation of council philosophy."

Milhiser indicated the city gives each officer a paycheck to meet the costs of his own dependent health care, and such care is not the responsibility of the city.

On the side issue of the city paying two hours standby court time while officers wait for court call after 10:30 a.m., Milhiser said that the city had offered a compromise solution that had been rejected by Silver.

Police reported an average court testimony time of 45 minutes, but the city automatically pays four hours. They do not get paid for the standby time at home. The city offered to pay the requested two hours standby and cut the paid testimony time to two hours, but the officers opted for retention of the testimony payment schedule plus the additional two hours for standby at home after 10:30 a.m.

"The court policy was a mutually agreeable solution supported by city, court and police personnel several years ago. The original agreement was that the court would call the officer if needed by 10:30 a.m. The court has now extended that time to 11 a.m. in some instances," Milhiser said.

In addition to the compromise on the compensation, Milhiser said the city had also offered to arrange a meeting of other cities' administrative and police personnel, court representatives and the county district attorney's office to attempt to re-establish the 10:30 a.m. deadline for court call.

"We're not under any obligation to do it, but we're willing to do it to help the men," Milhiser said.

He voiced resentment because Silver had only entered the negotiations after four meetings were already held. After attending the fifth meeting, the problems developed, according to Milhiser, and the impasse was declared after the sixth session.

Miss Page said the city's total package is about 7.7 per cent and includes the 5¼ per cent salary increase, increases in the city's payment to related fringe benefits, increase from $20,000 to $1 million per employe on the maximum coverage for the health insurance plan, an optical insurance plan and increase to 64 hours from 40 hours in overtime pay for working sick relief and vacation.

Possible D.B. high school sites down to two

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The number of sites considered for a Diamond Bar high school shrank to two Thursday night when the Pomona school board reached a consensus to eliminate a third site.

The consensus was reached following an informal motion by board President Don Donnelly to eliminate the Sycamore Canyon site north of Grand Avenue on the east side of Diamond Bar Boulevard in Diamond Bar.

Donnelly described the canyon as too narrow, with only one area for an entrance and exit. This could be hazardous in case of fire.

In eliminating the site, the board also took formal action to appropriate $15,000 for an engineering and geological study of the two remaining sites: one at the northeast corner of the intersection of the Pomona Freeway and Golden Springs Road in Diamond Bar, and north of Mission Boulevard an equal distance between the Orange Freeway and the Humane Society of the Pomona Valley offices. The latter site is on the Phillips Ranch within the Pomona city limits.

Former trustee Ken Pine, who is heading the school district's committee to study the Diamond Bar high school site proposals, appeared at the meeting presenting fresh figures on the cost for developing the Phillips Ranch site.

Preliminary figures had already been presented on the two Diamond Bar sites. The figures presented by Pine Thursday evening were rough figures provided by Phillips Ranch developer Al Lessor.

Pine said Lessor's figures showed 641,500 cubic yards of earth would have to be cut and another 1,038,000 cubic yards would have to be filled in order to provide a leveled site on which to construct the school.

At 70 cents a yard for cutting and blasting and $1.25 a yard for filling, Pine said cost of preparation would run to $1,746,550. Additional drainage and sewer work would run that figure to $1,996,550, he said.

These figures differ substantially from preliminary figures supplied by the district's architects, who reported to the board in April estimated costs for site preparation on the Phillips Ranch site of between $2,800,000 to $3,600,000.

Lessor is offering the site to the district free of charge.

Figures already supplied for the remaining Diamond Bar site on Golden Springs Road by the Transamerica Development Co. place total development cost of that site at $2,930,595. This price includes a $978,750 cost for purchasing the land.

Both sites have the capability of eventually providing an approximate 36 usable acres of land, depending on the type of grading plan used.

The studies authorized Thursday night should provide even more accurate cost information on the two sites; particularly the type and hardness ot the soil that will be moved.

Assistant Supt. for Business Lynn Rountree suggested, and the board approved, hiring a firm in no way related to either the Phillips Ranch or Diamond Bar developments to conduct the tests and engineering studies.

Restraint due on tax boys

It is time for the legislature and the Congress to clean up the act of the income tax collectors. Armed with laws which trample roughshod over civil rights, the income tax boys harass and intimidate honest taxpayers into millions of dollars of excessive payments largely because of the confusion of their own regulations.

To start with, the forms, both federal and state, have become so complicated that anyone reporting anything more than straight wages is well advised to seek professional help.

Unfortunately, even with help the taxpayer has no certainty of filing a return which won't be found faulty. How can your accountant be certain your returns are without error when he is working on false instructions issued by the taxing agencies?

Recently the IRS admitted mistakes had been made in the 192-page instruction manual it issues to all taxpayers to assist them in filing their returns. If the initial form was not confusing enough, the errata sheet issued thereafter served to thoroughly foul up understanding.

Similarly, the state Franchise Tax Board issued a newsletter on Feb. 11 which went only to the professional tax preparers advising them of errors made in the instruction pamphlets sent to more than eight million Californians.

When the taxpayer makes a mistake, he must pay for it. But who pays for the mistakes made by the tax officials? Right, the taxpayer.

For the law provides that a taxpayer may be liable for interest and penalties, including fines and jail, for errors in returns. Also the professional tax preparers not only are liable for malpractice suit damages to their clients for errors but can be fined by the IRS for negligent advice to taxpayers which result in the payment of less than full tax liabilities. (IRS will not fine a tax preparer found negligently requiring clients to overpay their taxes.)

Such penalties may be applied even when it can be proved that the taxpayer or preparer was acting on the advice of the IRS manual or one of its agents.

The fact the legislature has been busy seeking a solution to property tax relief shouldn't serve to ignore the critical need for review of the state's tax collection operations. To a far greater degree, that need also exists in Washington. Nothing should convince the congressmen more of that need than the recent utterances of Jerome Kurtz, the new director of IRS.

In his view taxpayers should be required to notify IRS of any deductions of which the taxpayer is uncertain and be subject to a penalty for failure to snitch on himself.

As ridiculous as it sounds, such a rule might not be too difficult. All the taxpayer need do is include a statement to-wit: "The complexity of your form together with the errors in your instructions, compounded by the conflicting rulings received from your agents, make me uncertain of my deductions."

Seriously, honest citizens have every right to get straight answers from tax officials which will be binding upon the government. The Congress and legislature should insure this in the law.

Think on these things

Somewhere in a field of deep, golden wheat, there is usually a dog named Gus . . . he is my walking companion at any hour I choose to go . . . and then he disappears into that golden sea and there's not a ripple, not a stir . . . until he is at the far side and he lifts his head to check where I am.

I often stand watching . . . trying to detect where he is and what he is doing . . . but there isn't a hint and I have to wait until the right time . . . like so many of my ideas and thoughts and prayers . . . they go out and I try to see what they are accomplishing . . . and like Gus, I know they are out there . . . because I sent them out, but if I waited for them I wouldn't get anything else done . . . so I go patiently on down the lane . . . and pretty soon, like Gus, they catch up with me . . . and I'm glad to see them.

* * *

Have we forgotten the importance of good manners and respect in all our relationships? . . . Have we not realized that these things are the best adhesives . . . surpassing even beauty and going beyond many other things considered all important?

Showing good manners is simply being well-behaved, kindly and gentle . . . treating someone else the way we want to be treated . . . being tactful when the opportunity calls for firmness.

Good breeding shows not just in dealing with what one considers equals or superiors . . . but with everyone and everything. . . showing that there is also respect for self . . . for without that there's only fear and uneasiness in any relationship . . . as Emerson said, "Manners are the happy ways of doing things."

Who's to set energy prices?

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Writer

WASHINGTON — Energy policy discussions always raise one fundamental question — should a free market or the government determine energy prices?

Without an answer, effective national energy direction is impossible.

And the answer has eluded us since doubts about free enterprise discretion surfaced late in the 19th century.

The Sherman Anti-Trust Act and the Clayton Act were manifestations of those 19th century doubts. Those doubts in 1911 proved warranted.

This century began with no energy industry competition. One company, Standard Oil of New Jersey, controlled more than 60 per cent of the crude oil and 64 per cent of all the refining.

In 1911 the Supreme Court ruled Standard Oil a monopoly and broke the giant up, restoring competition to the energy market.

The court was concerned with maintaining free enterprise, not with controlling energy prices.

More than four decades later (1954), the Supreme Court again decided a question of energy price controls.

Its decision which permitted government control of some natural gas prices ignited the government-vs.-free market pricing debate.

A pay-off scandal forced a veto of a deregulation bill or the debate might have ended in 1956. The scandal haunted deregulation and a plentiful supply of natural gas eased regulatory pain, so the status quo existed for nearly 20 years.

Then came the energy crisis and gasless winters and again we are faced with the question — should a free market or the government determine energy prices?

What will be the answer? The President and Congress must decide.

Mr. Carter as a candidate advocated trial deregulation. As President he prefers government control.

Congress is divided. The Senate, last session, approved the first deregulation legislation since 1956, but only of new gas. Last week a House subcommittee narrowly approved a similar bill. What the full House will do is anybody's guess.

Complete deregulation is no more than a gleam in an energy producer's eye. So the answer will probably be more of the same — government price control, with exceptions.

Castro aimed plot at Nixon

WASHINGTON — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, himself the intended victim of U.S. assassination attempts, plotted in 1969 to send frogmen on a commando raid against then President Richard Nixon's vacation home at Key Biscayne, Fla.

The secret plan called for the underwater raiders to blow up the winter White House. It is unknown whether Castro expected them to catch the American President on the premises and kill him in the explosion.

The only hint of the plot appeared afterward in a cryptic State Department announcement that a Cuban official at the United Nations, named Lazara Eddy Espinosa Bonet, had been asked to leave the country. The statement explained tersely that his expulsion was related to the "security" of the office of the president."

From intelligence sources, we have now learned the suppressed details. It should be emphasized that the raid was a contingency plan and that no known attempt was made to implement it.

But Espinosa Bonet tried to recruit a Cuban-American servant inside the Nixon compound to bug the President's seaside villa and to draw up blueprints of the security arrangements.

To coerce the servant, the Castro agent threatened him and his family in Cuba with physical harm. The frightened servant was told that he would be provided with microtransmitters, which he should plant throughout the Nixon home. These would have to be monitored by Cuban agents in Miami or aboard fishing boats off the Florida coast.

The requested blueprints would have been used to guide the attacking frogmen. Our intelligence sources speculated that the raiders would have sought first to blow up the communications complex inside the Nixon compound. Then, presumably, they would have struck the Nixon home itself.

Despite the threats, the servant refused to betray Nixon and informed U.S. authorities of the plot. The servant's story, though vague on some details, was convincing enough for the State Department to expel Espinosa Bonet.

If Castro would consider sending frogmen against Nixon, some investigators wonder whether he might have instigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. We first raised this possibility on March 3, 1967.

We had learned that the CIA, using Mafia killers, had tried to eliminate Fidel Castro. This was at the time, we reported, that Robert Kennedy "was riding herd on the agency." We questioned whether Kennedy "may have approved an assassination plot, which then possibly backfired against his late brother."

Former aides of the late Robert Kennedy have now confided that he was furious over our column. It was published at a time of strained relations between Kennedy and then-President Lyndon Johnson. Kennedy thought Johnson had leaked the story to us.

The aides recall, significantly, Kennedy acknowledged to them that our story was correct about the assassination plot. But he denied that he had approved the plot; he told them, on the contrary, that he had stopped it.

It took us until January 1971 to get the details of the CIA attempts upon Castro's life — details that were denied at the time but were confirmed last year by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

In a series of columns we told how the CIA had recruited Mafia mobsters who made six attempts to kill Castro. We named the mobsters and their CIA contacts. And again, we raised the possibility that Castro had retaliated against John F. Kennedy because of the CIA plot upon his own life.

Significantly, the attempts to knock off Castro continued through 1963 until he angrily warned on Sept. 7, 1963, that he was aware of the CIA's efforts, that two could play the same game and that U.S. leaders would no longer be safe. Some two months later, President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas.

Last week, CBS in a two-hour television documentary stressed the theory that Castro had retaliated against Kennedy. Sen. Robert Morgan, D.-N.C., who played an active role for 18 months in the Senate investigation of the CIA-Castro caper, was quoted.

"I believe the circumstances in this case are so strong," he said, "that they convince me beyond every reasonable doubt that the assassination of our President was an act of retaliation for what we had tried to do in eliminating Castro."

The Cuban leader responded with a vigorous denial. "It would have been absolute insanity," he declared. The CBS moderator, Bill Moyers, carefully termed the retaliation theory as "unsubstantiated speculation."

Keynes out, conservatives in Economics has to be the most inexact science.

The rules considered inviolable for generations don't work any more.

What it means to you is: Houses used to depreciate, used to become worth less each year. Now they become worth more each year.

Raw land used to be a sure-fire investment. Now your profits from raw land appreciation can be consumed by increased taxes.

It used to be assumed that the best hedge against inflation — against cheaper dollars — was the stock market.

And that does not hold true any more!

John Maynard Keynes — who figured all those old rules were the last word, who created the sacrosanct economic orthodoxy which came to be known as "Keynesian economics" — and his followers would have no way to explain "stagflation."

New-school economists since 1926 have assumed that government had only to "tax and spend" in order to ensure prosperity and full employment.

But we are taxing and spending at a record pace — and we are still bedeviled by too much inflation and too much unemployment at the same time.

Keynesian economists had figured that when you have large numbers unemployed, they would lack buying power, and the result would depress business.

But today's unemployed may have more after-tax dollars to spend than many employed, thus, "stagflation."

Keynes' theories were somewhat more complex than I have described but, in essence, he led generations of us to assume that high demand must be maintained regardless of its unbalancing effect on the budget.

Pay everybody enough money and the demand for goods and services would ensure prosperity.

Keynes had little respect for such virtues as "thrift, industry and diligence."

And he did not anticipate the manner in which continuing budget deficits would make money worth less, that heavier taxation would tend to stifle economic expansion.

Thus the Keynesians did not anticipate stagflation.

Thus we are turning back to the more conservative economics of laissez-faire with modifications to match entrenched government programs.

Thus it is that the Nobel Prize now goes to the most conservative economist — Milt Friedman.

He urges progressively less government interference with the marketplace.

He says Britain is doing so badly because the British government tried to spend itself rich. Governments, even as people, can only spend themselves poor.

He says Japan is doing well because Japan's government spending is one-third what Britain's is, one-half what ours is.

Where does he say you should invest any surplus money today?

He considers any fixed-value investment — such as United States Savings Bonds — "a ripoff." He favors, instead, putting surplus private savings in "things." He suggests things such as art, which you can enjoy while it appreciates.

Many islands dot coastline

By EARL G. WATERS

One of the oddities of life is the fact that people often know more about distant lands than their own. This seems to be true of Californians with reference to the islands of the Pacific.

Most are well informed about the Hawaiian Islands, especially since the islands' achievement of statehood. And because of World War II, many have an awareness of the islands constituting Micronesia and Melanesia, as well as the Philippines and, of course, Japan. Some even know of the Aleutians.

But what does the average Californian know about the islands in the Pacific no more than 10 to 60 miles off the coast of their own state?

Some may be surprised even to know there are any islands that near to the shores but, according to F.D. Uzes of the State Lands Commission, there are probably 1,000 offshore islands dotting the coastline "depending upon what you want to call an island." Some are no more than large rocks but at least nine are large enough to support human life, although many more are habitats for birds and marine life such as otters and seals.

That the islands are not household topics of conversation is understandable. Although a part of California, they are all either under the jurisdiction of the federal government or, in the case of three, in private ownership. In either case, excepting for Catalina, none are open to public visitors.

The principal offshore islands are divided into two groups. Anyone who has ever arrived in San Francisco via ship will have at least a vague knowledge of the existence of the Farallon Islands standing sentinel 28 miles outside the Golden Gate.

The group, consisting of three clusters spreading over about 12 miles, divides into the Southeast, Middle and North Farallons, all under the ownership of the federal government. Total land area is about 220 acres, 70 of which comprise the Southeast Island which is adjoined by several "rocks" for a total area of 120 acres. Atop the highest peak, rising 340 feet above the sea, the United States maintains the lighthouse to warn approaching ships. None of the Middle or North islands are as large which accounts for the name given the islands by the Spanish which means "little pointed islets in the sea."

Far to the south lie the Channel Islands which consist of eight major islands adjoined by "rocks," the most noted being Santa Catalina, acquired by chewing gum magnate William Wrigley and developed as a resort area where an earlier generation romanced to such tunes as "I found my love in Avalon." Two other islands which, with Catalina, represent the largest of the group, are the 62,000-acre Santa Cruz and 55,000-acre Santa Rosa islands. They are some 20 miles off Santa Barbara and are also in private ownership. Title to the three islands stems from Spanish land grants. Santa Cruz, the largest island, 21 miles long and five miles wide, is used for livestock ranching as is Santa Rosa.

The five remaining islands, held by the federal government, are San Miguel, Anacapa, Santa Barbara, San Nicolas and San Clemente. Excepting for the latter, which is the most distant, being 18 miles beyond Catalina, all are protected as wildlife areas. San Clemente, however, has been used extensively by the Navy as a bombing range.

The National Park Service administers Anacapa and Santa Barbara islands where lighthouses are maintained by the Coast Guard. Also protected by the Park Service is the 13-acre Sutil Island offshore of Santa Barbara Island. The Navy administers San Miguel Island as well as its offshore 10-acre Prince Island.

Ann Landers

Nasty men—our customers

Dear Ann Landers: I am employed by a small contractor. In all my years of working I have never run across such rude, ignorant, and downright nasty men — or customers. I'm not into Women's Lib, but believe me, I can understand why some women are.

I received a call today from a customer (male) who, when I answered the phone, said, "Let me talk to a man."

I'm the only person in this office. The men who work here are laborers in the plant. I asked the "gentleman" what he wanted to know and said politely, "Perhaps I can help you." He replied, "I doubt very much if a dumb broad could answer my questions."

I kept my cool and replied, "Well, sir, this dumb broad would like to try." I answered all his questions and he was very apologetic when the conversation ended.

At least 20 times a day a man will call and say, "Let me talk to someone who knows something." They just don't believe a woman can have any brains in this business. Why? — Burned Up

Dear B.: Because they are ignorant and unsophisticated — conditioned by years of sexist nonsense. But cheer up, lovey, the game is changing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing for my mother. When I visited her last week she showed me a newspaper clipping my father had pasted on a piece of paper and left out for her to see. It said wives of government pensioners who killed their husbands couldn't collect any benefits.

Mom then told me that Father has been accusing her of trying to poison him for the last 30 years. Whenever he gets a fever blister or a stomach ache, he's sure a plot is at work.

My father is in debt up to his neck. He doesn't have a savings account so there is no possibility of an inheritance. Except for this quirk, he's a very sweet man.

What can be done about this, Ann? — Their Daughter

Dear Daughter: Your father's "quirk" is a classic symptom of mental illness. If you could persuade that "sweet man" to get some counseling it might help. If he refuses to go, your mother should go — for HER sake. She needs some understanding of his illness in order to deal with it realistically.

Dear Ann: What is wrong with a grown woman who uses offensive language — I mean the dirtiest four-letter words you can think of, in the presence of her refined, cultivated mother? This woman brings up subjects that pertain to sex in a manner more befitting a stag party than a tea in her mother's gracious home.

I find it astonishing that this foul-mouthed daughter continues to embarrass everyone within ear-shot. Stranger still, her mother never bats an eye. It's as if she doesn't hear a thing. Can you explain it? — My Lobes Are Burning

Dear Lobes: The daughter is letting the world know (in an immature and disgusting manner) that she is not under her mother's thumb. People who use four-letter words in the presence of those who find such language offensive are trying to prove something.

Mother probably "plays deaf" because she doesn't want a confrontation — or she's already had one and lost.

World's first oyster cocktail

In 1866, a California miner walked into a bar and ordered a shot of whiskey and a plate of raw oysters. He downed the drink, but the oysters kept slipping around the plate, so he poured them into the empty shot glass and doused them with ketchup and hot sauce. Historians say that was the first oyster cocktail. The miner talked so loud and long about how good it was that the bartender decided to sell the concoction for 50 cents a glass.

Q. "How can you stiffen nylon curtains?"

A. 1. Mix a little cold water with one tablespoon of gelatin. 2. Add two quarts of boiling water. 3. Dip curtains while still wet from washing into galatin solution. 4. Squeeze and roll in towel. 5. Iron while still damp but not wet. The stiffer you want your curtains, the less water you use to make your solution.

ANIMAL LIFE

Were you aware that about 45 per cent of this earth's animal life is in the oceans?

Look at these numbers. 8. 5. 4. 9. 1. 7. 6. 3. 2. What order are they in? Spring this query at the dinner table. The party who says "alphabetical order" gets dessert.

Feline falls too common

FELINE FALLS . . . Are all too common any time of year, but more so in good weather, when sliding doors open onto balconies, and windows are left wide open. Cats love fresh air and sunshine. They prefer perching on balconies and windowsills. Unfortunately, many of these are in apartment buildings several stories high. It's a bad combination for cat survival. Owners have a false sense of security about their cat's ability to retain its perch on a windowsill. Unfortunately, cats do fall asleep and roll off. They can also lean too far out toward a passing bird or insect. Many simply slip. Cats have survived an 18-floor fall onto concrete — but many have succumbed to a fall of three floors.

Those cats that do survive have given rise to a new designation for the syndrome of injuries. It's called HRS — the high rise trauma syndrome.

While an amazing number of cats do survive these falls, with intensive treatment, all to many are DOA, or succumb to injuries later. The important thing here is that this constantly recurring tragedy is unnecessary, and cannot occur if windows and doors are screened, or if unscreened windows have a safety latch so they can only open less than a cat's width. Complacency concerning windowsill-perching cats (on the second floor or above) is misplaced. Cats can and do fall, often to their deaths. You can protect yours — and should.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is there any objection to using colored gravel in the fish tank? — K.E.

DEAR K.E.: If the colored gravel you use is aesthetically pleasing, and it's a natural product, proven safe to use in a tank, then why not? Dyed gravel is something else. It's undesirable. The colors often can tint the water and, more importantly, may alter its chemistry.

DEAR DR. MILLER: There must be some way to tell whether parakeet seed is nice and fresh or not. Is there? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Fresh seed should be clean, plump, and shiny. One test for nutritional value is to keep a layer of seed between moistened blotters, or use one of the currently available seed sprouters to see what percentage of your parakeet seed will actually sprout. If most of it does indeed sprout, it's fresh and nutritious. If only a small percentage of this bird seed sprouts, you should seek a better batch.

Big salaries don't make cents

Did you hear about the guy who inherited $1 million and ran it into a fortune?

John Jacob Astor once said, "A man who has a million dollars is as well off as if he were rich."

Time Magazine recently turned its all-seeing I on the recent crop of nouveau riche, many of them quite young, who have graduated abruptly into megabucks. Time calls them "the hot new rich,' people like Muhammed Ali who g $5 million for mugging somebody in South Africa; Marlon Barndo — $2.5 million for cavorting in front of a camera; and Catfish Hunter, who earns about $1 million a year for occasionally striking out opponents of the New York Yankees. Johnny Carson gets $3 million a year; President Carter gets $200,000 per annum. Obviously the latter is working for peanuts. How about a Jimmy Carter Show? "And now . . . herrrre's Jimmy!"

Time ponderously enemerates reasons why some Americans live like Russian czars (pre-revolution) while the rest of society is peasants — ability, talent, hard work, luck — but aside from business acumen and the Protestant work ethic (Why is it a Protestant work ethic? Don't the Catholics work, too?) it is a matter of how many people will pay how much to see you doing what you do best. Bill Walton, Thurmon Munson, Steve Cauthen, Elizabeth Taylor, John Denver, Jack Nicklaus, Joe Namath — each is worth a king's ransom in coin of the realm because each brings in to the coffers many times the investment. Sports writers have measured with computer-like accuracy the increase of crowds at Dodger Stadium when Sandy Koufax was scheduled to pitch. Opera buffs could do the same when Beverly Sills would sing; the names of Nureyev and Fonteyn are box office gold.

Time rightly attributes much of this instant wealth to what it calls "the great Golconda of TV." (I looked it up for you — a city in 16th Century India famous for diamond cutting, hence any source of great wealth. You're welcome.) Baseball players once performed for the crowd in the ball park, then to radio audiences and now to televiewers. Exposure. Some 70 million people watched the last World Series — and advertisers were eager to lay out $250,000 for a half-minute pitch in all those homes. (Imagine kicking a ground ball in front of 70 million people. And then doing it again on instant replay! These guys earn their money.)

Accompanying the Time piece was a box of "a random sample of pay" that brought the rumble of the tumbrels to my ears. Annual salary for a trial lawyer in Washington D.C., was $500, 000. And that's just a TRIAL lawyer. Think what a REAL lawyer must get paid! Chairman of Dow Chemical, $453,000. he could buy a lot of chemicals for that. And so on down the line. A U.S. Senator ($57,500) makes less than a charter fishing boat skipper ($60,000) but more than a truck driver ($30,000). A junior high school teacher in Evanston, Ill., makes more ($19,500) than an assistant professor at Yale University ($14,750). And deserves it. Junior high school teachers should get combat pay.

But imagine making half a million dollars a year! The IRS would take $300,000 and your wife would take $100,000, but that would still leave you $100,000 to fool around with — buy a tankful of gas, a pound of coffee, maybe a couple of tickets to a Rams game. I guess it wouldn't last long, at that.

Joe Morgan, second baseman for the Cincinnati Reds, makes $500,000 a year compared to Carter's $200,000. Half a million to be a MVP in an athletic contest; less than half that to run run the most powerful nation in the world.

Asks Morgan, "Can the President hit Tom Seaver?"

Dr. Lamb

Skin ulcer on foot

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any cure for a skin ulcer, which is the result of poor circulation. The ulcer is on the top of my husband's foot at the ankle area. He is a victim of strokes.

DEAR READER — What needs to be done depends entirely on what is causing the ulcer. I suspect from its location that it is caused by varicose veins, not from inadequate blood flow through the arteries to the foot. If it is arterial disease the bottom of the foot or the toes are more often affected first.

Varicose ulcers of the ankle area are a complication of varicose veins. The best approach is to decrease the pooling of blood in the lower part of the foot by using support stockings or elastic bandages. Another solution is to get the foot up above the heart level so that the veins drain down hill toward the heart. If a person can stay in bed enough that will sometimes help heal such an ulcer. The problem is that the bed rest can be harmful too.

A good compromise is to wrap the foot or put on effective support hose before getting out of bed and then when sitting up keep the foot elevated as much as possible.

To give you more information about the treatment of varicose ulcers and the role of surgery in varicose veins I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What exactly is cancer? What actually causes it?

DEAR READER — Our cells are capable of reproducing themselves. Your skin is a good example. The skin cells constantly produce new cells. The older cells migrate to the surface and are flaked off. The reptiles shed the old skin.

A cancer is nothing more than the normal cell growth gone wild. Let's say it is a cancer of the liver. The liver cells involved become abnormal in that they rapidly reproduce and the new cells are different from the original cell structure of liver cells. Usually the greater the difference is the more malignant the cancer will be.

This cancer would be a primary cancer of the liver. If some of the abnormal cells are carried by the blood or lymph to distant parts of the body they can start another area of cancer growth there. The cells in this new area will be similar or even identical to the cancer cells in the liver. This is a metastasis or spread of cancer. When a pathologist looks at the cancer tissue, regardless of where the tissue comes from he can usually tell where the original or primary cancer started.

We know there are many different things that can cause normal cells to become abnormal and start the wild growth pattern. Tars as found in cigarette smoke is one example. Radiation is another example. At least in some animal experiments virus infections can be a factor. Apparently anything that upsets the cell's normal reproduction cycle is capable of triggering cancer growth. That is why cancer may be several different diseases and may be caused by many factors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be compelled to make a decision today that seems stern to those involved. Letting sentiment cloud the picture will ruin its effectiveness.

ACQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One who is jealous may downgrade your efforts today. Don't let this disturb you if you know you've done your very best.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Bear in mind that your true friends admire you for what you are. It's unnecessary to put on airs or create illusions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Being too ambivalent is no way to handle those under your wing today. You can't be too firm on one hand — or overly lenient on the other.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In a matter where something of value is at stake today there's a possibility the other party is not as ethical as yourself. Be alert.

The trump lead made it impossible for South to ruff two hearts in dummy. Every card was wrong in the side suits, yet South found a play for his contract in spite of the bludgeonings of chance.

He won the lead in dummy, cashed the ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart, drew trumps, led his last heart to catch East in an end play at trick seven.

East had done his best to avoid this by throwing the eight of clubs on the third trump lead so as to keep that fifth heart in his hand, but this did him no good at all. When East led that fifth heart, South just chucked his singleton club.

Now if East led a diamond, South would lose just one diamond trick. If he led a club it would set up dummy's king and again South would lose just one diamond trick. Either way, South was sure of 10 tricks.

TUG OF WAR

Mudslinging: not dirty politics, just good, clean (?) fun

NEWINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Politicians are nothing but a bunch of mudslingers, right?

Last Sunday afternoon a gang of politicians gathered in the park. They brought their families and picnic lunches and also hauled a load of fine red dirt from beside the road and piled it in the shade of a big maple tree.

They fetched buckets of water from the park pond and mixed it with the dirt. Their children helped, with obvious delight and anticipation. Soon it was mud. The kids squeezed it through their fingers and approved.

The politicians took up handfuls of the mud, stood back and let fly. They slung mud at one another, the children slung mud at the politicians, the politicians at the children. Everybody ran around slinging mud.

"Dirty politics," said Paul Ucello, Democrat.

"Muddy but unbowed," said Bill LaPorte, Republican.

When it was over the politicians clasped each other's slimy hands, slapped each other's splattered backs, laughed at each other's grimy faces and headed for the keg.

"Did you enjoy it?" asked LaPorte, toweling off his wristwatch. "Meet Bunny Husmer. She's the nut over whose kitchen table this crazy idea was hatched."

"I confess," Mrs. Husmer said, shaking mud out of her hair.

"We were sitting around trying to think up ways to get more people involved, to take an interest in the town. It was late, we were all tired, ready to go home, when suddenly we came up with the idea of a mud-slinging contest. It was so silly we figured it might work."

The challenge was issued forthwith to the Democrats and accepted grandly, not only to a mud-slinging contest but also to a tug-of-war across the park pond.

At a time when the dirt of less literal mudslinging, and worse, has not yet worn off the American politician's image, there they were, the town's councilmen, school board members, zoning commissioners and all their families, out on a Sunday afternoon cooking hamburgers and playing in the mud.

Ludicrous? It was a joy to behold.

"In 15 years I've watched this town grow from 15,000 to about 28,000," said Councilman Ucello. "We not only grew fast, we grew apart. This is the sort of town event that can get us all together. I think it's a great idea — even if it was the Republicans'."

Republican LaPorte laughed.

"In a small town, your political opponents are also your neighbors. Politics has never been dirty in Newington," LaPorte said. "We go after each other on issues, but we work together. I'd like to see us work together and make this an annual event."

For the record, the Democrats seemed to get the worst of the mudslinging but redeeomed themselves in the tug-of-war.

The rope was stretched across a corner of the pond. LaPorte gave a rousing pep talk to his stalwart tuggers. Ucello did too, but also donned a life jacket. Ready, set, tug!

The rope held. The Republicans didn't. LaPorte picked himself up and presented Ucello with the grand prize, a toy elephant.

"Next year," LaPorte said, "why don't we invite the muckraking reporters? They can prepare the mud pile."

Campaign to ban abortions now picking up steam

By Associated Press

The drive to ban abortion picked up steam this year as seven state legislatures passed resolutions urging enactment of a constitutional amendment to make termination of pregnancy illegal in most cases.

Backers of the so-called "Right to Life" amendment still have a long way to go, however, before achieving their goal.

The drive for an amendment has been spearheaded by Right to Life groups whose members gathered Thursday in Chicago for a four-day national convention. The session drew an advance registration of more than 2,000.

Among items on the program was an opening-day speech by Dr. William C. Brennan, professor in the school of social services at St. Louis University, a Roman Catholic institution, on "The Medical Holocaust: Physicians as Executioners in Nazi Germany and Contemporary America." Cowboy stars Roy Rogers and Dale Evans were scheduled to appear at a Friday night rally.

The Right to Life movement sprang up following a Supreme Court ruling, in 1973, which legalized most abortions, while allowing states to set certain limitations in the latter stages of pregnancy. Opponents of the ruling argue that the court ignored the rights of the fetus and contend that the unborn child is entitled to constitutional protections granted others.

Article V of the U.S. Constitution provides that amendments may be initiated by Congress or by a constitutional convention, called at the request of legislatures of two-thirds of the states. To become law, an amendment must be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

Thus far, abortion opponents have failed in Congress, but they have fared better at the state level. Four states, Louisiana, Missouri, Indiana and Minnesota, approved resolutions prior to 1977 calling for a constitutional convention to pass an antiabortion amendment. Approval of similar bills came this year in Massachusetts, Arkansas, Rhode Island, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and New Jersey.

An Associated Press survey showed resolutions for a constitutional convention are pending in six states and are given a good chance of passage in two of them. Antiabortion proposals were defeated in 12 states and the amendment was not an issue in the remaining 21 states.

The AP survey showed that most of the antiabortion measures are similar to the one passed in North Dakota, calling for adoption of a constitutional amendment to "guarantee the explicit protection of all unborn human life throughout its intrauterine development subordinate only to saving the life of the mother ..."

The measure was approved in North Dakota with little controversy, but the issue evoked heated and often emotional debate elsewhere.

In Rhode Island, state Sen. Stephen J. Fortunato Jr. unsuccessfully attempted to amend the measure to exempt women who had been raped or whose health was in danger. "No one would stand aside if their wife ... or daughter were raped," he said. "There is no force on earth ... that is going to keep my daughter, if she is raped, from getting an abortion."

The sponsor of the antiabortion measure in Utah says he won't stop with the single resolution approved earlier this year. State Rep. Roger Livingston said he plans to introduce future bills, including one to declare the anniversary of the Supreme Court decision on abortion "a day of mourning in Utah." Livingston said: "In Utah, a 16-year-old girl can't get her ears pierced without her parents' consent, but she can get an abortion."

In New York, the state Senate passed a bill 35 to 22 on June 1 urging an antiabortion amendment. Sen. Karen Burstein told supporters of the measure: "You'll return us to coathangers and lye, the way we terminated pregnancies before the liberalized laws."

AND THERE WAS NOTHING — This was Jackie Wilson, left, in 1961, a top singer billed as "Mr. Excitement." Today, right, he is a patient in a New Jersey nursing home, unable to speak or feed himself. He suffered a heart attack and brain damage when he collapsed on a night club stage 21 months ago. On his 43rd birthday, June 9, he got six cards.

'Mr. Excitement' bedridden

MEDFORD, N.J. (AP) — Singer Jackie Wilson, once billed as "Mr. Excitement" for his flashy style and high-geared performances, now lies bedridden in a convalescent home, unable to speak or to feed himself.

His voice is quiet except for occasional grunts that may be efforts at formulating words. He communicates by blinking his eyes. His meals consist of baby food.

On Thursday, Wilson, a top artist for nearly two decades, marked his 43rd birthday at the Medford Leas Retirement Community, a nursing home here.

He received six birthday cards.

Wilson, whose hit songs include "Lonely Teardrops," "Higher and Higher," and "To Be Loved," suffered a heart attack as well as brain damage when he collapsed on a nightclub stage 21 months ago and lapsed into a coma.

Since then, he has been in three hospitals and three nursing homes or convalescent centers.

He undergoes rigorous physical therapy for several hours each day. The official prognosis is uncertain.

Joyce McRae, a friend from Chicago who takes care of Wilson, described the singer as "incapacitated, spastic, handicapped." She said, however, that he definitely is not in the vegetable state he was considered to be in shortly after he collapsed.

"He's come a long way," said Ms. McRae, who said she thinks Wilson may be on the verge of uttering his first words since his attack and may soon be able to stand on his own.

Ms. McRae said few people visit or call and Wilson receives little mail.

"He can understand love and he can understand if people are caring about him," she said. "I am disgusted and very disheartened that only lip service has been paid to him by his 'friends and superstars' in show business."

Wilson's life is also complicated by legal and financial problems.

Two women claiming to be his wife have sought to become his guardian. Both women testified at a hearing in Camden County Court that Wilson married each, without benefit of a divorce.

The Internal Revenue is trying to collect $234,000 in alleged upaid income taxes and penalties dating to 1964.

Wilson's court-appointed lawyer has sued a New York record company, claiming it is withholding money from the singer.

Ms. McRae said she is hopeful Wilson may recover. "As long as there's life, there's a chance of recovery," she said.

Klondike Park opened

SKAGWAY, Alaska (AP) — The sounds of bawdy bars once kept people awake in this old Gold Rush crossroads. There was a day when a young lad could play pool with Jack London or shiver in his boots when an outlaw lost his life in a Main Street gunfight.

The 800 people here today sleep soundly through nights stirred only by the wind, but they remember what was.

This past weekend the residents celebrated the opening of the Klondike Historical Park, a U.S.-Canadian project to commemorate one of the great gold rushes on the North American continent.

Skagway is the headquarters of the park, which has satellites in Washington state, Alaska and Canada.

There's a small memorial in Pioneer Square in Seattle, the jumping off point for those struck with gold fever. The killer "Trail of 98" leading north from Skagway across Chilkoot Pass to the Klondike gold fields in Canada's Yukon Territory also is part of the park.

Once the Alaska gold rush began in July of 1897, the stampede to the Klondike and Northwest Canada was on.

A Northwest Mounted Police report of 1898 said 5,000 persons arrived in Skagway during the month of February alone. The same report says the town quickly became "little better than hell on earth."

Ships came jammed with treasure seekers, cattle, horses, food, equipment and outlaws like Jefferson Randolph "Soapy" Smith.

"Every other place was a saloon or a gambling parlor or a pool hall. And Soapy was the leader of the gangster people who would rob your money by hook or crook," recalled 94-year-old Bobby Sheldon.

Sheldon is one of the few remaining witnesses to the gunfight that killed Soapy. Sheldon, who left Skagway in 1908 and now lives in Fairbanks, was 15 when the shooting occurred on July 8, 1898.

Somehow Frank Reid, an early arrival, and Soapy tangled. A gun battle followed and both men were fatally wounded. Sheldon remembers that no one would go near Soapy.

"He was sprawled out with his Stetson lying there ... but nobody dared put his feet together to place his hands over his heart. They didn't dare show sympathy for fear somebody would pull out a gun."

Canals

One of the busiest canals in Europe is the Gota, crossing Sweden for 115 miles and linking the Baltic Sea south of Stockholm with the Danish Straits between the Baltic and North seas. Other major European canals are the Kiel, 61 miles, and the Elbe, 41 miles, both in Germany; the Amsterdam, 16 miles, in the Netherlands, and the Manchester Ship Canal, 35.5 miles, in England.

Women criminals scheduled to spend more time in prison

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Women criminals in California generally will be locked up longer — in some cases twice as long as before — because of the fixed-term sentencing law that takes effect July 1, officials say.

That's because women, generally given lighter sentences under the old system, are supposed to be treated the same as men under the law that ends the 60-year-old indeterminate sentencing system.

For example, women convicted of manslaughter who were paroled in 1974-75 served an average of 27 months in prison, compared to an average for men of 48 months. The statutory sentence was six months to 15 years.

Under the new law, the fixed terms are 2, 3 or 4 years — for both men and women, with discretion left to judges to impose the term with probation added.

Take second-degree murder, a 5, 6 or 7-year penalty under the new law. Women, under the old five-year to life sentence, averaged two years in prison in 1972-73. Men released in 1975 averaged 5½ years.

Toni Rudillo, head of the women's parole board, said of the prospect for longer terms for women who commit crimes after July 1:

"That's true, as far as initial incarceration goes. In the past, women spent less time, generally speaking. Now, for the same types of offenders, sentences go up in almost every category.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's one of the bad effects of the new law."

But she quickly added that determinate sentencing is "a good idea" because it gives the convicts — and the public — a concept of how much prison time will be served.

It will be up to judges whether offenders receive minimum, middle or maximum terms.

Howard Way, chairman of the state Adult Authority, and Ms. Rudillo agreed that women often will receive the minimum sentence. Fewer women have violent criminal histories, they said. But the fixed minimum terms are still about as long or longer than actual times served by women in the past.

"Actually, most women are not in on crimes of violence," Way said. "If they get sentenced for armed robbery ... maybe they should be treated exactly as men."

Way said some feminists would be offended if treatment were not equal.

Patricia Holder of the Prisoners' Union, a convicts' rights group, said: "I'm not advocating longer sentences by any means, but I've talked to the women in prison and they would rather do double time than do time under the Adult Authority. They'd rather know how much time they'll spend."

A LINK MISSING — A Cottonwood, Calif., farm family is seeking the missing link to complete their haywire household — one individual of the human persuasion. They belong to John and Shirley Phillips and it all started when the duck built a nest in the tall pasture grass. The other animals in their daily foraging trampled the grass down to where the duck was roasting in the summer sun. Phillips took pity and grabbed an old sign off his woodpile and drove it in next to the nest to provide shade. A few days later he noticed the humorous wording as the other animals gathered around, perhaps to wait for the duck to hatch the eggs.

Six-year mystery

No trace yet of missing coed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Countless skeletons and Corvettes have been checked, but no trace has yet been found of an 18-year-old coed who disappeared more than six years ago on the Hollywood Freeway.

Robin Graham vanished one night after she called her parents to say she had run out of gas near the Santa Monica Boulevard off-ramp. Her unsolved disappearance is strikingly similar to at least two others in the Los Angeles area.

A California Highway Patrol officer who saw Miss Graham that night said she had been talking to a man next to her disabled car. A blue Corvette was sitting nearby.

The officer had stopped earlier to see if she needed help, as required by CHP policy, but Miss Graham told him help was already coming. The officer later assumed the man in the Corvette was that help.

A year-and-a-half before Miss Graham's November, 1970 disappearance, an abandoned car with a flat tire was found on the same freeway by the Highland Avenue off-ramp. The car's owner, Rose Tashman, 19, was later discovered in a ravine off Mulholland Drive. She had been raped and strangled.

In June, 1975, Mona Jean Gallegos apparently ran out of gas on the San Bernardino Freeway near El Monte. Her car was found locked and empty. Skeletal remains of the 23 year-old woman were discovered almost six months later in a Riverside ravine.

Both the Tashman and Gallegos cases remain unsolved.

Although thousands of days have passed since Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Graham last saw their Pierce College daughter, they continue to check with police every few weeks for new developments.

In the beginning, Los Angeles police homicide Sgt. Don Ham said he followed up innumerable tips on the mysterious Corvette. "I must have checked millions of blue Corvettes," said Ham. "I was checking Corvettes until I was going nuts."

Ham added that he continues to check skeletons. "We thought she had been found in Pennsylvania over a year ago," he said. "They came across a skeleton there. A bunch of pathologists put it together and even had a drawing made of what the woman would look like. It kind of looked like Robin."

But dental charts showed it was not.

The Grahams "won't ever give up," said Ham. "They still feel she's alive somewhere. They always want to have that feling that she's going to walk through the door someday."

Over loss of homes

Legal battle will test state law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Willia V. Moore of Watts didn't pay a streetlight assessment, the city in effect sold her $30,000 home for $173.70 and now she faces eviction. Her plight is stirring a court test of a law which one legal aid lawyer calls "a boondoggle for speculators."

The 66-year-old state law was intended to make street improvement easier. But in the past year alone, the Legal Aid Foundation says, it has cost 143 Los Angeles County residents their homes

"It's unbelievable that all this is happening," said Mrs. Moore a 53-year-old hospital clerk who, according to attorney Ron Javor, bought the duplex for $30,000 in 1955 and paid it off in 1962.

"It's like waking up after a dream and all the parts don t fit. I'm praying for my home every day" she said.

Statewide, according to Legal Aid lawyer Stan DiOrio, "very easily we could be talking about several hundred (home losses) a year."

The problem, says DiOrio, is that the law "does not provide adequate and clear notice for homeowners and taxpayers; (it) provides a boondoggle for speculators."

The Legal Aid Society is helping Mrs. Moore sue the city in state Superior Court on grounds that the Improvement Act of 1911 allows property sales far below real value without enough notice to owners.

The society also says there isn't enough recourse, such as hearings.

Four of Mrs. Moore's six children and two grandchildren live with her. DiOrio said she has dutifully paid property taxes of about $250 a year — even since the house was taken away.

The trouble began when the city put lights on her street in 1971 and assessed the residents. Mrs. Moore said she saw no need for the lights and ignored her bill — originally $121.60.

She says she was told by Councilman John Gibson she would have 10 years to pay, but Gibson's office says it warned her she had to pay.

She ignored foreclosure notices, and the assessment bill was sold in 1974 for $173.70 — the assessment plus such costs as interest — and was later resold to Pauline Rust for $500. Mrs. Moore said she was unaware of either sale until an eviction notice arrived in January.

She has refused to move, and DiOrio says the current owner has now offered to sell the home back to Mrs. Moore for $6,000 rather than market value. "I guess it was her way of being nice," she said.

Under the law, property owners have 30 days to pay an assessment or to make arrangements to pay it in installments over as much as 10 years. If they don't, the city treasurer's office can sell the unpaid bill to anyone interested and must notify the home owner within 30 days of the sale. Full title to the property reverts to the purchaser of the bill if the original owner doesn't buy it back within one to four years — at the price of the assessment plus interest.

Critics of the law say it encourages speculation based on the hope that an unsuspecting homeowner will neglect to buy back the assessment bill and unwittingly lose property worth far more.

Under the law, the original owner must tell the buyer within six months that he intends to buy back the bill. Javor also says a person without legal training would not easily understand the legal notices.

He met Monday with city officials and said they agreed the language should be clearer. But he said the city treasurer would not agree to a moratorium on similar sales until new regulations can be written.

Two months ago, Mrs. Moore mailed a $173 check to the city treasurer in a belated effort to put things right, but he mailed it back.

A Superior Court hearing has been scheduled next Monday.

Much speculation

Carter eyeing fresh travel destinations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 20 years of jet-age travel by American presidents has whittled down the number of White House options for going someplace different, but Jimmy Carter has a searching finger on his world atlas.

The President, who has tried to "break the mold" in approaches to foreign policy, is described by associates as equally eager to seek out fresh travel destinations. Although Carter has said he probably won't go overseas again this year, having visited England and Switzerland last month, aides already are searching out innovative possibilities at his behest.

One who is privy to the preliminary and still-tentative search is pointing to black Africa and Latin America as offering likely prospects, which could be unsettling news to French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

While Carter was in London, he and his French counterpart had a cordial private session during which the American chief executive was invited to visit Paris, preferably in the fall.

The meeting had barely ended when French officials began leaking word that they expected Carter in their capital later this year. The prospect meant a lot to them because, many observers believe, Giscard d'Estaing would welcome whatever coattails Carter might provide for his centerright coalition that faces a major challenge from the left in parliamentary elections next March.

Alas, Carter had hardly had time to read about the French leaks in the European press than he went out of his way to say he had not agreed to make the Paris trip this year but rather had said he would like to visit France at some unspecified, mutually acceptable time.

It is probably pure coincidence that France is the one country where Carter has said he was treated badly during his foreign travels as governor of Georgia. And he surely is no more anxious than Giscard d-Estaing to see the French Communist party score gains in the March balloting.

However, a White House source who should be knowledgeable about the matter reports another Carter trip to Europe this year is quite unlikely. But he did not rule out such a journey before March, and it should be noted that timetables for international economic summits, like the one in London, are somewhat flexible. Another conceivably could be arranged to complement the electoral needs of the French president.

The same source who questioned the likelihood of a quick return to Europe added that travel to some other continent is a possibility for late 1977 or early 1978.

One official suggested that chances of a presidential journey to Latin America were enhanced by the generally favorable reception accorded Rosalynn Carter during her south-of-the-border tour that ended Sunday.

Another enticement might be the fact that the most recent U.S. presidents, Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, never got farther south than Mexico. However, Latin America cannot be regarded as terra incognito in the broader sweep of presidential travel.

Franklin D. Roosevelt went south to expound his "Good Neighbor policy." Dwight D. Eisenhower was welcomed as a world hero. John F. Kennedy captured Latin imaginations with his Alliance for Progress, and the people there flooded into the streets to demonstrate something close to affection.

Delays in new transport treaty could halt U.S.-England flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most air travel between the United States and Great Britain could halt in less than a week unless the two countries break a stalemate delaying agreement on a new transportation treaty.

A halt in flights over the North Atlantic would disrupt vacation plans for thousands of summer travelers.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, described as "worried" about the situation, scheduled a news conference for Thursday to discuss the talks underway in London, but later canceled the meeting with the press without explanation.

Adams met Tuesday and Wednesday with the presidents of Trans World Airlines, Pan American and Seaboard World Airways to consider alternate landing sites in Europe in case the carriers of the two nations have to stop service between the United States and Britain.

TWA and National Airlines, which flies between Miami and London, have filed proposals with the Civil Aeronautics Board to divert their London-bound flights to Paris.

Pan Am likely would shift flights to Brussels and Amsterdam. Pan Am also is proposing that its Tokyo-Hong Kong flights land at Taiwan because Hong Kong is British territory and falls under the agreement.

Seaboard, a cargo carrier, also is likely to change to Paris.

Some American officials have expressed optimism that an agreement in principle can be reached by the deadline next Wednesday. That would allow extension of the present treaty while details are made final.

The chief negotiators, Alan Boyd of the United States and Patrick Shovelton of Britain, said in May that "concrete progress" had been made. The talks, which began last September, are being held in secret

Agreements reportedly have been made on some issues, but many stumbling blocks remain.

UC minority enrollment dwindling

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The percentage of minorities at the University of California and the two-year community colleges dwindled between 1973 and 1975, a new state report shows.

Minority enrollment increased at state colleges over the same period.

The report by the California Postsecondary Education Commission staff Monday said UC minority enrollment declined from 20.3 per cent in 1973 to 19.9 per cent in 1975, while community college minority enrollment was falling from 24.5 to 20.8 per cent.

At the California State University and Colleges, minority enrollment increased from 19.6 per cent to 21.7 per cent.

All three college systems have been trying to encourage minority enrollment by recruiting and financial aid.

The report said barriers to enrollment include a shortage of bilingual teachers in public schools and UC's shortage of programs for part-time students.

Commission member Geraldine Woods said another problem was high school counselors who discourage minorities from going to college.

Old habit

The rule of driving on the right in the United States originated with pioneers of the West. As Contestoga wagons traveled west along the National Road, the teamster sat astride the left wheel horse. On meeting another wagon, he passed along to the right in order to watch the space between the wheel hubs.

'Your career handed to you on a silver platter'

STARS OF 'WARS' Actors Mark Hamill, left, Harrison Ford and Carrie Fisher, with the creature Chewbacca in the background, are shown in a scene from the hit film, "Star Wars." The actors, in Seattle, Wash., on a recent promotional tour said the movie has done wonders for their careers.

SEATTLE (AP) — For actor Mark Hamili, the dazzling success of the movie "Star Wars" means he'll no longer be asked if he is the brother of ice skater Dorothy Hamill.

He isn't.

For Carrie Fisher, it translates into liberation from eternal identification as the daughter of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher — or the teen-ager who boldly propositioned Warren Beatty in "Shampoo."

For Harrison Ford, it means not having to act in B Westerns again or return to carpentry to support himself.

It's like "having your career handed to you on a silver platter," says Hamill of the film's record-breaking houses.

"I was excited when I read the script ... but I never imagined lines around the block."

Hamill, Ford and Miss Fisher were in Seattle this week on a promotional tour of the tale of a rebel space army pitted against an evil galactic dictator.

The movie has dazzling special effects, swashbuckling music and a lot of Errol Flynn-type heroics—but no sex and almost no violence.

In its first week of distribution, "Star Wars" broke the house record of every theater in which it played. The show business newspaper "Variety" is already declaring the $10 million epic the greatest potential moneymaker of all time. The price of stock in its production company, 20th Century Fox, has doubled since its release.

All three of the stars give full credit for the movie's success to its 32-year-old writer-director, George Lucas.

Lucas, vacationing in Hawaii, is reportedly too shy to do a publicity tour. "You get him in a room with four people and he gets nervous," said Ford. The three speak of him in tones akin to hero worship.

"There were a lot of times when I wasn't sure that I could say some of the dialogue," said Ford, who also appeared in Lucas' "American Graffiti."

He at first considered some lines extremely melodramatic.

"But George knew what he was doing. It all sounds right in the film. I made a leap of faith when I signed for the picture, and I had to trust him."

Said Hamill, who plays Luke Skywalker, a boy-who-becomes-a-man in the film: "I'd like to say that George just walked into a room and said 'That's Luke' when he saw me, but actually quite a few people tested for the role."

Hamill's credits include 140 television shows, including "Search for Tomorrow," "Texas Wheelers" and "Sarah T." Last week Hamill signed for the lead in M-G-M's "Stingray."

"Now I'm thinking of hiring gypsies to go out in the dead of night and destroy some of those old TV tapes and films I did," Hamill said.

Miss Fisher said, "I'm at that awkward age — too old to play Jodie Foster roles and too young for Ellen Burstyn's parts.

"I don't know exactly why George cast us, but Marcia (his wife) said he wanted people with personality."

All three performers have signed to repeat their roles in a sequel scheduled to begin filming next summer.

Hamill's sister works with mentally retarded children, and for him one of the most positive things about the film's impact is their reaction.

"They've written letters to say how much the movie and the role I play inspired them," he said.

"They've told me they understand how this farm boy can feel so strongly that what he's doing is right that he can win out. They feel they've done that in their lives, too."

Warner Bros. now filming 'Night Full'

LOS ANGELES —(AP) — Warner Brothers reports that filming has begun in Italy on director Lina Wertmuller's first English-language film, "A Night Full of Rain," starring Giancarlo Giannini and Candice Bergen.

Miss Bergen plays a feminist photographer and Giannini is her anti-feminist Italian journalist husband. Wertmuller has signed a contract to direct three more films for Warner Brothers.

"A Night Full of Rain" will also shoot in San Francisco, with interiors in Rome.

'Angels' shooting in Hawaii

By BRUCE DUNFORD

HONOLULU (AP) — Shooting has begun here for the second season of "Charlie's Angels," minus Farrah Fawcett-Majors. But the remaining stars of the top-rated television series see the future as bright even without the famous blonde.

Co-star Kate Jackson says she doesn't think the apparent departure of Miss Fawcett-Majors from the ABC series will hurt its ratings, adding that an earlier time slot next fall will make the program available to younger viewers.

Miss Fawcett-Majors and the makers of the series, Spelling-Goldberg Productions, appear headed for a legal battle over the actress's decision to quit the program so she can go into movies.

Miss Jackson, co-angel Jaclyn Smith and newcomer Cheryl Ladd, along with their co-star, David Doyle, held a news conference Monday at the Sheraton-Waikiki hotel.

The remaining angels didn't comment directly about Miss Fawcett-Major's departure, although Miss Jackson said in answering a question about how long the series might run that "we're signed to five-year contracts. When one signs a contract one should keep it."

Miss Ladd said her role is not to replace Miss Fawcett-Majors, but to portray her younger sister on the show.

"I don't feel any pressure because I'm not in anyway going to try to be Farrah Fawcett. I will just be myself," she said.

Miss Smith said she and the others will be losing the angel stereotype, of three glamorous female detectives who perform dangerous assignments for an unseen boss named Charlie who gives his instructions by telephone.

"Last year, we were very similar in character. But now we'll have our own individual characters and will be able to develop them," she said.

The episode being filmed in Hawaii will be for a two-hour special to launch the next season.

Star Trek to become a feature

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attention Trekkies: the feature version of "Star Trek" is making progress.

Producers Gene Roddenberry and Jerry Isenberg have signed Terry Carr as production manager for the Paramount movie to be based on the legendary TV series. Carr's latest film was "King Kong."

ROLLING STONE Record Reviews

By DAVE MARSH

ARETHA FRANKLIN: "Sweet Passion" (Atlantic SD 19102).

This is an improvement over last year's "Sparkle," which was an improvement over the album, before that. But Franklin is still relying on mannerisms to get her past the limitations of poorly chosen material. Even the exceptions, "A Tender Touch" and "Break It to Me Gently," suffer from an excess of pyrotechnics. For raw talent, Aretha is simply unmatchable — Natalie Cole couldn't carry her mikestand — but with Lamont Dozier providing a merely unchallenging disco drone on the upbeat songs, and with such fluff as "What I Did For Love" passing as ballads, Franklin's chances of a serious, artistic rebound seem slim. The key would seem to be a return to the production team of Jerry Wexler, Tom Dowd and Arif Mardin — or someone like them. Here's hoping she makes a move fast — she is too great a singer to waste like this.

* * *

CAT STEVENS: "Izitso" (A&M SP-4702).

A big improvement on last year's exercise in numerology, with some especially nice synthesizer work on Side Two. But somehow Stevens' lyrics always seem as though they were written for a freshman composition class.

* * *

Q: "Dancin' Man" (Epic PE 34691).

These guys come from the same Cleveland company which produced Wild Cherry and "Play That Funky Music." But Q actually has some serious respect for soul music. At their worst, as on "Sweet Summertime," the abomination that opens Side Two, they might as well be Rare Earth. But at their best — all over the first side — they're a fine white R&B vocal group, a bit in the tradition of the J. Geils Band and the Asbury Jukes.

* * *

THE DICTATORS: "Manifest Destiny" (Asylum 7E-1109).

On their Epic debut, the Dictators were perhaps the most inept and obnoxious group ever recorded. As instrumentalists, they have improved. Now they're merely boring.

* * *

JESSE WINCHESTER: "Nothing But a Breeze" (Bearsville BR 6968).

Winchester, the noted draft resister and singer-songwriter, painted himself into a visionary corner with his first album; his work since has made different claims — he may be the best homiletic writer we have. There's absolutely nothing startling on this album, but there are several songs — notably the title track, "Bowling Green" and a version of Stoney Edwards' "Seems Like Only Yesterday" — that are as purely pleasurable as anything I've heard in a while. In this album's oft-quoted phrase, Winchester wants "to live with my feet in Dixie and my head in the cool blue North." Thanks to the draft pardon, he can now do it—and from the sound of things, it may be excellent for his music.

Camp letter from critic rips reruns

By JAY SHARBUTT

CAMP RERUN, Calif. (AP) — Dear Mom: How are you? I am fine. Well, here I am at Camp Rerun, winding up the one-week summer training they make all us TV critics attend each year.

It is a nifty place, but I must say I do not like the exercise period in the morning. They make us watch "The Gong Show," then leap up and cry, "Poor taste! Poor taste!"

You do this 100 times before breakfast each day and pretty soon you wish you were back covering Washington.

Yesterday, a short, swarthy man in a T-shirt, Baretta, I think his name was, ran a refresher course on what to do about TV violence.

He said we should get the PTA in a dark alley and mug it. Everyone laughed, of course.

Later, a fellow in a dark suit from New York taught us how to spell "profoundly moving." He said it was to be used only when reviewing a TV movie about Franklin D. Roosevelt.

We had been told Farrah Fawcett-Majors was going to hold a course called "The Art of Acting." Due to a prior engagement, though, she couldn't make it and sent her hair instead.

We began the week with a lecture by Lamont Doze, the noted news commentator. He spoke on why it is important to have commentary on the network news each night.

"They would put in four 30-second commercials otherwise," is what he said.

Another good lecture was "The Art of the Stand-in," by David Bald, who we were told is Kojak's stand-in. He wore his Hollywood toupee, the one with the rhinestone part, and was very impressive.

After a TV dinner last night, we heard from Sartre du Tube, the famous French TV critic. His topic was: "Being and Nothingness: A Case for Existentialist Situation Tragedy."

He spoke entirely in French, though. The only TV critic who understood him was some guy from San Francisco who kept crying, "Zut alors! Zut alors!"

But it was a good evening for Mr. du Tube. An ABC vice president who heard his talk bought the rights to it. He says it'll premiere next fall under the title, "Happy Daze."

Today, our last lecture will be by Gentle Ben. He'll speak on discrimination against bears in television. Ben hasn't worked for several years and maybe needs a good agent.

The agent could put an additional claws in Ben's contract. That is a bear joke, Mom.

Incidentally, your cookies arrived this morning. Thank you. But next time, please don't put name tags on each one. Well, got to go. Best to Dad and ask him not to talk so much at the TV set.

It hears everything he says and will get even some day.

UA names woman manager

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sales departments of the movie companies have long been a male bastion — until now. .

United Artists announced appointment of its first woman branch manger. She is Juanita Dyksterhuis, who will take charge of the Milwaukee office. She joined the United Artists sales department as a booker in Denver in 1962.

H'wood Bowl breaks record

Sales of nearly $1 million for season subscriptions to Hollywood Bowl's Summer Festival '77 have broken all previous records, according to general director Ernest Fleischmann.

This all-time high figure for the subscription sale to the Los Angeles Philharmonic's regular 10-week, 35-concert Hollywood Bowl season, from July 12 to September 17, represents a continuing upward trend in the popularity of the outdoor concert center.

Although this year's unprecedented demand for season tickets has resulted in a virtual sellout of box seats for the Bowl's four series, single tickets in the reserved sections are still available for all concerts.

Summer Festival '77 gets undeway on July 12 with an opening night performance of Mahler's Symphony No. 8 — ''Symphony of a Thousand,'' with Erich Leinsdorf leading the Los Angeles Philharmonic, distinguished soloists and three choruses.

Tickets are on sale at the Hollywood Bowl box office, 2301 N. Highland Ave., all Mutual Ticket agencies and Pacific Stereo, 637 S. Hill St.

Persons wishing to charge their ticket purchases on either Master Charge or BankAmericard may order by phone to (213) 851-5212.

OFF INTO SPACE — Riders in the new Space Mountain at Disneyland prepare to blast off as the summer season opens at the Anaheim amusement park. Summer hours are 8 a.m. to 1 a.m. daily.

Eagles sue over album

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Members of the Eagles 22 group have filed an antitrust suit against their former manager, David Geffen, their present publisher, Warner Bros. Music and their former publishers, Companion Music and Benchmark Music, according to court records.

Band members Glenn Frey, Randy Meisner, Don Henley, Don Felder and ex-Eagle Bernie Leadon filed suit in federal court here last month charging violation of the group's rights under the Sherman Antitrust Act. One of the issues was reportedly the selling of the group's "Desperado" album without consultation with the band.

Alice act getting snaky

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock star Alice Cooper is scheduled to hit the road next week in his first concert tour in more than two years.

For his new stage show, Cooper auditioned a group of snakes, looking for one particularly responsive "to the lights." The early favorite is a 10-foot boa constrictor named Hershey.

Beverly Sills, Superstar

The division between the traditional arts such as opera and popular entertainment world is fading. Like no other person today opera star Beverly Sills leads the way and moves in sparkling clarity between the two worlds. Miss Sills is called America's Queen of Opera because her flawless coloratura voice takes from opera its best and gives to the audience its finest. But there is another Beverly Sills. When she did a soft-shoe with Danny Kaye on his TV special, she astonished everyone with the snap she put into the act. Not long ago she and Carol Burnett joined the "impossible" worlds of opera and variety show to produce the TV special, Sills and Burnett at the Met. She is also been dubbed as "The Fastest Voice Alive." But that's only one part of Beverly Sills. Her personal life has been laced with tragedy because of her birth-defected children. Remarkably, her verve in the theater is matched by her strength in marriage and in parenthood. For all her busy schedule — she is booked years ahead — she finds time for social causes and a TV interview show called "Lifestyles." Accompanying this fascinating profile of Miss Sills is Carol Burnett's tribute to her: "There's something unique about Beverly, I feel. It's her humanness."

A BLAST FROM THE PAST — "Grease," the hit Broadway musical celebrating the 1950's, will open June 28 at the Pantages Theater in Hollywood. It will run through July 31.

Broadway musical of the '50s scheduled for Pantages Theater

"Grease," the Broadway musical comedy salute to the high-spirited 1950's, opens June 28 at the Pantages Theater in Hollywood. Tickets will be half-price for those showing up for the premiere in sneakers and other garb of the '50s.

"Grease" remembers the days when rock 'n roll was King, and sock hops, pajama parties and tales of young love were the order of the day.

Producers Kenneth Waissman and Maxine Fox debated several years before deciding to mount a third national tour of "Grease." They reasoned though, that with the success of "Happy Days" and "Laverne & Shirley," a whole new generation had developed without seeing the catalyst for the '50s nostalgia craze.

They were right; now on its third tour, "Grease" continues to set theater records unequalled by the two previous companies.

Performances are scheduled for Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8:30, Sunday evenings at 7:30, with matinees on Saturday and Sunday at 2:30.

Tickets are now on sale at the box office and all Mutual, Liberty and Ticketron agencies.

Hello, Dolly!

Singer joining the crossovers

By STAN MIESES

"First Gathering . . . New Harvest," Dolly Parton's latest record, is a statement of strong will by a woman heretofore thought of simply as a flashy doll. As far as Dolly Parton is now concerned, country music will never again be the same for her, though as she says, "the rumors that I am leaving country music are purely a lie."

It's taken some doing for her to get to this stage. For close to ten years she shared billing and recording space with the Porter Waggoner Revue, where she was half of one of the best country and western teams. Unfortunately, they were exclusively regional in their appeal.

Several records (and years) later, after receiving unanimous support as a solo artist, and even some recognition outside country circles as a superior songwriter, Dolly Parton decided to make her biggest move yet. She took control of a project, top to bottom, and altered the course of her career.

She consulted with RCA who gave her the go-ahead on her own project, aimed specifically for pop acceptance.

"You must understand," said Dolly, "it was not the fans who were telling me to change. I found myself ruining my voice, playing in places that weren't well-miked, places that had no class at all, killing myself. I wasn't making all that much money — you really don't in country music unless you're a real superstar — and I knew I could make more. It's not the country fans' fault," she is quick to say. "They deserve better. I just wanted to be respected. I just wanted to do something a little more involved outside country music."

DOLLY PARTON

The youngest daughter of 13 from Sevier County in the upper reaches of the gorgeous Smoky Mountains is no country fool. Under that ultimate cocktail waitress wig is a calculating mind, every bit as impressive as her oft-pictured buxom profile. Dolly's set out to create her own character, and that blonde atomic bombshell coupled with the rhinestony toothpaste tubes she squeezes into on-stage are plenty for any caricaturist's pen. That's the way she wanted it.

"Why did I keep it (the wig) all these years? Because I felt I had some sense under this wig, I wanted people to know who Dolly Parton was when they SAW her. I know I'm not in style. I don't ever worry about dressin' properly cause people don't expect me to dress like the crowd. But I know I've become a character, and a character never dies. Sure, looking the way I do has made it more difficult for a lot of people to accept me seriously. I do it," she grins, knowingly, "because I like to make the whole climate a little more interesting by overcoming obstacles."

One of the obstacles she's discovered in attempting to "cross over," as they say in the trade talk, has been her long-standing business associates and fellow musicians. They fall into two camps: "Some people are afraid FOR me, they think I'm going to; or already have, embarrassed myself. Others are resentful, I think, because they've always wanted to do the same, but didn't have the nerve.

"I mean, no matter how country you are, you hope for a cross-over hit. Why not? There's more money and recognition involved. What are most of these people working for if not that? I hope what I'm doing will be good for other country musicians, and for the fans most of all. That's why I'm going through a lot of this. You ask me how I can be photographed with the Average White Band and Mick Jagger and people like that who may not know me personally real well. I'm real happy these people are coming out to see me, and it's the first time because I'm playing in different places where they have the chance to see me. Otherwise, they'd feel out of place.

"The more successful I've become, the more humble I feel. I know the dues you have to pay, so no matter what, I feel grateful."

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

Several events of interest have happened this week. They take us from Mt. Baldy to Chino and several points in between.

I want to talk first about the great things happening at the former Ice House Canyon Lodge, now renamed Bonnie Krick's Incredible Ice House Restaurant, if you please. And the changes in the place are, indeed, incredible.

Since Trudy Dayton, editor and publisher of WE GUIDE magazine, has done such an incredible job of describing the renovation there, I'm going to filch some of her material. (Notice how easily that word 'incredible' rolls off the typewriter once I get used to it!)

In describing the 3-month renovation of the Mt. Baldy restaurant, Trudy says, "The bar has been rebuilt and moved to the side wall creating a lounge area next to the dance floor. The small alcove near the front entrance has been furnished with love seats for a more intimate lounge setting. Next to the dance floor the old waterwheel still turns slowly, adding its charm to the rustic atmosphere." Trudy continues, "The entertainment stage and kitchen have also been revamped."

You've really got to see it to believe it. Whether you've been there before or not, you really have something to look forward to when you visit the new Ice House Restaurant.

The dinner menu has been carefully selected by manager Gary Cunningham and owners Bonnie and Ted Krick to entice the most discriminating gourmet food lovers — Shrimp Scampi Saute, Mountain Trout in Crab Sauce, Baked Filet of Sole Chasseur, Breat of Chicken A'la Bigarde, for several for instances. You'll also find such favorites as New York Cut Steak, Filet Mignon and Prime Ribs of Beef. Really a continental cuisine menu. Plus a selection of fine dinnfer wines to compliment.

I haven't eaten there yet but I have it on excellent authority that the food is great. Dinner prices range from $5.25 to $8.50 and the restaurant is open Wednesday through Sunday. Singer Rita Graham will entertain there this weekend during Grand Opening. So get up the mountain this weekend. Just a mile past Baldy Village.

A very together entertainment trio billed as the "Brad Mercer Show" opened Monday night at Claremont's Beef 'n' Barrel.

A poised and mobile showman, Mercer sang, played, joked and pranced his way through his opening night with the aplomb of a professional. He uses a long extension on his mike to charge around the room, coaxing, flirting, doing anything to keep the attention of his audience. His material is clever, his musical arrangements and interpretations excellent, and the show he puts on is very much in keeping the Beef 'n' Barrel policy of providing their customers with quality entertainment.

While Mercer is the frontispiece of the act, much

Wandering with Woody

credit for their outstanding assists goes to organist Ken Michaelis and drummer Mike Neil. Michaelis is musical arranger and a superb organist, and Neil provides skillful drumsmanship (in addition to special effects and humorous asides during comedy routines.)

I think you'll like this group. Mercer plays banjo and guitar, sings, does impressions, and is very entertaining. The Brad Mercer Show will be at the 'Barrel for several weeks, appearing Mondays through Saturdays in the Loading Dock Lounge. Catch 'em if you can.

"I haven't heard pickin' like this since the old Rockette days," was a familiar comment Sunday and Monday nights at Casa de Narod in Chino as Phil Baugh displayed his skill on the guitar to a large and appreciative audience.

I dropped in on a reunion there Monday night as Baugh was joined on stage by a couple of Rockette sidekicks, Eddie Joe Downs and Jack Reeves. They just rared back and let it go. And the crowd loved it!

Griswold's really seems to be getting on a T.G.IF. kick. The Thank God It's Friday happy hour, a popular (and needed) attitude adjustment after a busy week, has been around for a long time, but Griswold's have given theirs a little twist.

The Casa Ramon interpretation of T.G.I.F. is called Bota Bag, an experiment in convivial tippling in a casual patio setting. It's been a regular thing for some time now, and has proved popular. This week Griswold's Indian Hills is following suit with a Good Time Times happy hour they call Thank Griswold's It's Friday! The Indian Hill Restaurant will be hosting the affair every Friday from 5:15 to 7:30 p.m. with reduced prices on well drinks and beer. The weekly event will be held on the patio and will feature entertainment, dancing, and free hors d'oeuvres.

OPENING attraction of remodeled Ice House Restaurant this weekend is Rita Graham, who has performed with Harry James.

AROUND 'N ABOUT

. . . Orlando's are suggesting a novel gift idea for Dad. (Sunday is Dad's Day, you know!) They suggest treating him to an evening of dancing and dining Saturday night in the restaurant's Royal Crest Room. Lou Dokken is musicmaster there, leading his 7-piece band through melodies of the big band era that'll put a catch in romantic old Dad's heart.

. . . A heavy brass rock group called "Balance" are coming up from San Diego to play for one night only at Glendora's Rock City next Tuesday, June 21. The group has recently played dates with Tower of Power and Sons of Champlain while on the road, according to Joe Knight, procurer of some outstanding talent for the 1923 E. Alosta nitespot. "Balance" offers a variety of Top 40, funk and rock and roll dance music that is original and powerful. Rock City is located at the corner of Lone Hill and Alosta. (Foothill becomes Alosta in Glendora.)

Oscar winner happy

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "If you can play bass or write lyrics, you'll never be out of work in Hollywood."

That adage is comforting to Paul Williams, the compact lyricist and recent Oscar winner who would not seem in need of comfort. He earns millions with his songs, concerts, records, movie scores and now has developed a mini-career as an actor.

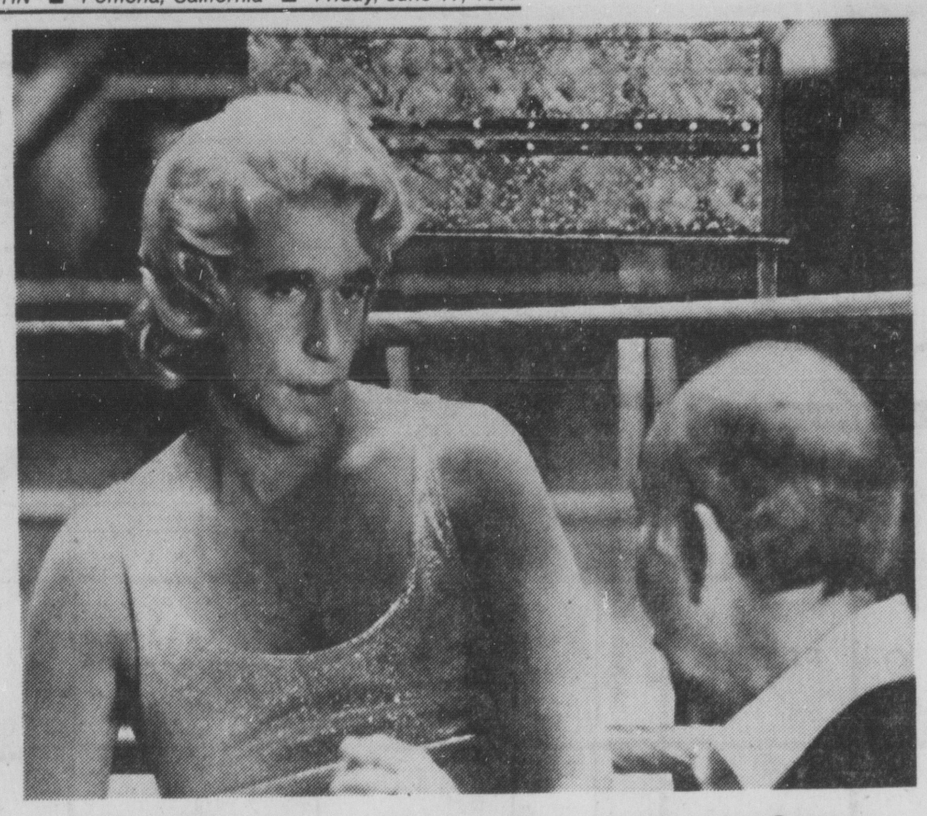
And yet he remembers "seven years of great inactivity" when his family had to make explanations on what Paul was doing. What he was doing was trying to be an actor. A "celluloid junkie," he had spent a boyhood of soaking up the great movies. He once remarked that he dreamed of becoming a new John Garfield but "unfortunately I looked too much like Hayley Mills."

During the lean period, he landed roles in two important films, "The Loved One," as the boy rocket inventor, and "The Chase," as one of the locals who fired a junkyard to smoke out escapee Robert Redford. Alas, both films proved major disappointments of the 1960s, and Paul Williams returned to watching daytime television ("now I do daytime TV, on the game shows").

The change came when Mort Sahl recognized something of promise in Williams' portrayal in "The Loved One." Sahl hired him to write for a local TV show, not the best of moves since Williams was apolitical. But through Sahl, Williams met Biff Rose, a song writer in search of lyrics.

The pair moved to A&M records, where Williams was told, "you write beautiful lyrics, but you will never have a hit." That was when the music world was into acid rock, and the basic lyric was "I love ya, baby."

The scene began to change, partly due to a bank commercial which Williams expanded into "We've Only Just Begun." Then came "You and Me Against the World," "Cried Like a Baby," "Rainy Days and Mondays," "Nice to Be Around" and others. Ballads were suddenly in.



FONZY HAIRDO — Henry Winkler, The Fonze of television's Happy Days, is decked out in blonde wig and pink tights for his role in "The One, The Only," a movie about wrestler Gorgeous George. Winkler is getting some tips on wrestling from director Carl Reiner.

Drama classes at Poly

The Office of Continuing Education at Cal Poly will offer a new Summer Theater Production class starting Monday.

Students will have the opportunity to involve themselves in all phases of production — acting, technical, box office and publicity. The course will involve preparation, rehearsal and public performance of university sponsored productions in an organized summer theater similar to a professional stock company.

The course is scheduled Monday to Aug. 31, (usual involvement is 20 hours per week), at the University Theater. The course is being offered for university credit of 2-6 units depending on the number of hours arranged with the instructor.

PREMIERE VIEW — John F. Kennedy Jr. and his sister Caroline arrive for the premiere of "A Bridge Too Far" at the Rivoli Theater in New York City Tuesday. The first screening of the World War II film was a charity gala for the New York University Medical Center and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It is a Joseph Levine production.

Dodgers are rollicking again

Don Bradley
Progress Bulletin Staff Writer

What a week this has been!

The Reds got Tom Seaver. The Padres got Dave Kingman. The Angels got Gary Nolan and Ken Brett. And the Dodgers got disappointed.

It certainly has been a momentous week in sports.

Gene Bartow bottled up his tears and fears and quit UCLA. The Rams dumped James Harris. And the baseball clubs went wild at the trading mart.

Did anyone really think winning the pennant would be easy for the Dodgers this year? Now that the Reds have Seaver, there should be no doubts the task will be difficult though not impossible.

The Reds are probably the first two-time defending World's Champions ever to re-tool their pitching halfway through the season.

Gone are Santo Alcala (11-4), Rawly Eastwick (11-5), Gary Nolan (15-9) and Pat Zachary (14-7) from the staff that won last year's title.

Between them, they won 51 and lost only 25. Will McEnany (2-6) was an off-season departure.

Now the question is who will the Reds' starters be? There is Seaver, Jack Billingham, Fred Norman, Woody Fryman and rookie Paul Moskau, just called up from Indianapolis.

Norman, Fryman and Moskau are all lefties. Moskau starred for Azusa Pacific and was the first player ever to win both ends of the Progress Bulletin Hitting-Pitching Derby Award.

Two-way threat

Moskau batted .412 for APC in 1975 and posted a 9-5 pitching record with a 2.09 earned run average. He has been a pitcher and pinch-hitter since becoming a pro.

Whether Sparky Anderson plans to use him as a starter or reliever is not known. Moskau was the most impressive rookie pitcher with the Reds in spring training after two years in the minors with ERAs under 2.00.

One of the three lefthanders is likely to be used in relief since the Reds also dealt lefthander Mike Caldwell in their Wednesday night splurge.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers will have to win with what they started the season with . . . and hope everybody stays or gets healthy.

There have already been some problems in the health area. Second baseman Davey Lopes, suffering from another rib cage injury, missed four straight games.

Lopes also has a chronic back problem that sidelines for eight or nine games at a time. Last year Lopes, bothered by both back and rib cage problems, played only 117 games.

Shortstop Bill Russell is limping on a sore ankle and Teddy Martinez also has a gimpy leg. Rick Monday has a back problem that has taken him out of the lineup twice.

Meanwhile, down the freeway, the Angels appear to have solved their pitching problems. No more will you hear the cry, "Tanana and Ryan and then the Angels are cryin.'"

Brett (6-4) and Nolan (4-1) will move right into the starting rotation. That allows the shift of Paul Hartzell back to bullpen where he has been most effective this year.

Provided relief

It was when the Halos moved Hartzell to relief and acquired Dave LaRoche that the club began it's turnaround. Hartzell has since been shifted back to the starting rotation and it can only be hoped that the shifting hasn't hurt him the way it did Don Kirkwood who never recovered.

All Nolan cost was minor leaguer Craig Hendrickson and a player or players to be named later. Usually these turn out to be minor leaguers or fringe players.

Hendrickson was the Halos' number two choice in last year's free-agent draft. The shortstop was hitting .213 at Quad Cities.

The only player on the 25-man roster the Angels traded was Kirkwood (1-0) with a 5.10 ERA. Kirkwood has been inconsistent the last two years and ineffective this year.

For Brett, the Halos gave up Kirkwood, former La Verne star John Verhoeven and third baseman John Flannery plus cash.

Verhoeven, on option at Salt Lake City, was 2-0 with a 5.76 ERA. The big Dutchman injured his arm last August and has never been the same.

Flannery was batting .293 at Salinas. So the Halos gave up no one that was currently helping the team. The only catch is that both Nolan and Brett have a history of arm trouble. But, as little as the pair cost, it was a good deal.

Likewise, it would seem that Kingman can only help the Padres who gave up only Bobby Valentine and Paul Siebert, a rookie lefthander just called up from Hawaii (PCL).

What happens at San Diego should be interesting.

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers gave themselves a lift Thursday night.

They had been in a down mood Wednesday night despite a lopsided 10-1 victory, the malaise apparently caused by the news that Cincinnati had obtained Tom Seaver.

Following Thursday night's 3-2, 11-inning victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates — to give the Angelenos a sweep of the three-game series — the mood again was light and the players were rollicking.

The win increased the Dodger lead to 7½ games and gave them a 10-2 mark against the Eastern clubs in games at Dodger Stadium.

They also regained the prestige of having the best record in the major leagues, 41-21 for a .661 percentage.

The team with the second best record (38-20 for .655), the Eastern Division leading Chicago Cubs is in for three games beginning tonight.

Burt Hooton (4-3) gets the call tonight against rookie Mike Krukow (5-4). Tommy John (6-4) faces former UCLA star Bill Bonham (6-5) Saturday night (7 p.m.) and Don Sutton (7-2) goes against Rick Reuschel (9-2) Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Tonight is Cap Night. All fans will receive a free Dodger cap. Box seats have all been sold, but plenty of reserved and general admission seats are available.

The Dodgers got their runs in two brief eruptions Thursday night.

Bill Russell cracked a one-out single in the sixth inning and Reggie Smith hit John Candelaria's first pitch into the left centerfield pavilon to break a scoreless deadlock.

After the Pirates had tied it in the ninth to send the game into extra innings, the Dodgers won it in the 11th.

Russell, who had been charged with an error that let in the tying run, opened with a double. Smith walked and Ron Cey got his first sacrifice bunt of the season.

Steve Garvey was intentionally walked loading the bases. Dusty Baker, moved up a notch ahead of Rick Monday in the batting order, hit a fly to medium center that Al Oliver caught and fired to the plate.

Russell appeared to have the throw beaten anyway, but catcher Duffy Dyer blocked the plate and Russell was forced to barrel into the Pirate catcher and knock him out of the way.

"Oliver doesn't have the strongest arm in the league," said Russell. "I thought I could score. Then I saw Dyer coming down the line.

"I think he (Dyer) could have gotten out of the way. I had the throw beaten. I'm not the biggest guy to go around knocking into those big catchers."

Dyer has 25 pounds on the slender Dodger shortstop.

"What a game. Wasn't that exciting," yelled manager Tommy Lasorda. "Did you see that bleeping Dyer block the plate? Did you see what Russell did to the bleep bleeper!"

Russell called his double that led to the winning run a "redeemer." It had been his error on a twisting bouncer hit by Bobby Tolan with two out in the ninth that allowed the tying run to score.

"We thought we had the game all the way," Russell said. "When I came up in the 11th I said to myself I have to get something started. (Rich) Gossage (5-4) hung a slider on me and there was my redeemer."

The Dodgers got good pitching from starter Doug Rau and reliever Charlie Hough (4-4). Rau struck out a career-high nine batters and didn't issue a single walk in his eight-plus innings.

Hough pitched three hitless innings in relief.

"I felt good tonight. I could have gone three more innings," said Hough and added with a grin, "if my catcher (Steve Yeager) doesn't scare me to death. Do you know what he did? Three times he called for fastballs against (Willie) Stargell. I couldn't believe it."

Hough got the massive Stargell to ground to first twice and flyout to center once.

DODGER DATA — The paid attendance of 34,350 put the Dodgers over the million mark with 1,017,525 tying their own record for the earliest date ever. They first did it in 1975.

Smith's homer was his 15th, but only his fourth righthanded. He went into the game hitting .320 lefthanded and .268 righthanded.

The Dodgers now have hit 74 home runs in 62 games. Last year they had 43 homers at this time. They didn't get number 74 until August 22.

Brutal 18th KOs scores in Open

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME

Minnesota first baseman Rod Carew reaches out in vain after falling trying to field grounder hit by Angels' Andy Etchebarren in third inning Thursday night.

TULSA, Okla (AP) — Arnold Palmer provided the electricity, Jack Nicklaus was happy to get out alive, and the brutal 18th hole at Southern Hills scored a clear kayo of the field Thursday with defending champion Jerry Pate its prime victim in the first round of the 77th U.S. Open.

Seven players who have never captured a major championship shaved a stroke off par over the 6,873 yards of one of the toughest par-70 courses in Americe.

Rod Funseth, Terry Diehl, Larry Nelson, Hubie Green, Grier Jones, Tom Purtzer and Argentina's 38-year-old Florention Molina struggled to 69s in pleasant 80-degree weather that featured gusty, tricky winds. Never in Open history had so many players been clustered in first place.

There was a logjam of 10 players at par including the 46-year-old Palmer, who had to qualify to get here and sent his "Army" into a frenzy by holing a wedge for a birdie on his roller coaster round of four birdies and four bogies.

Nicklaus shot 74, Masters champion Tom Watson, looking for the Grand Slam, also floundered to a 74, and Pate suffered an agonizing six on the unforgiving final hole for 72.

"The best thing for a man to do is come to that hole Sunday with a three-shot lead," said Al Geiberger, who bogied it for a 70.

The 449-yard, dog-leg right last hole was strickly X-rated by the 153-man field which fired and fell back in headlong retreat against the monster.

Green called it "a killer."

Nicklaus, one of the longest hitters in the history of the game, branded it "too long."

Palmer, not exactly your everyday puffball hitter, claimed: "It's as close to a par five as you can get."

Pate declared: "It's a helluva hole. It got me."

The hole is bordered by a creek on the right and left. Towering trees line the right side and thick bermuda rough chokes the left. Deep bunkers guard the approach to an elevated green which is slick as a marble top table. The fairway slants right, creating fades that plunk into the right bunker.

"I had a six-foot downhill putt there and it broke a foot," said Johnny Miller, attesting to the lightning bent grass contour of the 100-foot long green.

Miller added: "I'm not very gung-ho about that hole."

Nicklaus said: "I hit the best tee shot I can hit and still had a one-iron to the green. I'd hate to have to make birdie there the last day to win."

There were only four birdies Thursday and Palmer said: "I'll wager there will be more bogeys there than par." He was right.

Green questioned whether the hole was playing 449-yards.

"Who stepped it off?" said Green who added it was more like 465. "I killed a drive and still had a five-wood 210-yards uphill into the wind. Hit your tee shot into the rough and forget it. You can't get there."

"It's one of the most difficult finishing holes I've ever played," said Tom Weiskopf. "It's very, very, very, difficult. You have a sidehill lie no matter where you hit it."

Only Molina had a kind word for the hole—a backhanded compliment since he parred it.

"I like 18—not for me but for the other players," said Molina, meaning he was delighted to escape with par while others like Pate were branded with double bogeys and bogey.

The hole averaged 4.9 strokes Thursday with par outnumbered 2-1 by mini-disasters.

Palmer, using only 29 putts, charged up a large majority of the total crowd of 14,818 with the some of his old magic. He made three putts longer than 15 feet.

"The crowd pumped me up and I guess they were more exuberant than usual because I haven't given them a chance lately," he said. "I was doing things like I used to do."

Angels to test Ken Brett tonight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — One of the two new acquisitions who the California Angels hope will solidify their starting pitching rotation will get his first test in a hurry.

Left-hander Ken Brett, 6-4, who came to the Angels from the Chicago White Sox just before the trading deadling Wednesday night, will pitch for California in the opener of a three-game series against Milwaukee tonight.

The Angels, who also acquired Gary Nolan from Cincinnati Wednesday, will be trying to snap a two-game losing streak. Oddly, the losers in California's last two games were hurling standouts Frank Tanana, now 10-3, and Nolan Ryan, now 9-6.

Minnesota rookie Rob Wilfong grounded a Ryan curveball into shallow right field with two outs in the bottom of the ninth Thursday night to score Butch Wynegar from second base and give the Twins a 7-6 victory over the Angels.

Despite the loss, Ryan fanned 14 in the game and moved into fourth place on the all-time strikeout list.

Wynegar and Mike Cubbage had receive successive one-out walks before Ryan retired Larry Hisle on a shallow fly to left field for the second out.

"Even though I had only four walks, they ended up beating me," said Ryan. "I felt that I really only threw one bad pitch, but Minnesota is an awfully good hitting club."

The speedy Twins put together four hits and took advantage of several mistakes by Ryan to score four runs in the second inning.

California chased Twins starter Paul Thormodsgard in the third with a four-run inning on six hits. Andy Etchebarren, Jerry Remy and Tony Solaita singled in runs and Rusty Torres scored on a wild pitch by Thormodsgard.

The Angels took a 5-4 lead in the top of the fifth on a double by Solaita and Bobby Bonds' RBI single

Ryan, who now has 2,252 career strikeouts and has whiffed 10 or more hitters in seven straight games, was hit hard in the fifth inning when Larry Hisle hit his 16th home run of the year, Rod Carew tripled and Lyman Bostock singled to put the Twins in front 6-5.

The Angels tied the game in the eighth against Tom Johnson when Bonds led off the inning with a triple and then scored on a wild pitch.

California Manager Norm Sherry said Nolan may pitch Saturday.

"I'm really glad we're getting a couple of experienced pitchers," said Sherry about the new members of the Angels. "Nolan wes 15-9 for the Reds last year and had the same record the year before. Brett has been a steady pitcher, and the addition of both of them gives us four good starters."

Shields earns TKO victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Randy Shields of North Hollywood, Calif., scored a technical knockout over Pancho Del Toro of Gomez, Palacio, Mexico at the Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

The bout was stopped between the fifth and sixth rounds. Referee Dick Young halted the fight because of a cut over Del Toro's left eye.

Shields, a former top contender in the lightweight division, is now fighting as a junior welterweight. He has a 32-2 record and 17 knockouts. Del Toro dropped to 34-4-1. He has 16 knockouts.

Shields weighed 143¾ pounds; Del Toro scaled 142¼ pounds.

North needs better luck

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Sports Writer

If things don't go any better for the North team in the Pomona Valley All-Star Basketball Game than they have in practice, the South may have a pretty easy time.

Good fortune has not exactly smiled upon the North's players thus far. First, Royal Oak's Bill Cavanaugh broke his hand before practice sessions even began, and will miss the game, leaving the North a player short.

Then San Dimas' Ken Muraki sprained his ankle on the first day of organized practice for the North team.

Finally, Charter Oak's Brady Keilty was mugged on the way to a doughnut shop and suffered a mild concussion.

Muraki and Keilty are both expected to be in fine fettle for the All-Star contest, but North head coach Bill Roberts of Damien and assistant Jeff McCall of Alta Loma have their fingers crossed that nothing else goes awry.

The fourth annual Pomona Valley classic will be played at La Verne College Tuesday night at 8 p.m. Tickets, at $2.50 for adults and $2 for students, will be available at the door. Not surprisingly, All-CIF players Bill Duffy of Damien and Rich Davis of Alta Loma have stolen the show at the North camp.

"They're so good," said Roberts, "that sometimes the other kids just stop and watch them in action."

For Roberts, there is a particular joy in having Davis, a 6-10 center, on his team.

"I've never had a center that led the team in either points or rebounds. So I'm looking forward to having a big guy like Davis in there."

Actually, though, Roberts will not have great size across the front line — after Davis and Alta Loma's Kevin Comstock, a burly 6-5, 200-pound forward, the third-tallest player for the North will be Duffy, a 6-4½ guard.

"We'll probably go with a three-guard offense, the way we did (at Damien High) during the regular season," said Roberts. "After all, we've got eight guards."

The remaining players on the North roster are Bonita's Mike Boyd and Keith Brandt, Claremont's Kyle Fortson and Ray Kwiatek, Damien's Ed Carlson and Pomona's David Moore.

"We should have a slight advantage in quickness," Roberts offered, "although I'm not too sure about that. Steve Polee (of Ganesha, a player for the South) is awfully quick."

Roberts doesn't feel his squad rates the favorite's role despite the presence of Duffy and Davis. The South probably has better overall depth, with seven All-Valley players to the North's three (Duffy, Davis and Comstock).

"Of course, in a game that long (the all-star contest will have 12-minute quarters rather than high school basketball's eight-minute periods), Billy could score a lot of points. If he can score 36 in 32 minutes (as he did twice this year), there's no telling how many he can score in 48 minutes.

"He's really improved a lot since the end of the season," Roberts said, though fans who saw Duffy perform during the school season may find that difficult to believe.

"He went up to Oakland to play in the Sunshine Classic, a tournament with 120 of the best players from across the country, and the competition there sure didn't hurt him any. Billy made the all-tournament team and Tony Anderson (Victor Valley's 2A Player of the Year and good friend of Duffy's, was named MVP."

Half-time entertainment at the Pomona Valley All-Star Basketball Game, which is sponsored by the La Verne Rotary Club and supported by several area clubs — including Chino, Glendora, Pomona, Rowland Heights and San Dimas Rotary Clubs and La Verne-San Dimas and Montclair Kiwanis Clubs — will be a gymnastics demonstration by ten girls, ages 8 to 18, under the direction of Jesse Staples of La Verne College.

Crystal Water heads Cup field

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A dozen handicap stars, headed by Crystal Water, who was assigned the highweight of 129 pounds, were named Thursday to battle for the $210,000 winner's share of the $350,000 to be paid in Saturday's Hollywood Gold Cup.

The horses will go 1¼ miles at Hollywood Park in thoroughbred racing's richest programmed event.

Connie Ring's Crystal Water, winner of the Santa Anita Handicap, will be ridden by Laffit Pincay.

Ancient Title, with Sandy Hawley, was assigned second high weight at 125 with Caucasus at 124 with Fernando Toro.

The 38th running of the Gold Cup provides a second-place award of $60,000 with $40,000 for third.

In post position order, the entries are Legendario III, 114; Taras Bulba, 118; Pay Tribute, 120; Balmerino, 120; Caucasus, 124; Rajab, 114; Mark's Place, 120; Cascapedia, 116; Austin Mittler, 109; Ancient Title; Crystal Water; and Festive Mood, 114.

Pay Tribute and Rajab run as a betting entry, both owned by Elmendorf Farm.

Nine foreign-bred runners have won the Gold Cup in past years and there are three in this year's field. Taras Bulba and Balmerino both come from New Zealand and Legendario III hails from Uruguay

Angel Cordero will ride Taras Bulba with Maurice Campbell riding Balmerino and Jerry Bailey on Legendario.

Pincay gained ground on Hawley in the Hollywood Park jockey standings Thursday with three victories, including a triumph aboard Ensign Ruken in the $22,000 feature race.

Hawley, however, scored twice and has a meet-leading 75 winners, six ahead of Pincay.

In the feature, a 1⅛ mile turf race for 3-year-olds and up, Pincay took Ensign Ruker quickly to the lead and kept him there for most of the distance. Favored Exact Duplicate made a late bid, but Ensign Ruker had something left for the stretch and won by three-quarters of a length.

Summer loop opens tonight

LOS ANGELES — The nationally acclaimed Olympic Development Basketball League, which divides Southern California into eight super high school district all-star teams, will tip-off tonight at Cal State Los Angeles.

The league, which will play through July 31, will include defending champion Los Angeles, San Gabriel Valley, South Bay, Orange County, Ventura-Santa Barbara, San Fernando Valley, Inland (San Bernardino County), and San Diego.

The strength of the league is highlighted by over 50 all-CIF and all-City stars and 15 bonified all-America selections. This year the ODL will have several players outside of Southern California which should make the competition extremely tough. College coaches will again flock in groves to view the 1978 senior class, which many feel will be as great as the 1975 class, considered California's best-ever.

All of next year's bumper crop of prep stars are in the IDL which means "keen" eyes will be able to view first hand the likes of Leonel Marquetti (6-7) and Mo Williams (6-6) of Verbum Dei, Mark Snow (6-11) of Poway, Dan Larsen (6-9) of Ventura, Michael Zeno (6-8) of Serra, Tyren Naulls (6-5) of Lynwood, Greg Goorjian (6-3) of Crescenta Valley, and Doug Marty (6-1) of Long Beach Millikan.

Joining the blue-chip underclassmen will be this years top players such as Northern California Player of the Year Cliff Robertson (6-9) of Castlemont High School headed for USC, UCLA-bound Tony Anderson of Victor Valley, Colorado-bound Jack Tuz of Corona Del Mar, USC-bound Barry Brooks of Pasadena and George Ratkovich of Alhambra, Minnesota-bound Bill Duffy of Damien, Arizona-bound Russell Brown of Inglewood, and Pete Lallas of South High School in Oregon, who is going to Stanford.

Joining the top prep stars will be the Junior Olympic Development League which features the choice junior high cagers in the southland. These youngsters, like their older heros, play under international rules, the only summer league in the country that uses international enforcement. International rules includes the 30-second clock, widened free throw lane, and constant movement.

Both the senior and junior division play on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoons.

Sun Devils show a Bird

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — College baseball has found its answer to The Bird.

Arizona State do-it-all Jamie Allen doesn't talk to the ball like Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers but it seemed that way as he kept the top-rated Sun Devils alive Thursday night in the College World Series by preserving a 6-2 victory over South Carolina.

"I'm not showing off out there," said the enthusiastic Allen, "It's just something that helps me get ready. Most of the time, I'm more subdued. But I really bring it out for big games."

The freshman right-hander wiggled out of a bases-loaded jam and pitched three innings of one-hit relief to hand South Carolina its first loss of the series.

He stalked around the mound, jumped up and down after strikes, frequently backed off the mound and taunted batters to get in the box.

"Allen really put on quite a show," said Arizona State Coach Jim Brock. "Coming in and throwing fast balls after Mitch (Dean) had thrown so many breaking pitches kept them off balance."

Southern Illinois staged the biggest comeback of the series and up-ended California StateLos Angeles 9-7 in the night's elimination-round game.

Southern Illinois, 41-11, is matched against top-rated Arizona State, 55-12, in an elimination game Friday night with the survivor facing South Carolina for the series crown Saturday night.

South Carolina, 43-11-1, received a bye into the finals by beating Southern Illinois 5-4 Wednesday night in a meeting of then series unbeatens.

Although the crowd of 10,193 seemed to delight in Allen's performance, South Carolina Coach June Raines didn't like what he saw.

"I thought Arizona State made a joke of the game with all that stalling and delay tactics," said Raines. "That's not meant as anything against Allen because he pitched very well for them."

The decisive play came in the seventh inning with Arizona State ahead 5-2.

Johnny Long and Greg Jonson opened the inning with singles and Allen came on to be greeted by a single by Mark Van Bever to load the bases.

But Allen picked Jonson off second base and then struck out the next two hitters. He finished with five strikeouts.

A bases-loaded walk and Bob Horner's two-run single gave Arizona State three runs in the fifth inning to break a 2-2 deadlock.

California State-Los Angeles, 42-22, built a 6-0 lead on Southern Illinois but a five-run eighth inning climaxed the Salukis' comeback. Jim Reeves' two-run homer provided the tying and go-ahead runs.

After the early outburst, two Southern Illinois relievers held the Diablos to three hits.

CSLA Coach Jack Deutsch was philosphical about the loss.

"We came back all season like SIU did and you have to give them credit," said Deutsch.

The Diablos State, a Division I school only in baseball, were making their first series bid.

Ben Lefebvre to visit Plaza

Bennie Lefebvre, father of former Los Angeles Dodger second baseman Jim Lefebvre, will be at the Montclair Plaza today and again on Saturday to demonstrate his newly developed three-dimensional baseball hitting tee.

The senior Lefebvre, for many years a prominent high school BB coach in Southern California, will be at the Plaza until 9 p.m. tonight and again Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

In addition to demonstrating his hitting tee, Lefebvre and two of his sons, Gil and Tip, will be giving free personal instruction on hitting.

Sanford is top thinclad

James Sanford, who paced Pasadena to the Southern Section championship, was named today as the CIF's track & field Athlete of the Year.

Sanford was a standout sprinter this year for Pasadena, and set a new state record in the 440-yard dash at 46.6. He also recorded a 21.2 220, and anchored the Bulldogs' winning 440 and mile relay units.

Named as CIF City track & field Athlete of the Year was Ron Williams of Chatsworth, who was the city champ in the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes.

S.D. starts T-Ball loop

Because of a heavy demand, the San Dimas Recreation Department is starting a second T-Ball league for boys and girls, ages 5-6-7.

To register, visit the department's offices at 245 E. Bonita Avenue before Wednesday, June 29. Games will be played on Saturdays and everyone plays. There is an $8 fee which covers tee-shirt uniforms, instruction and awards.

The department had to turn away 50 applicants because of the heavy registration for the first league so it is asking those who were turned away to re-register.

Services set for Bill Lee

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for Bill Lee, who won 169 games during a 14-year National League career with Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston.

Lee, who pitched in the major leagues from 1934-47, had his best years in 1935 and 1938, when he led the National League in victories pitching for Chicago. He was 20-6 in 1935 and 22-9 in 1938.

Lee was 0-2 in four World Series games and finished his career with a 3.45 earned run average and a 169-157 record.

Lee died at his home Wednesday after an extended illness. He was 67.

Harris happy about trade

MONROE, La. (AP) — Quarterback James Harris, traded by Los Angeles to the San Diego Chargers, said Thursday he never asked to be traded but is glad to be playing with a club that wants him.

"I never said that I asked to be traded. I was quoted as saying that, but I never said it," remarked Harris, who is visiting his family here.

"It's evident they didn't want me to play," he said of the Rams, where he was displaced as starting quarterback last year after leading Los Angeles to the National Football Conference playoffs two years in a row.

"I never asked to be traded but I prepared myself to live with the decision they made," Harris said. "This is the way I have to take it."

In moving to San Diego, the seven-year National Football League veteran returns to the direction of coach Tommy Prothro, under whose tutelage he became the first black to quarterback an NFL team while Prothro was at Los Angeles.

Harris said he is encouraged that the Chargers showed an interest in him by trading future draft choices. But he said he would take a "wait and see" attitude on his position with the team, where he must displace quarterback Dan Fouts to earn a starting spot.

"I'll just try to prove myself as a football player and do anything I can to contribute to the team winning," he said.

North squad gets together

The valley will be well-represented Saturday when a get-acquainted luncheon is held for the North team in preparation for the 26th annual Shrine All-Star Football Game.

Two local high school products, San Dimas' Sonny LaFargue and Chaffey's Bob Sebro, will be on hand for the luncheon, along with the other 26 members of the North squad.

That unit will be meeting at noon at the Rodger Young Center in Los Angeles for the luncheon, the kickoff affair for the annual Shrine classic.

LaFargue (6-1, 235) is listed as an offensive guard on the North roster. The San Dimas gridder is headed for Cal State Long Beach next season.

Sebro (6-3, 250) is carried on the North roster as an offensive tackle. He is heading for the U. of Colorado in the fall.

Both LaFargue and Sebro were on the Progress Bulletin All-Valley team last fall.

Other members of the North squad include quarterback Randy Hertel from Los Altos, and running backs Tim Brown (Cleveland), Robbie Chapman (South Pasadena) and Darren Rogers (Agoura).

Top name on the South squad is running back Freeman McNeil from Banning High. McNeil was the L.A. City Player of the Year.

The All-Star clash is expected to draw more than 50,000 fans to the Rose Bowl this year. The game is set for Saturday evening, July 23. Its proceeds go to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

FOR THE LAST TWO WEEKENDS we have been practically living out of a suitcase. First it was at Loyola-Marymount conducting AYSO's Coach Development Program, and last weekend at the Airport Marina Hotel conducting coaching workshops, reviewing proposed changes to rules and regulations, and providing some "halftime" show-biz buffoonery at the Annual General Meeting of the American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO).

NANCY KENT HAS BEEN NAMED THE NEW AREA DIRECTOR FOR AYSO becoming the first woman Area Director in this organization. Nancy became involved with AYSO in 1972 as a team mother in Diamond Bar. The next year she was Secretary of Diamond Bar AYSO and in 1975 Nancy moved up to Regional Commissioner. Last year she got close again to the "grass roots" by coaching and officiating. The new board of Regional Commissioners for AYSO Area G spearheaded by Nancy are: Region 3, Claremont—Herman Schoene; Region 23, Hacienda Heights, Rowland Heights — Jim Holt; Region 30, Pomona — Ross Martin; Region 31, Diamond Bar, Walnut — Jerry Hancock; Region 32, Upland — Rick Williams; Region 37, Corona, Norco, Home Gardens — Mike Hughes; Region 65, Cucamonga, Alta Loma, Etiwanda — Judy Massagli; Region 66, Ontario/Montclair — Waynn Pearson; Region 67, Chino — Lois McCollough; and Region 112, San Dimas/La Verne — John Della Penna.

OF THE 25 PROPOSED CHANGES to the AYSO Rules and Regulations 15 passed. Although most of the changes were administrative in nature, some were significant to the local teams. These changes are:

1. — A player may be a member of only one AYSO team (excluding All Stars) at any one time.

2. — Regions may form co-ed (K) divisions for 5 and 6 year old boys and girls. Teams formed in this division will be primarily for the introduction of soccer skills and techniques to the children, not for competitive purposes.

3. — In case of a tie following overtime, (if the game in question is the final game of a playoff series where neither of the teams involved will be entering further AYSO playoff competition which is contingent upon the result of the game in question,) play shall cease and the two teams involved shall be declared co-champions. Prior to the final game of a playoff series, in case of a tie following overtime, the winner shall be determined by playing an additional "sudden victory" overtime.

4. — All Star players must compete only in the division in which they participated during the regular season.

5. — If a player is injured, the coach may substitute for the player, in which case the injured player may not return until the beginning of the next quarter. Only the player who is injured is credited with a quarter's play regardless of the actual time played.

6. — It shall be the duty of each coach to participate in positive coaching that instructs and encourages players during AYSO games. Sideline coaching shall be limited to two coaches from each team, and they shall be limited to an area outside the field of play adjacent to the area in the field and no closer than 18 yards from each goal line.

7. — In the event that play has been stopped with the ball in the penalty area and the FIFA rules call for play to be resumed with a drop ball, or play has been stopped in the penalty area because of injury, the game shall be restarted with the drop ball being taken at the closest point outside the penalty area.

THE MOST HISTORIC AND TOUGHEST soccer competition in the United States is the 63-year-old U.S. Open Cup tournament whose first champion was the Brooklyn Field Club in 1914. Since then the Open Cup, known also as the Dewar Cup (the Scotch company donated it), has been won mainly by teams from Massachusetts towns, NY, Philly and St. Louis. In the Fifties the west coast started to show strength in this competition when Albert Ebert's L.A. Kickers copped the national title and the Canvasbaks of San Pedro (both with Scottish international Billy Steel helming) added a second straight for the west.

Within the last five years our Los Angeles Maccabees have won the Dewar Cup twice, and San Francisco Athletic Club has added another to western laurels showing the rise of the far west in national soccer.

Now Far West fans have a chance to see the Maccabees try for a third this Sunday when they tie into the strong German/Hungarian club of Philadelphia . . . a strangely-named club for a lineup of all American-born players!

Heading the Philly lineup are the Bahr brothers, Chris and Casey, whose father Walter Bahr was right half on the USA World Cup team which defeated England in Belo Horizonte, Brazil in 1950. Both Bahrs have already won Olympic honors and are examples of the upcoming American player. Will it be Philly or L.A. who will be the 64th U.S. Open Cup winner? The answer will be unfolded Sunday at Jackie Robinson Field (formerly Rancho Cienega) at LaBrea and Rodeo Avenues at 3:15 p.m. Try to see this most rugged of knockout competitions. There will be overtime and penalty-kicks in effect if they tie in regulation 90-minutes.

THE NASL-LEADING AZTECS with only 12 games under their belt have managed to become high-point leaders by virtue of their 30 goals scored in a lesser number of games . . . a fact that will carry much strength in the stretch run for playoff positions. Still heading the stingiest defense is the Las Vegas Quicksilvers and they've played more games to-date than any other NASL club which intensifies their claim to best defensive team.

The Quicksilvers loosened up a bit last week in a 3-0 loss to the Aztecs but we were all treated to the finesse of the Magnificent Mozambique, Eusebio, whose twilight skills are still beautiful to watch.

Add the weekly wizardry of George Best and you've got an athletic attraction that is worth far more than the meager crowds coming to the Coliseum. Everything is first class and you've got the world's greatest weather.

Now if the media would give soccer its share of time and space like we are getting out here in our soccer-conscious valley area the great game might have a chance of making a dent in the big-time of sports.

The high-flying Aztecs are off on a long road trip to Minnesota, Rochester, New Jersey and the Yale Bowl before returning for the "game of the season" when a new record for soccer attendance could be set for L.A.

Why?

Well, four of the world's finest players will come to town with the Cosmos on July 2 when Ramon Miflin of Peru, Giorgio Chinaglia of Italy, Franz Beckenbauer (European Footballer of the Year) from West Germany and the Peerless Pele will dig their cleats into the natural Coliseum turf.

Add George Best to that attraction and you've got what might be the top soccer attraction in the world coming right o'here to our town. How can anybody miss it? Especially the sports editors.

THE AMERICAN SOCCER LEAGUE shows Sacramento's Spirits heading the parade with 42 points but they have played at least three more games than the rest of the Western Division and with the multiple-points system that is not a real lead.

The defending ASL champ Skyhawks and Santa Barbara's Condors are breathing hard on the Spirits, and the California Sunshine have four extra games to make up the difference which could make them a contender.

This week's sked shows Santa Barbara at Van Nuys Friday; the Sunshine at Santa Barbara Saturday; and Santa Barbara at Santa Ana Wednesday.

SOUTH AMERICAN ACTION: Brazil tied England 0-0, and West Germany 1-1 before Maracana crowds of 77,000 and 106,000 last week.

Chino coach gets surprise

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Ilse Scheffer of Chino thought she was having dinner with two friends as she stepped into a local restaurant.

Actually, she was being honored by the women coaches of the San Antonio League during a surprise dinner and awards ceremony at Lord Charley's restaurant.

Miss Scheffer is retiring after serving 35 years as a teacher at Chino High School and a coach of women's sports.

The schools in the league field women's teams in basketball, volleyball, tennis, field hockey, track and field events, softball and badminton.

Miss Scheffer has coached all but badminton.

"I've had a good share of championship teams over the years and really have loved every minute of coaching," said the trim, young-looking teacher. "But now I want to retire while I'm able to be active in sports myself."

She plans to play tennis, travel and enjoy her hobbies.

But sports will continue to be a part of her life. She already has reservations for the 1980 Olympic games in Moscow.

Miss Scheffer started teaching at Chino High School in September, 1942, after having graduated from UCLA with a degree in physical education.

In addition to her teaching and coaching duties, Miss Scheffer has written several articles on coaching basketball and speedball and has been a national officer in softball and basketball organizations.

A unique planter "trophy" was presented to Miss Scheffer by Jean Brennecke of Bonita High School. The surprise party was organized by Shirley Wright and Madra Flaherty of Claremont High School.

Other league schools, in addition to Chino, are Montclair, Ganesha, Upland, Pomona, Garey and Pomona Catholic high schools.

Racers need more money

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The general manager of the Indianapolis Racers, out of money to meet Wednesday's payroll and faced with the possibility of losing his coach even if the team survives, took his problems to Chicago for today's World Hockey Association meetings.

The league's fact-finding committee was expected to report to the WHA trustees on possibilities for merger with the National Hockey League.

Park planned near San Diego

San Diego County Parks and Recreation Department has targeted this October as a deadline for acquisition of approximately 180 acres of land — most of it uplands — that would complete an 800-acre wildlife-oriented regional park at San Elijo Lagoon in the coastal area between Solano Beach and Cardiff-by-the-Sea.

The lagoon has been the subject of public controversy since it was first zoned for development in 1964, with opposing pressures to develop it for housing and commercial purposes and to preserve it for wildlife values.

It is proposed that part of the park — approximately 500 acres of wetlands below the 100-year flood line — be designated a state ecological reserve. Approximately one-half of this wetlands has just been acquired by the California Department of Fish and Game through its adjunct, the Wildlife Conservation Board.

Escrow closed June 1 on 268.31 acres of the lagoon purchased for $910,000 from United California Bank, formally concluding several years of negotiations for the property. The purchase, authorized by the WCB at its March 24 meeting, also settled litigation between the State Lands Commission and the property owner over tideland claims by the state.

One-half of the WCB's purchase price is reimbursable from the Land and Water Conservation Fund of the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

The bureau has also put up $500,000 toward county acquisition of the remaining 180 acres of uplands included in park plans.

Pete Cuthbert, planner for the county Parks and Recreation Department, said that with the addition of the federal grant the county now has $1.6 million for purchase of lagoon uplands. He said it is hoped the purchases can be completed by October.

Cuthbert said plans for the park included trails, a docent program, nature interpretive facilities and perhaps in the future a nature museum.

In Sacramento Chester Hart, executive officer of the Wildlife Conservation Board, said negotiations were now underway for an agreement that would give the county the management of the ecological reserve in conjunction with operation of the remainder of the regional park.

San Elijo Lagoon is one of the major stops for migratory water birds along the San Diegy County coastline, and at one time, when it was connected to the sea, it was a productive fish nursery and shellfish area.

Gun show due at Fairgrounds

Don Bullock's California Gun & Collector's Show will be playing at the L.A. County Fairgrounds June 25-26, and Bullock has promised weapons buffs that some rare and unusual guns will be on display.

For example, there's the Tipup Pistol, a single shot calibre 22, with a 10-inch barrel and a skeleton stock made of what looks like light brass bands, detachable, of course. The weapons were in vogue circa 1879 through 1886, and were first used for gallery and target shooting, later for hunting small game. They were manufactured by Joshua Stevens at his Chicopee Falls, Mass. factory and were so popular for a time they were distributed all over the U.S. and exported to Great Britain and the Continent. Today only a handful of these unusual guns survive, a few being owned by collectors Alex Moeller and Jerry Walters, who will be showing them at the Pomona Show.

Ever since guns were invented, men have been fascinated with them, and gunsmiths have been producing odd specimens. The Derringer is one, noted for its diminutive size, some so small they could be concealed in the palm of a lady's closed hand, or in a man's waistband, in the top of his boot or in a woman's bodice.

The Blunderbuss was another oddity. The mouth of its barrel was shaped like a funnel and the weapon was loaded with grapeshot. The idea was that when the little pellets spewed out, they would fly in all directions over a wide circumference. Experts, however, say this didn't happen too often. Later, the shotgun came upon the scene and remained popular through present time.

Many other such items will be seen at both of the California Gun ' Collector's shows, which will be held in Bldg. 3-A of the Fairgrounds, near the main entrance at White and McKinley Streets in Pomona.

Parking is free. Admission is $1.75 for adults, 75 cents for kids. Hours of the shows all days are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Clammer turns to wrong man

Never trust a stranger to help you out of a jam with the law. You could wind up in worse shape than you were before.

Three clam diggers at Huntington Beach discovered that the hard way early Saturday morning, June 4, when they were found by Department of Fish and Game Warden Chet Gall with 59 Pismo clams in their possession.

Ten Pismos per person is all the law allows, so Gall got out his book and started to write citations for 29 clams over the limit. The men argued that 20 of the clams, two limits, were for two of their wives, who were at the scene but not digging. In fact, one of the women said she couldn't dig for clams because of her heart condition.

Warden Gall explained that once you have taken your own limit, it is unlawful to take another limit for someone else, even if that person is present. And how could they account for the other nine overlimit clams?

One of the suspects pointed to a man and his young son, both carrying clamming forks, who had approached to observe the incident and were standing nearby.

"The nine clams belong to him; we were just holding them for him," the suspect said. He turned to the man and said loudly, "Say, buddy, you'd better come and get your clams. We have to leave now."

"No, they're not mine," the bystander protested. "We just got here. We're not even wet yet. And we'll dig our own clams, thanks."

Mets option Staiger

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets announced early Thursday they had optioned third baseman Roy Staiger to Tidewater of the International League.

The National League team also announced that Joe Torre, who had remained on the active roster after taking over the managerial reins from Joe Frazier, no longer would be a player.

The move lowered the Met roster to 25 players, the major league maximum.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Against a conflicting news background, prices moved little during the morning Friday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

While traders were inspired by a Commerce Department report on personal income, they also were disheartened by failure of Citibank of New York to shave its prime rate, now at the 6¾ per cent level. Earlier this week Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. cut its prime rate a quarter point to 6½ per cent, but no other major banks followed suit.

Citibank announced at Friday's market opening that it was making no change in its rate, a move that would have been welcomed by traders and investors. Any move that cuts the cost of doing corporate business is good news to Wall Street.

At the same time, the Commerce Department reported that personal income in May reached its best level on record. The 0.6 per cent rise for the month brought personal income to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.5 trillion, the highest ever.

With these developments to digest, the Dow Jones industrial average, up 2.88 points in the previous session, was unchanged at 920.45 shortly before noon. Advances edged declines, 548 to 500, among the 1,558 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to about 9,040,000 shares, compared with 9,280,000 shares traded in the first two hours Thursday.

A bright feature was the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. The issue moved up ⅝ to 11⅛ after a delayed opening. Directors of the supermarket chain approved payment of the first quarterly dividend for shareholders since November, 1974. The five-cent dividend contrasted with its previous payment of 15 cents two and a half years ago. The company also reported higher earnings for the first quarter.

Most active issue was Franklin Mint, up ⅜ to 11¼. The issue gave ground Thursday after the company said profits for this year would be substantially lower than a year ago.

Second most active was AllisChalmers, off ½ to 31⅞. A block of 105,200 shares moved at 32. Third most active was Twentieth Century-Fox, up ¾ to 24 on 105,200 shares. The movie maker has been higher and active on the box-office draw of its science-fiction movie, "Star Wars."

Warner-Lambert Co. said it expects to report higher earnings for the second quarter. The issue was up ⅛ to 28⅝.

Gulf Oil, whose company executives have admitted the company was part of an international cartel to raise uranium prices, gave up ½ to 28½.

Rosario Resources Corp. and Fresnillo Co. have approved a merger plan. Rosario gave up ⅜ to 22. Fresnillo, traded on the American Stock Exchange, gained ½ to 19⅛.

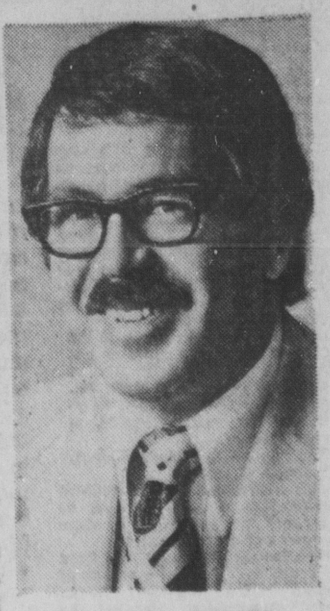
S&L office to open in Walnut



ERNEST J. STINES

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of South Pasadena will hold the grand opening for its new branch office at 312 S. Lemon Ave., in Walnut, June 25, from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend ribbon cutting ceremonies and tour the new facility. Refreshments will be served and gifts will be given away. A musical program will be presented.

The office, fourth in the chain of the 41-year-old association, is a slumpstone building with red tile roof in the Walnut Business Park complex. This is north of Valley Boulevard and opposite the Walnut Post Office.

Ernest J. Stines, a resident of Walnut and for the last three years manager of the Monterey Park office, will transfer to manage the new office as assistant vice president.

Public officials, civic personalities and business executives will join in the opening ceremonies. Association executives will include Robert F. Clanton, president and managing officer; William E. Clanton, senior vice president and secretary; Kenneth P. Ford, vice president; William J. Thomas, treasurer; Charles E. Clark, assistant vice president; R.A. Young, assistant vice president and Stines.

Government spending facts

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tax Foundation, a publicly-supported, nonprofit, tax-exempt organization that hates to see money spent by the biggest nonprofit institution of all — government — has just published its biennial admonition.

"Government expenditures for 1977 are projected at $9,607 per U.S. household," writes chairman Willard Rockwell in the 1977 edition of Facts and Figures on Government Finance.

The chairman relates that the comparable figure for 1950 was only $1,615, but that comparison isn't quite cricket. In another part of the book you learn that the 1976 dollar stands for less than half the value of the 1950 dollar.

Nevertheless, the point is made. Government spending is rising like June temperatures. It takes close to half of household income.

Rockwell asks: Do we as citizens want our government units to spend that much? Do we know where all this spending is leading us? Is the money being raised in ways that best promote our national goals?

The Tax Foundation's answers to these questions are not provided, but based on past declarations we might assume them to be negative. Government spending, it feels, is often mindless, directionless and opposed to free enterprise goals.

But government spending also is misunderstood. True or false: Each year the federal government takes an increasingly larger percentage of total tax receipts, and state and local governments less.

The fact, as computed by the foundation, is that federal tax receipts in 1976 amounted to 63.7 per cent of the total, the lowest percentage since 58.1 was recorded in 1942.

At the same time, the percentage taken by state governments rose to 21.7 per cent, highest since 1942. Local governments took 15.1 per cent, a figure exceeded as recently as 1971, 1972 and 1973.

Ah, but that's not the full story. In fact, the recent trend of states to acquire an almost imperceptibly larger part of the receipts is almost insignificant when matched against the big change.

And what is that? Let some figures tell: In 1902, the percentage distribution of tax receipts was federal 37.4, state 11.4, and local 51.3.

As recently as 1940, local government received 31.6 per cent of receipts, but since then the numbers have seldom reached half that level. The low point was in 1944, at 9 per cent. Match that against 1932's 53.6.

Since World War II, the federal percentage of receipts has ranged from nearly 80 per cent at the close of the war to the 1976 figure, falling by small amounts in an irregular pattern. State receipts have inched higher, while local numbers have ranged around 10 to 15.

Contained in those figures are many stories: The marked change in the relative power of local versus central government, the federalization of services, the international power balance that requires huge sums for defense.

There are some questions, too. For example: Does the sharply lower percentage of local tax receipts explain in part the plight of cities? You'll get an argument from those who note, low percentage notwithstanding, that local tax receipts have continued to rise in dollar amounts.

Chrysler lists foreign bribes

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. says its overseas operations paid foreign government officials, union representatives and employes some $2.5 million in bribes, extortion money and other questionable sums between 1971 and 1976.

In a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the nation's No. 3 automaker said recently that the payments over the six-year period averaged about $425,000 a year. Sales outside the United States and Canada at the time averaged $3.3 billion a year.

None of the payments was made in the United States, according to the company, which did not identify any of the countries or subsidiaries involved. Chrysler has wholly or partially owned subsidiaries in 15 countries outside the United States and Canada.

Earlier this spring, General Motors Corp. said its foreign subsidiaries made at least $1.25 million in similar questionable payments over a five-year period.

Chrysler said a special internal investigation ordered by management revealed the existence of 10 secret funds in seven countries which paid out $720,000 to expedite business.

The company also said it paid a total $179,000 in two countries because of "extortion by public officials resulting from abusive demands for taxes not legally due."

Chrysler added that several subsidiaries handed out more than $1 million in bribes to minor government employes.

About $480,000 in "facilitating payments" were made to union representatives and employes in six countries, Chrysler said.

Some $90,000 was paid to governmental employes in one country, nearly all of it at the direction of a sales agent who works for Chrysler on a commission basis.

Another irregularity uncovered by the investigation, Chrysler said, involved a foreign subsidiary which failed to record its ownership of a business with a book value of about $100,000.

The firm noted that its investigation found no illegal political contribution of corporate funds in the United States or overseas.

Chrysler said it has improved its policies and internal controls and taken other steps to restrict future unquestionable payments and "provide additional assurance that there will be no improper disbursement of corporate funds."

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — In buying flashing for certain places on my roof, is it necessary to stick to one kind of metal? A friend of mine says you can't put two different metal flashings on the same roof. I have some copper left over from another job, but the new metal I intend to buy is aluminum. Can I use them on the same roof? It's an asphalt shingle roof.

A. — Your friend is right in the sense that different metals cannot be combined because of a corrosive process that takes place when this is done. But if you were to use copper flashing around a chimney, for instance, there is no reason why you could not use another type of metal some other place on the roof.

Q. — I read a magazine story in which a house builder was being interviewed. He referred several times to the overcoat of the house. What did he mean?

A. — It's one of several terms that simply mean the exterior walls of a house. Another expression of this kind, the skin of a house, means the same thing.

Q. — My grandfather, who used to be a cabinetmaker, keeps talking about the beautiful finishes produced on wood with nothing more than linseed oil and turpentine. Is this kind of finish all he says it is?

A. — Yes, if you have plenty of time and energy. There are several finishes of this type. All must be used on raw wood or wood from which the old finish has been removed. One calls for a half-and-half mixture of boiled linseed oil and turpentine, another for equal parts of linseed oil, turnpentine and spar varnish. The mixture is rubbed in, being especially careful to rid the surface of all excess oil. It must then be rubbed vigorously every week or so for several months, after which it develops the kind of satin finish that wood ordinarily gets after many years of tender care. The sheen will last indefinitely, but may collect dust, so the surface must be wiped every now and then.

Q. — I have never used shellac on a piece of furniture, but have experimented with it on scrap wood. It seems to come out all right, but now I have to know whether it must be sanded between coats, since I understand that several thin coats are much better than a single thick one. Also, can it be used on any kind of unfinished furniture?

A. — Yes, it should be sanded between coats, and yes, it can be used on any kind of unfinished furniture. The qualification on the furniture is that shellac is soluble in some liquids, so it is better to use it on pieces of furniture that will not be exposed to liquids. This does not mean that other finishes are not susceptible to damage from certain liquids, only that shellac is a bit more vulnerable.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y., 11743.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

You may never have put up a brick wall or constructed anything made of brick, but there's no reason why you can't do repointing.

Repointing is the professional term for the repair of crumbling mortar in the joints of brickwork. If you have any brickwork at all around the house, it's likely that sooner or later you will find that some of the mortar has come loose. Entirely aside from the standpoint of appearance, this condition should get quick attention, since water coming through the joints will turn a minor repair into a major one. Also, rain which enters a single location on an exterior house wall can cause extensive damage to inside walls and ceilings.

Premixed mortar to which only water need be added is best for most repointing projects. But when it is necessary to make your own mixture, use one part of portland cement to one part of hydrated lime, five parts of sand and enough water to make a workable solution. Too much water will weaken the mixture.

The trick in picking away at a joint to remove crumbling mortar is to apply enough force to break up any mortar that is loose or threatening to become loose but not enough force to dislodge material that is solidly in place. Although it is generally recommended that this be done with a cold chisel and hammer, almost any fairly pointed tool, such as an old screwdriver, can be used. Remember that it is not enough to break up the loose mortar; it must be extracted from the opening. When that has been done, thoroughly wet the cavity. Either spray water into it or throw a glass of water at it so that the area is soaked. Don't spare the water, the object being to prevent the moisture being sucked out of the new mortar too quickly.

Use a small putty knife or something similar to slide the new mortar into the joint. Pack it in so that it sticks out just a little. Dip the knife into water, then scoop up the excess mortar. There are several ways to finish off the joints. Probably the easiest for the novice is to push the tip of a pointed trowel along the joint at a 45-degree angle, which will push out a little of the mortar, which is then forced into a V-shaped groove; hence, the name V-joint. You won't do this perfectly at first, but you'll get the hang of it and nobody will notice that the joints aren't exactly right. All that matters is that you achieve the objective of making a joint that sheds rain.

During all this, keep a wet rag handy. If any of the mortar gets on the face of the brick, wipe it off instantly, as it is difficult to remove a few minutes later.

When a brick is damaged so badly that it has to be replaced, you will have to remove all the mortar around it to remove it. This time you not only soak the opening, you soak the replacement brick in water for at least 10 or 15 minutes, more if feasible.

As with all masonry repairs, curing the patches is necessary. This calls for wetting down the repaired joints a couple of times a day for several days.

(Repairing concrete and patching plaster are among the 35 subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Gardeners check list

—Now's the time to sow seed of many perennials to bloom next summer. Try sowing some delphiniums, penstemons, coreopsis, columbines or sweet Williams in flats or wait until started plants appear in nurseries.

—For unbelievably lovely sweet peas, prepare a trench of manure and fertilizer for the planting of seeds next month. Plant early varieties that bloom well in December and January.

—Dig down a few inches into soil after you water to see if you're doing a good job. Remember the most effective watering is deep and infrequent.

—Make use of the good gardening ideas at local county fairs. Visit them this month or next and something may catch your eye.

—If water is in short supply and you are hand carrying water to thirsty plants, be sure to water the same area of the root system each time. It's better to maintain some of the root system throughout the season rather than teasing different sides of the plant with water.

—Water tomatoes and melons deeply so water penetrates at least two feet. You should water shrubs deeply too.

—Keep after mildew problems on roses, lilacs, euonymous, begonias, etc. Spray weekly as long as disease is evident.

—Pinch back Chrysanthemums three or four more times for bushy plants and more flowers next fall.

—Hibiscus will soon be in full display. If you have a sunny and warm, but protected area for flowering shrubs, run down to the nursery and buy some.

Guide to care free vacation

Choosing a house-sitter

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

How do you go about choosing someone to mind your house while you are on vacation? It's a question that has puzzled a lot of people.

Two categories of house sitters are available — sleep-in and live-in. Sleep-in sitters come and go, airing and feeding animals, watering plants and the like, and sleeping in your house at night. A live-in sitter will be at your house or apartment as if it were the sitter's own abode.

Sleep-in sitters include short-term sitters who live close by and arrive with a minimum of personal effects. It upsets the household little as the sitter continues to use another home for meals and changes of clothing. The fee is based on the services required.

Live-in sitters will cook, use your closets and bureau drawers, and perhaps even use your car. You will need to make space for them as you would for a person to whom you are renting your home. That may be a big nuisance if your vacation is a short one, but on a long term basis, it works quite well. A lone sitter or a couple may have no other home, depending on house sitting jobs for a roof overhead. That type of professional sitter usually works without a fee. They enjoy moving about usually and will expect to entertain and live in your house as they might in their own home.

For short-term two week or one month vacations, a sleep-in sitter may work out best, particularly if the sitter is a neighbor. Some of the most reliable sleep-in sitters may be in the 18 to 25-year-old group, but unfortunately people often skip this group, unfairly assuming that all are liabilities because they are at the partying age. Responsible young sitters will observe ground rules — no entertaining, a limit on visitors, smoking rules, or whatever. Young people usually like animals and plants and are likely to have more patience than older people who might merely tolerate some of the house chores.

Senior citizens make good short-term sitters if you remember that not all older persons are blessed with built-in halos. You must provide ground rules for them, too.

A good source for finding sitters is the neighbors. Many people have relatives who would like to visit but the hindrance might be space and they can't afford a hotel. It's a freebie, usually if you can locate such a person or couple.

Local church societies might be consulted about house sitters, young and old. School students can be checked out, even if schools are closed in summer. A principal, teacher or guidance counselor would be happy, no doubt, to answer a telephone question. Or a note could be dropped to the school so that a letter might be forwarded to the proper person. Many schools have a career consultant who would be happy to help.

Most houseplants need a little 'summer' attention

Now that summer is here, can it be that the outside garden is so inviting that your houseplants are a little neglected? Shame! Remember what a comfort they are during the winter. Show them some attention now, or they might not flourish next December.

The highlight of summer, at least for the plants, is a vacation outside. They'll certainly enjoy it and show their appreciation with healthy new growth. But, before you push them outdoors, give it a little thought of preparation. Sinking the pots into the ground is good; it keeps the roots cooler and moist, but snails and bugs may crawl inside the soil ball within the pot. If you decide to go this route, place plastic or wire screening over the drainage hold to keep insects from crawling in.

When you relocate plants outside, do so on a cool or cloudy day and pay attendtion to the plant's light requirements. Few will tolerate more than filtered sunlight; most will grow best in light shade. Direct sunlight even for the short time will burn the leaves and probably cause them to drop. Sun grown plants will also be harder to acclimatize next fall when brought indoors. Also, remember to lift the pots periodically to be sure they haven't rooted outside the pots.

As usual, keep the foliage clean by spraying with jets of water to remove the dust, dirt and grime and discourage bug populations. Houseplants outdoors are more susceptible to insect attack than when indoors. Continually check for and destroy the insect pests as they appear and be especially thorough before you bring them back in the house.

At the end of their outdoor vacation, about a month before house heat goes on, bring them back inside. Clean them first by removing dead leaves and insects before they get inside. They should quickly readjust to the house without difficulty and give you another year of winter solace.

Joyce Brothers

Tattoo turns her off

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I was getting serious about a man I know until I went to a local pool with him and discovered he has tattoos on his chest and back. It shocked me and somehow turned me off like few other things could. I know he's still the same person but this tattoo business just seems so dumb and crazy to me. I can't explain it to him because I don't want to hurt his feelings and he doesn't know why I don't want to see him anymore. I can't be serious about him now and I think he'd be wasting his time because our relationship can't possibly get anywhere. — O.V.

Dear O.V.: If a tattoo can demolish your whole relationship, then it must have not been founded on very solid ground to begin with. If you could overcome your horror at this needlepoint on your boyfriend's torso, you might gain some insights into his background by asking him when and how he got his decorations.

Tattoos can be a sign of growth and health, according to Dr. James Orten and William Bell of the University of Tennessee.

Instead of viewing tattoos as a badge of defiance, it might be more productive to see them as an attempt to cope or adjust to one's circumstances and to communicate one's feelings about them or about one's self.

Men, especially young men, get tattoos in an attempt to establish some kind of clear, personal identity. It's as if they don't know who they are and they feel if they put some kind of tag or label on themselves, their identity will become clearer to themselves and to others. Men often get tattoos when they are in environments that are depersonalizing, such as the armed services.

It's possible your friend dislikes and regrets his tattoos as much as you do. You'd hurt his feelings less by discussing them than you would by simply dropping him without any explanation.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My wife and I just learned that both our college son and daughter are living with friends as if they were married. My wife feels this is immoral. I think, as far as my daughter's concerned, it's just damn stupid. No man's going to marry a girl if he doesn't have to. I'm really tempted to cut off funds from both of them. I don't see why college authorities can't do something about this sort of thing. If you ask me, this is one of the reasons that marriage is going down the drain. Is there anything my wife and I can do short of ranting and raving? — C.N.

Dear C.N.: I'm afraid not. Parents who interfere in their youngsters' romances seem to make the bonds between the young lovers stronger, rather than weaker. This change in life style is part of the sexual revolution that has been taking place over the last decade. I don't agree that living together before marriage is necessarily destructive. It can teach the individuals involved that they're not ready for marriage, it can lead to individual growth, and as long as there are no children involved, it needn't be viewed as totally negative.

I sympathize with you and your wife but I think you may be overreacting. Situations and philosophies are different today and most young men don't automatically shun marriage just because they can enjoy sexual relations without it. Young people are now more apt to marry for the right reasons — common interests and companionship — rather than to satisfy their desire to have sex. Since they can have sex without marriage, marriage, in a sense, becomes more serious than in the past.

I definitely think you shouldn't penalize your children by withholding money. This will create many problems and will accomplish nothing.

The king of the fathers had to be Solomon. He had 700 wives and 300 concubines, with the inevitable offspring. The Bible doesn't say how many, says Sally Hopkins of Hallmark. On the king's heels was Emperor Maulai Ismail of Morocco, who reversed Solomon's statistics with about 300 wives and 700 concubines. He died in 1727 at the age of 81, leaving 548 sons and 340 daughters.

We seem to be a century ahead of our calendar by calling the years in the 1900s the 20th century, instead of the 19th century. A century is a period of 100 years, and the first century A.D. was between Christ's birth and 100 A.D.

It is the second century, the years from A.D. 101 through 200, that seems to put us a century ahead of our time. For in the year 201 A.D. we had entered into the 3rd century.

By continuing to count in this manner, we find that the present century — the years between 1901 and 2000 — is indeed the 20th century.

The 21st century will begin in the year 2001 A.D.

The years before the birth of Christ are marked B.C., which means "before Christ." The years after Christ's birth are A.D., or Anno Domini, meaning "in the year of Our Lord."

All years after the birth of Christ are called the Christian Era.

Supreme Court's religion-work ruling scored by solon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress soon will be asked to wipe out the effects of a Supreme Court ruling that says workers have no legal right to take a day off for religious reasons.

"The Supreme Court decision is wrong," Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., said Thursday after hearing the high court's ruling. "I shall renew my legislative efforts in this issue."

It was Randolph who in 1972 pushed legislation through Congress making it clear that under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 employers would have to accommodate religious employes whenever possible.

But the Supreme Court, in a 7-2 decision Thursday, ruled that employers are not requird to give an employe certain days off because of religious beliefs if a seniority system bars such accommodation or if such action would amount to preferential treatment.

"In the absence of clear statutory language or legislative history to the contrary, we will not readily construe the statute to require an employer to discriminate against some employes in order to enable others to observe their sabbath," Justice Byron White said in the majority opinion.

The ruling is a major legal defeat for millions whose religions dictate that they not work on particular days of the week. It carries impact for Orthodox Jews, Seventh-Day Adventists, Seventh-Day Baptists and members of the Worldwide Church of God.

Randolph, a Seventh-Day Baptist, indicated he would seek a new law that could not be misinterpreted by the court.

"Our great tradition of religious freedom and our nation's accommodation of religious diversity has been severely damaged," he said in referring to the high court's action.

The court's two dissenters used even stronger language.

"All Americans will be a little poorer until today's decision is erased," said Justices Thurgood Marhsall and William Brennan. "The ultimate tragedy is that, despite Congress's best efforts, one of this nation's pillars of strength — our hospitality to religious diversity — has been seriously eroded."

The case decided by the court involved a Trans World Airlines worker, Larry Hardison, who was fired in 1969 for refusing to work from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday, observed as the sabbath by the Worldwide Church of God.

Hardison sued TWA and his union, the International Association of Machinists, charging religious discrimination. He won in the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, but TWA and the union appealed, arguing that the 1964 Civil Rights Law and its 1972 amendment violate the Constitution's ban on government entanglement in religion.

The Justice Department urged the high court to rule for Hardison, saying TWA did not do enough to accommodate him.

But White wrote that TWA had met its legal obligation and that anything more it could have done would have imposed undue hardship.

The court did not rule on the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Act or the amendment.

Test flight of space shuttle delayed

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A computer failure today forced a 24-hour postponement in the first manned test flight of the Space Shuttle Enterprise, the spaceship designed as the workhorse of the American space program for the rest of the century.

The malfunction was in one of the four computers that control the complex manuevering gear scheduled for testing aboard the shuttle, officials said.

The flight was rescheduled for 8 a.m. on Saturday.

The piggyback flight atop a Boeing 747 jumbo jet will be the first in a series of four dress rehearsals for the crucial day when the 150,000-pound shuttle will be cut loose from the mother plane to fly on its own.

Fred Haise Jr., the spacecraft commander, and pilot Gordon Fullerton were assigned to man the airliner-sized ship, with its control, electrical, hydraulic, coolant and other systems activated for the first time.

Wearing low-altitude flight suits, they were to climb into the roomy cabin of the craft about two hours before takeoff. With the shuttle perched on the Boeing's back, the two crewmen sit more than 50 feet above the runway.

Plans called for the shuttle and its carrier to reach an altitude of no more than 15,000 feet, but the Mission Control Center in Houston, Tex., was put into action to issue directions as though it were an actual space flight.

The Houston center, which ran America's moon and other manned space flights, was to receive data from instruments aboard the shuttle and the mother ship that would tell engineers how the shuttle's flying gear performed.

Haise, 42, is the only space flight veteran among the four crewmen selected for the shuttle approach and landing tests, of which the current flights are Phase Two. He was aboard the ill-fated Apollo 13 ship that had a power failure en route to the moon and limped safely back to Earth in 1970.

Fullerton, 39, has been in the astronaut program since 1969, and was a member of the support crews for Apollo 14 and 17.

Phase One of the tests was carried out in February and March with the unoccupied shuttle not yet wired with its active systems. The flights established so efficiently that the piggyback arrangement was safe and stable that the last flight was canceled.

The shuttle's free flights, or "drop tests," once planned for late July, are now scheduled for mid-August. They are designed to prove gliding ability of the shuttle, which with its massive body and thick wings looks anything but air-worthy.

Ex-German guiding force behind U.S. space, moon shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Wernher von Braun, the German-born rocket pioneer whose talents helped the United States put men on the moon, died Thursday after a long bout with cancer. He was 65.

Von Braun had been in poor health for some time. He underwent surgery in 1975 for removal of a malignant liver tumor and had maintained a sharply curtailed schedule since that time. He died at Alexandria Hospital in suburban Virginia.

Last year; he had a recurrence of cancer, coupled with an infection that developed following surgery. He spent long stretches in the hospital, including a final stay beginning last October.

Even while hospitalized he continued limited work on his job as vice president of engineering and development for Fairchild Industries. He joined Fairchild in 1972, and worked mainly on space projects until he retired last Jan. 1.

Von Braun spent much of his time in the hospital reading, visiting with family and friends and selecting papers for a permanent collection that will be exhibited at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

Once bitterly hated by the free world, von Braun became its top rocket expert after he and 129 other German rocket experts surrendered to the United States shortly before the end of World War II.

The man who once helped design the dreaded V2 rocket for Adolf Hitler designed the U.S. Army's Jupiter C rocket that allowed his new country to recoup some of the prestige lost when Russia launched the first space satellite in 1957.

Von Braun told President Dwight D. Eisenhower well before the Russian Sputnik launching that his team had the capability of putting a satellite into orbit around the earth. But Eisenhower wanted to use a rocket developed for nonmilitary uses for the first effort to emphasize the peaceful uses of space and von Braun was turned down.

Sputnik and the subsequent failure of the Vanguard rocket, America's much publicized first attempt to rocket a satellite into space, forced Eisenhower to turn to von Braun.

On Jan. 31, 1958, the Jupiter C lifted off, carrying a 30-pound satellite called Explorer into an elliptical orbit and giving the U.S. program its first success.

Von Braun also was instrumental in designing a longer-range Jupiter rocket, the Saturn 1 booster and the massive 36-story-tall Saturn 5 rocket that powered men beyond the earth's gravity and sent them to a soft landing on the lunar surface.

DR. WERNHER VON BRAUN

Von Braun came to the United States in September of 1945 under contract to the U.S. Army. He and his men spent five years at Ft. Bliss, Tex., working on the V2 rocket they had developed in Germany. They were transferred to the Army's Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., in 1950 to develop the Redstone missile, the forerunner of the Jupiter C.

In 1955, von Braun became a U.S. citizen. He and his team, now grown to 4,000 engineers and technicians, were transferred from the Army in 1960 to the newly formed National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

He finally left his laboratories in 1970 to come to Washington as NASA's deputy assistant director for planning. Two years later, he resigned his government job to join Fairchild Industries, a private firm that was developing scientific satellites, as a vice president for engineering.

Until his death, he continued to push the government for increased efforts in space. He was instrumental in forming the National Space Institute, a nonprofit organization that promoted the peaceful use of space as a tool to help all mankind. He served as a top officer of that organization.

Ironically, he died one day before the first manned test of the space shuttle, the reuseable rocket ship expected to be the workhorse of the American space program for the next decade or so.

Senate taking firm stand on Korea pullout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressing its own views on foreign affairs, the Senate is unwilling to endorse President Carter's proposal to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea.

Senators also don't want to impose preconditions on talks which could lead to normalized relations with Cuba, and are making it clear they are not prepared to accept any administration proposal for aid or reparations to Vietnam.

The Carter administration has not recommended any such assistance for the communist government in Vietnam.

The Senate made its views known on foreign affairs on Thursday during a 10-hour debate on a $6 billion State Department authorization bill. The measure passed 64-21.

The Senate dropped from the bill a provision recommended by the Foreign Relations Committee endorsing the timing and wisdom of the proposed pullout of ground forces from Korea.

Instead it voted 79-15 that any reduction or withdrawal should be ordered only after a "joint decision by the President and Congress." The provision was written by Majority Leader Robert Byrd.

The vote made it clear that the Senate wants to be consulted on any withdrawal, a concept on which it is still sharply divided.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said the vote was a defeat for the President. Baker and other senators said that withdrawal over four or five years, as Carter is proposing, could tempt North Korea to invade the South and could lead to a possible war involving the United States.

Not going to sit by idly

Nazi march angers Jewish community

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Concentration camp survivor Sol Goldstein says a Supreme Court ruling clearing the way for Nazis to march in a July 4 parade protects the spread of hatred rather than free speech.

"We have 6,000 to 7,000 survivors of the holocaust living in Skokie, and they're not going to sit by idly while Nazis march in the street," Goldstein said Thursday.

"This is not a matter of free speech. This is a matter of protecting somebody's freedom to spread hatred, something we don't need," said Goldstein, who lives in this Chicago suburb and is president of "Remnants of the Holocaust," a group of 16,000 concentration camp survivors.

The National Socialist Party of America plans to have members from across the country gather here on July 4 for the parade and a "white supremacy" rally. Skokie is Chicago's most heavily Jewish suburb.

"The idea that we shouldn't have free speech rights in Skokie because of some holocaust is just Zionist propaganda hogwash," said Frank Collin of Chicago, the national coordinator of the National Socialist Congress.

On Wednesday, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5-4 that Skokie could not permanently bar the Nazi organization from holding a rally in the city after the group appealed a lower court ban of the demonstration. The high court said free-speech rights cculd not be adequately protected if the Nazi group were barred from demonstrating during a long legal battle.

Despite the high court ruling, Harvey Schwarz, Skokie village attorney, said he expects three recently passed ordinances that bar marches in military uniforms to prevent the Nazis from coming to Skokie.

"This was a major victory for the First Amendment," said David Hamlin, executive director of the Chicago American Civil Liberties Union, which represented the Nazis in court. He said he expected the three ordinances to be declared unconstitutional.

"It showed that no matter how unpopular a cause is — and it was very distasteful to most of us here — the First Amendment still works."

Hamlin said Thursday he hoped that the threats of a counter-demonstration by anti-Nazis wouldn't occur.

"The Jews have a legitimate complaint that in Germany nobody spoke up when Hitler began his rise, and they feel they must not be silent now," he said. "I just hope we can have free speech on all sides — the Nazis and the Jews — without any violence."

Collin said: "The Jews have no reason to complain. All we're doing to them is just what they did in Dixie — use freedom of speech to ramrod the civil rights movement in the South. The Jews are acting like the white sheriffs in Selma."

But Goldstein says the idea of Nazis marching "tells me that some people don't think the holocaust should have ended."

Man shot dead outside market by youth gang

A man was shot and killed outside an Industry market early today after he was confronted by a group of youths who demanded to know where he lived.

The victim, Joseph Perez, 29, of El Monte, was killed outright when he was shot several times. The incident was outside a market at 1019 S. Stimson Ave. shortly before 1 a.m.

Sheriff's deputies said that Perez was confronted by four or five youths, ranging from 15 to 18, who wanted to know where he was from. When he told them El Monte, one drew a small-caliber pistol and shot him before fleeing, they said.

Swiss general given 18 years for spying

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss Brig.Gen. JeanLouis Jeanmaire was convicted today by a military court of spying for the Soviet Union and was sentenced to 18 years in prison.

The seven-man court-martial, ranging in rank from colonel to private, found the 67-year-old retired one-star general guilty of passing for more than 10 years of vital Swiss defense data to intelligence agents serving as diplomats in the Swiss capital of Bern.

The sentence, which included demotion and expulsion from the army, was the stiffest ever handed to a Swiss for a peacetime espionage. In times of war, Swiss military law provides for a maximum penalty of death.

Bonita Class of '77 celebrates graduation

The 266 members of the Bonita High School Class of 1977 celebrated commencement Thursday evening in Bearcat Bowl on the La Verne campus.

Valedictorians for the class are Donna Budzan and Sander Eller. Michael Riley is the salutatorian.

Both Eller and Riley spoke at Thursday's graduation exercises.

Also speaking were Dana Mabrey who brought an inspirational message combining poetry and verse from several patriotic songs, and Robert Burton who discussed the meaning behind graduation saying, "Life is a long spiral staircase on which each person must set the goals for the future."

Eller's speech centered on what each graduate wants out of life. He said each human being is a creative animal who achieves satisfaction through what he does.

Riley described life as a great adventure in intellectual curiosity and compared graduation to an eagle trying its wings.

Bonita principal Louis Rosen presented the class for graduation and Howard Wigell, assistant superintendent of the Bonita school district, accepted the class.

Bonita school trustees A. Eugene Bowers and Vera Mae Gephart presented diplomas.

The invocation was presented by Kathy Hauger and Lori Blackwell delivered the benediction.

Speakers for the class included Diane Hillburg, Janet Strathern, Jim Todd, and Tim Dooling. David Madorsky presented class reflections and the benediction was delivered by David Anderson.

Class honors were presented by principal John Mann, associate principal James Martin and Robert McGill.

Mann presented the class for graduation and Claremont Supt. of School Richard Kirkendall accepted the class. Members of the board of education presented the diplomas.

Music was provided by the Claremont High School band under the direction of graduates Frances Peters and Jeff Miller.

Ganesha graduation theme: 'Foundations of Success'

Graduation exercises for the Ganesha High School class of 1977 were held Thursday evening at the Mt. San Antonio College stadium.

Theme of the graduation was "Foundations of Success."

Speakers included valedictorian Wanda Roshon and salutatorian Walter Otto. Gail Russell gave the invocation, Irene Brandenburg the class farewell and Don Hinshilwood delivered the benediction.

Otto remarked on the power of the individual to determine his own fate. He told his listeners, "If you think you dare not, you won't. If you like to win, but you don't think you can, it's almost a cinch you won't. But, if you think you are better, you are. You, the individual, are the key to your own success."

Miss Brandenburg struck a more humorous note in her speech poking fun at some of the school's faculty and more vivid personalties. Remarking on Ganesha's name she asked her audience, "What can you say about a school whose name sounds like a sneeze?"

Music for the ceremony was provided by the Ganesha madrigals, singers and concert choir as well as the school band directed by M. Susan Winckler and Donald Root.

Pomona school trustee C. Allen Braswell represented the board of education.

Narcissistic students attacked

"Narcissism is thriving in our contemporary American society," Michelle Darling told her fellow Chaffey High School graduates during commencement exercises Wednesday night at Graber Field.

Miss Darling noted that people have become "somewhat baffled and have confused self-respect with self-adoration." Many people are totally involved with just themselves, she added.

She proceeded to castigate "narcissistic students" who "cheat, ruin our campus with trash and graffiti and do not accept responsibility for what they do ."

Mike Bare, a second student speaker, told the 580 seniors who received diplomas that, "We must search, not outside, but within ourselves to find out who we are."

Students should not expect a diploma to automatically mean finding themselves, he said.

Hope Kaufman, a third speaker, asked whether seniors are any different now from when they were younger.

"We have no one else to look up to but ourselves," she said. "We have our memories but most of all we have our friends."

Miss Kaufman told the graduates not to forget the "times" we had as seniors. "This graduation is not the end of any experience nor is it the beginning of another, it's a chapter in a very complex mystery."

San Dimas graduates 248 seniors

The 248 members of San Dimas High School's class of 1977 received their diplomas at commencement exercises Thursday evening in the school's quad.

Valedictorian of the class is Lisa Kay Cartwright. Salutatorian is David Scott Brode.

Class speaker's for Thursday's ceremony were Perry La Mont, Paris Williams and Paula Johnson.

Ed Burns of the First Methodist Church and the Rev. Muni Jittu, evangelist, also spoke.

Theme for the evening was, "We May Never Pass This Way Again."

Recalling his attendance at San Dimas, La Mont told his audience, "The past four years have seen us through many pleasant and difficult situations; moments when we have been exuberant and joyful and moments when the pressures of high school life have left us overwhelmed and depressed. But each experience has served to strengthen us, develop our character and make us better people overall."

"As graduates," said Miss Johnson, "we look upon commencement as an ending, but it is an ending in appearance only. Every ending is also a beginning. We are closing doors which will never again be open to us. Yet every closed door forces one to look for new openings."

Members of the Bonita school board awarded diplomas to the members of the graduating class.

Miss Goodrich discussed "You've Got a Lot to Live" and the title of Miss Hall's speech was "Let it Shine." Brinkerhoff's speech was entitled, "Our Luck Turned Into Gold."

The invocation was given by the Rev. Terrell Berry of the Southern Baptist Church of Chino and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Aaron L. Plueger of Christ Lutheran Church of Chino.

Presentation of the graduates was made by Principal Richard Ferguson and the diplomas were handed out by school board members Lyle Briggs, Al McCombs, Dan Santo and Pete Vander Poel.

Walnut speakers focus on future

Walnut High School held its eighth annual commencement exercises honoring the class of 1977 Thursday evening on the school athletic field.

Speaking on the theme, "Do You Know Where You're Going?" student speakers included Karen Huntsman, Tim Ball, salutatorian Laurie Cason and valedictorian Lucinda Shockley

Debbie Gillette, accompanied by Larry Cline, presented the theme for the evening musically.

Jack Ingram, Walnut principal, presented seniors graduating with highest honors.

Other student participants included Cecilia Baquedano, Kathy Jensen, Kelly Wyatt, Elaine Sewell and Creg Fenwick.

Walnut Supt. of Schools David Brown presented the class to the audience. Walnut Valley school trustees Frank Morales and T. Ladd Hollist awarded diplomas to the graduates.

Miss Shockley urged each graduate to "search for his gifts and develop them to the greatest potential."

Ball, Walnut's outgoing ASB president, said, "A stage in our life is over and a new one is now beginning, be it a career, an advanced education, a trade school or whatever direction you choose to take. I hope we can use our education to intelligently decide, 'Where we are going' not only for the good of ourselves, but for the good of everyone."

Driver's license good for 12 years may be proposed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If you have a good driving record and are under 55 years of age, you may soon be able to get a drivers license good for 12 years instead of four, state officials say.

Motor Vehicle Director Herman Sillas has suggested that possibility, which would require legislative approval, as one way of cutting costs and temporarily increasing his department's revenues.

A four-year license now costs $3.25.

Under Sillas' proposal, a driver could get an eight-year license for $6.50 or a 12-year license for $9.75

State water bill

Ayala moves to clear way for compromise

Sen. Ruben S. Ayala, D-Chino, said Thursday he would amend his legislation proposing construction of a Peripheral Canal to include a compromise on water quality reached by environmentalists and developers and announced by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. in Palo Alto.

Brown, speaking before an Associated Press newspaper editors meeting, said a "major breakthrough" had been achieved after a 15-year squabble over $3.5 million worth of water projects, including the canal.

Brown called the breakthrough a "fragile agreement," because conditions are posed, and the compromisers range from water developers to environmentalists, and include farm interests and labor, he said.

"The environmentalists have seen the need for the Peripheral Canal, and the water users in the San Joaquin Valley have seen the need for guarantees of water quality in the Delta," Brown explained.

He said that a major condition of the agreement is that there be a federal guarantee of water quality in the Delta.

"If this is achieved, the state will commit itself to build the Peripheral Canal and start within three years," the governor said.

Ayala, chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Water Resource Committee, in early May introduced S. B. 346 which appropriates $900 million for the construction of the canal. The bill calls for the spending of at least $100 million annually for the project starting in 1978.

Ayala quickly amended the compromises into his bill to authorize construction, and the Senate Finance Committee quickly sent it to the floor on a 9-3 vote.

The Peripheral Canal, a major artery in California's water system, would move Northern California water across the Delta to be pumped to the San Joaquin Valley and into Southern California.

All laughing and joking

Ray, 6 others given solitary

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP) — Laughing and joking among themselves, James Earl Ray and six other prison escapees appeared before a prison review board today and were sentenced to 30 days in "administrative segregation."

The sentence is the second most severe punishment the escapees could have received. It means they will remain in 'D block,' a building isolated from the main prison population, and will be allowed to leave the building only under guard escort.

Each of the seven men was also ordered to forfeit a total of three years of "good and honored" time that was to have been taken off their sentences, officials at Brushy Mountain State Prison said.

Ray and the six others appeared at a hearing before an in-prison review board, which found them guilty of being involved in the escape last Friday night.

Ray, the only one of the seven who refused to enter a plea, said: "I have no statement to make."

Deputy Asst. Warden Herman Wayland said Larry E. Hacker was the only inmate to plead guilty to the charge.

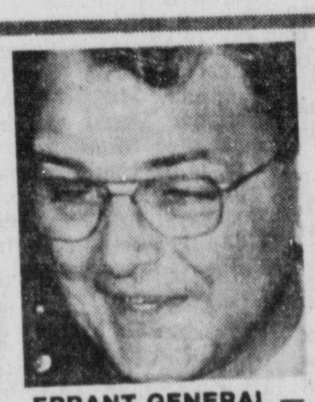
"They all seemed to be in a good frame of mind," Wayland said. "They were all laughing and seemed to be treating it like a great caper."

Two inmates who were involved in a fight that diverted guards' attention while the escape was taking place were earlier sentenced to punitive segregation — a more severe punishment that denies inmates televisions, cigarettes and other luxuries for 30 days.

Meanwhile, the guard stationed closest to the break said he "doesn't want to talk" about his being fired for negligence.

Guard Floyd Hooks, 38, of Oliver Springs, Tenn., declined to say whether he planned to appeal Thursday's dismissal, which had been recommended by Warden Stonney Lane.

"There's no question but what he was negligent," Corrections Commissioner C. Murray Henderson said of Hooks. "We're not looking for a scapegoat, but we have to take corrective action when this happens."



ERRANT GENERAL — Lt. Gen. Donn Starry was to meet in private at the Pentagon today with Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Bernard Rogers. Gen. Starry was called on the carpet for his unauthorized warning that the United States might wind up in the middle of a Soviet-Chinese war.

Gov. Shapp election campaign is probed

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The FBI is investigating financial irregularities in the 1976 Democratic presidential campaign of Gov. Milton Shapp, says U.S. Atty. John Cottone.

Washington sources had disclosed earlier that the Justice Department was planning a grand jury probe of the campaign.

In addition, the Federal Election Commission said Thursday that several persons have agreed to pay fines for making illegal contributions to the Shapp campaign.

Cottone, U.S. attorney for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, declined comment Thursday night when asked whether he expected the FBI investigation to lead to a grand jury probe.

"There's a field investigation going on. That's all," Cottone said in a telephone interview. "Every investigation starts with a field investigation. The grand jury process is a final step."

Shapp's campaign has drawn FEC scrutiny because of financial irregularities. The commission ruled May 12 that he was not entitled to almost $300,000 in federal matching funds he received last year.

The millionaire governor denied any knowledge of the irregularities but agreed to return the funds.

"This was a national election," Cottone said. "The investigation right now is being done by our office, but that is not to say there are not other aspects ... being investigated by other U.S. attorneys."

The governor's office acknowledged Thursday night that Shapp has been contacted by federal investigators.

Driver fleeing bullets rams police car

An Ontario man who told highway patrol officers he was trying to escape from a person shooting at him from a car rammed into an Ontario police unit at I Street and Grove Avenue about 1:45 a.m. today.

Treated at Ontario Community Hospital for injuries and released were Santana Acuna, and Officer Roger Remlinger, 32.

Acuna told officers he was driving in the vicinity of Calaveras Avenue and I Street when someone in another car shot at him.

Acuna said he sped west on I Street, tried to make a right turn onto Grove Avenue, crossed over into the south bound lanes and collided with a police unit driven by Remlinger.

Remlinger said he slowed down his car when he saw that Acuna was not going to make the turn at the speed he was going.

Driver hits pole

A 27-year-old Montclair man sustained cuts on the head and back early today when he reportedly swerved to avoid a rock and slammed into a utility pole about half a mile north of the north tunnel on Mt. Baldy Road, highway patrol officers reported.

Randall Dean Patton, 9191 Central Ave., Montclair, told officers he was southbound on Mt. Baldy Road about 3:30 a.m.

Insurance clerk robbed

A woman working alone in an insurance office in Pomona, was robbed by a man who demanded money after gesturing as if he had a pistol in his pocket.

The robbery was at the Farmers Insurance office at 115 W. Center St. where the victim was alone. She said the man entered shortly after 2 p.m., demanded money and fled after she surrendered cash.

The man was described as black, 20 to 25, 5 feet 10, weighing 160 pounds. He wore a beige shirt with a floral pattern and dark trousers.

Couple robbed in parking lot

An Aurora, Colo. man and his woman companion were robbed about 1:45 a.m. today at the Holiday Inn, 1801 E. G St., Ontario by two men.

The victim told police that as he pulled into the hotel parking lot the robbers, having a gun, approached both the driver's and passenger's doors simultaneously.

The robbers fled with about $207 in cash.

Hearse rams police cars; driver arrested

A La Canada motorist was arrested early today by La Verne police who charged that he rammed one department radio car with his hearse and tried twice to strike another before being halted on Foothill Boulevard.

The man, Robert Paul LeMay, 43, was booked on a variety of charges including felonious assault on a police officer.

Police said the incident began when an officer was flagged down at 1 a.m. by a motorist who said that a driver had attempted to run him off the 210 Freeway. Another officer spotted a similar vehicle on a parking lot along Foothill Boulevard. He said the driver twice tried to ram the patrol car on the lot and did swerve the hearse into the side of one pursuing radio car before being boxed in and stopped. The driver of the patrol car, Officer James Strona, was unhurt, but the impact of the collision sent his car into the center divider, the officer said.

The suspect was driving a 1965 Cadillac hearse, police said.

Pomona man shot from car dies of wounds

A 23-year-old Pomona man, shot from a passing car late last Friday night, died Thursday in the intensive care unit of Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The victim was Robert Espinoza Rodriguez, who was shot in the face shortly before midnight as he and several others were standing in a vacant lot near Commercial and Newman streets. Police said that between eight and 10 shots were fired from a speeding car containing several occupants. They said the shots probably were fired from a rifle and shotgun.

A second victim also was wounded in the fusillade. Henry Gonzales, 28, was struck in one arm and was released after treatment at the hospital.

Police subsequently arrested two persons in the shootings, but they were released later without charge. No other arrests have been made.

Investigators reported that the incident possibly was the result of street gang rivalries.

He had a 2-inch afro hairdo and wore a brown jacket, brown knit cap and dark trousers. He fled with a young companion after getting the purse.

No place for you, Harvard class told

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard graduating students were told not to go out into the world by George Plimpton of the class of 1948.

"My strong recommendation is that you don't go. Stop. Go back to your rooms. Unpack. Settle in. There's not much in the way of pleasurable choices out there," Plimpton, editor of the Paris Review, told students at Harvard's Class Day ceremonies Wednesday.

He said another reason not to graduate was that college graduates are not wanted in the world off campus, particularly because all graduates hit the job market in June.

"Why can't they be squeezed out one at a time, like peach pits, so society can absorb them without feeling suffocated," he said.

Tractor catches fire in field

A broken fuel line caused a tractor discing a field in San Dimas early today to catch fire. The fire was limited to the engine and equipment, causing about $1,200 damage.

The fire did not spread to the field at the corner of Cienega Street and Arrow Highway where the tractor burned.

Los Angeles County firefighters responded to the 7 a.m. blaze. Glen Yamabe, the tractor driver, escaped injury. The tractor is owned by a South El Monte commercial lot-cleaning firm.

Murder charge dismissed

Murder charges against Raymond Porter, 20, Chino, in connection with the Dec. 18 shooting death of Robert Moreno Aguilar, 19, Ontario, have been dismissed by West Valley Superior Court Judge Clifton L. Allen.

Judge Allen granted a defense motion to dismiss the charge on the basis that he had a reasonable doubt himself in spite of the evidence which had been presented.

Testimony in the trial began last week.

Porter, defended by attorney Charles Wolfe, was accused of taking part in a shooting in De Anza Park in Ontario which resulted in Aguilar's death and the wounding of Aguilar's 14-year-old nephew, George Aguilar.

Man faces action in slaying

An East Los Angeles man has been bound over to Pomona Superior Court — charged with murdering Dewayne Simkiss, 48, on Easter Sunday.

Simkiss was killed when he was run over twice in front of his home in La Puente. Sheriff's homicide detectives said he was pursued by a motorist after he went to the aid of a neighbor who had gotten into a dispute with several young men. One of the youths reportedly went to the car and got a firearm, sending Simkiss and his neighbor running. Simkiss was run down by the motorist who turned around and ran over him again.

The suspect, Alphonso S. Altamirano, 22, was bound over at his preliminary hearing in Rio Hondo (El Monte) Municipal Court.

Accused of selling heroin

Juan Murietta Liscano, 50, of 1371 S. Gibbs St., Pomona, has been charged with three counts of selling heroin locally, police reported.

Liscano was arrested after a three-month investigation conducted jointly by Pomona police and agents of the state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement.

Investigators charged that Liscano is suspected of dealing in small amounts of heroin.

The suspect was arrested on a warrant issued by Pomona Municipal Court Judge James Piatt. He set bail at $5,000.

Pomonan arraigned

3rd brother in heroin case

A Pomona man has been arraigned in Pomona Municipal Court on a one-count felony complaint charging him with the sale of high-grade Mexican heroin.

The suspect, Ignacio Guzman Vera, 36, of 1283 W. Seventh St., was arrested Wednesday, climaxing a two-year investigation which involved both the Pomona Police Department's narcotics bureau and the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department narcotics task force, Pomona Detective Lorenzo Zambrano said.

Zambrano added that Ignacio Vera is the third Vera brother to be charged with narcotics violations in the city. Salvador Guzman Vera, 28, faces probation hearing and sentencing June 22 in Pomona Superior Court on a conviction for offering to sell heroin, Zambrano said. And Juan Guzman Vera, 34, is scheduled for trial July 29 in the Pomona court on a charge of possessing heroin for sale.

Ignacio Vera was arrested on a warrant issued by Pomona Municipal Court Judge Thomas Nuss which called for $50,000 bail. Zambrano said that Vera sold an ounce of heroin to an undercover policeman for $3,000, that it was from Mexico and of extremely high grade and had a street value, when cut, of $18,000.

County orders study of law center needs

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors has hired a consulting firm to study expansion needs of the West Valley Law and Justice Center in Ontario.

The firm, Gruen Associates, will be paid $145,284 to assess new building needs, how to best use already constructed county buildings, parking facilities, and interim space assignments at the complex which presently houses courts, sheriff's station and welfare, probation and other county offices.

When the new county building is completed at D Street and Cherry Avenue near downtown Ontario, many of the county agencies not directly connected with law and justice will be moved from their present location at Sixth Street and Mountain Avenue.

The study will consist of a master plan of the 15-acre complex on Mountain Avenue. This will include site and circulation plans, construction phasing and building costs, an analysis of police and prisoner security problems, and an environmental impact report.

"The need for the study is based on the continued growth in the West End and space implications resulting from the move of many county service activities into the new Ontario office building," said county Supervisor Robert Townsend. "We are looking for a plan that will prove adequate at least through 1986."

The study is expected to be completed by February. Supervisors have set aside $4.9 million in federal revenue sharing funds to revamp the complex.

In a related action, supervisors this week ordered a similar study be made of the county office "superblock" in San Bernardino, the county seat.

That study will be performed by Kurt Meyer and Associates of Los Angeles at a cost of $168,000. The study will recommend how best to use existing office space and determine future construction needs.

Supervisors have earmarked $8.8 million in federal revenue sharing funds for the revamping project.

Linney receives fifth Hausam-Fish Award

Thomas Linney Jr., a doctoral candidate at Claremont Graduate School, has won the fifth annual Hausam-Fisk Award in higher education.

The $1,000 award is named for the late Winifred Hausam and for Helen Fisk, founders of the College Student Personnel Institute. It is given annually to a Claremont Graduate School student who demonstrates academic excellence and scholarship in writing, has a rewarding internship experience, and gives service to colleagues and fellow students.

Linney, who is in the Ph.D. program in higher education and government, is serving an internship as staff assistant to the Business and Financial Officers Committee of the six Claremont Colleges. His dissertation, which he expects to complete next spring, is on the interrelationship between universities and the state and federal government as it affects student aid programs.

He is a graduate of San Francisco State University.

Rountree honored at dinner

A dinner honoring the Pomona school district's assistant superintendent of business affairs Lynn Rountree was held recently at Griswold's restaurant in Claremont.

Over 300 persons attended the "roast" of Rountree, who has been with the district since 1942 with only a brief two-year hiatus as superintendent of the Dixon School District.

Rountree was honored by his fellow employes who gave him a gas barbecue.

The Pomona school board presented Rountree with a plaque commemorating his work in the district.

Rountree's service to Pomona schools has included principalships at San Jose, Hamilton, Madison Elementary Schools and Garey High School as well as service in both the assistant superintendent for personnel and business positions.

He has served on the Pomona Planning Commission and is a past president of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

Rountree's wife and his three sons were on hand for the retirement dinner.

David Evans, the district's assistant superintendent for personnel, served as master of ceremonies for the evening.

LYNN ROUNTREE

Olympic flame

The modern version of the Olympic flame was adopted in 1936 and symbolizes the continuity between the ancient and modern Games. The torch used to kindle the flame is first lit by the sun's rays at Olympia, Greece, and then carried to the site of the Games by relays of runners. Ships and planes are used when necessary.

S.B. County program to serve 2,845 youths

The Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY) will serve 2,845 San Bernardino County youths, the county Board of Supervisors was told.

The summer employment program will focus on youth between the ages of 14 and 21. Primary recruitment emphasis is on those determined to be most in need of the summer opportunities.

In addition to actual worksite experience, each participant's learning experience will include job application techniques, interviewing for jobs, researching job clusters, employe responsibilities and career decision-making skills.

Selection of actual sites is determined by these factors:

—Ability of the employer to provide work experience to match the participants aptitude, interests and abilities.

—Employment experience will be meaningful over a period of nine weeks at an average of 20-26 hours per week.

—The willingness and ability of supervisors to instruct participants effectively.

—An assessment of the worksite in its ability to comply with child labor laws and standards.

—Health and safety considerations.

Four employers will participate this summer. County schools will take care of 1,195 job slots; the City of San Bernardino, 400; West End Multi-Service Center, 1,040 and county Client Service Unit, 210.

Lincoln's estate

Upon Abraham Lincoln's death in 1865, his estate was appraised at $110,974. Most of this had been saved from his salary as president, at that time, $25,000 a year. The salary of a president of the United States currently is $200,000 annually.

Supervisors attack UCLA students' housing problem

College students in the valley apparently are better behaved and more popular with their landlords than their counterparts at UCLA.

That, at least, is the opinion of Supervisor Kenneth Hahn who wondered aloud Tuesday why students around Westwood had so much trouble finding housing accommodations.

His thoughts were triggered by a motion by Supervisor Ed Edelman to support an Assembly bill that would prohibit discrimination in housing against students.

Edelman contended students around UCLA found it almost impossible to find adequate housing.

"Why is the problem mostly around Westwood?" Hahn wondered. "I am told that the people in Pomona, La Verne, and at Pepperdine, Loyola and Long Beach welcome students."

He suggested that if the UCLA students used their rooms more for study and research "to learn how high the pyramids are and what year King Tut was buried in the tomb, perhaps we wouldn't have this problem before us."

"Perhaps the reason students aren't more academically inclined is because they have to learn when King Tut was buried," Supervisor James Hayes quipped.

"Some students go to college not to study but for some other reason that keeps them up late at night," Hahn added. "I don't know what that reason is, but the landlord doesn't like it. I want to make a motion to urge students to study more and not cause trouble."

After a 10-minute discussion the matter was tabled.

Allentown

The area of Pennsylvania around Allentown was settled in the 1600s by immigrants from Germany seeking religious freedom. The city itself was founded in 1762 and was the hiding place of the Liberty Bell, removed from Philadelphia, during the Revolutionary War. Flag Day as an annual observance was established at Allentown in 1906 by the Grand Army of the Republic.

State campsites

Reservations for state park campsites during the July 4th weekend are being filled rapidly, said officials.

Half the campgrounds in the state park system are reserved, with reservations particularly heavy along the coast from San Diego to Humboldt county and in the Lake Tahoe area.

Some state park campgrounds do not take reservations and have family campsites available on a first-come basis. But starting a holiday weekend camping trip without a reservation can easily end in disappointment, with all available campsites filled by the time the vacationing group arrives, officials warned.

Reservations may be made through Saturday for the following weekend at Ticketron outlets. All state park units are expected to be in operation during the weekend, and services will be normal or near-normal in most units. Restrictions in water use will continue at some state parks, beaches, and recreation areas, and reduced boat launching service will continue at some inland lakes.

Lost Chord Club

The San Gabriel-Pomona Valley Lost Chord Club will meet on Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Queen of the Valley Hospital, West Covina.

The meeting will be held in the conference room on the main floor. All members, friends and spouses are invited.

Two box seat tickets to a "Dodgers" game will be given away. Refreshments will be served.

Nursery registration

Two certified teachers, with parent participation, operate the school for children from 2 years and 9 months of age up to 5 years of age, offering programs of two or three mornings a week from 8:30 to 11:30.

Enrollment is limited to 22. Additional information may be obtained by calling the church office at 593-1365.

General admission is 50 cents and cap rental, 15 cents. Admission for persons under age 9 is 25 cents.

Registration for the first session of instruction will be from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. today. The first session will be June 20 to July 1. The enrollment fee is $4.

Four different supervision courses and one quality assurance course will be offered in the six-week series of classes, with three units of credit being applied. Courses include elements of supervision (introduction to supervision), public relations for supervisors, organization and management, elements of quality assurance and oral communications. Each course applies toward a state-approved certificate in the supervision and management field. In addition, the completed work applies to the degree program at the college.

Refugee program

The Pomona Red Cross, which is acting as a service center for the Southeast Asian Refugee program under a contract, has tickets for two Indochina shows to be presented Sunday in Los Angeles.

D.B. residents show support for sheriff's station building

Diamond Bar residents indicated in a recent survey their strong support for construction of a sheriff's station in that community.

The survey was made by the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Council's priorities committee. A committee spokesman reported 85 per cent of those persons surveyed said they were supportive of the substation's development.

Most of those opposed to the construction cited the country's financial problems as their reason for opposition.

Sgt. Jim Gardner of the sheriff's Industry station told members of the council a feasibility study is presently being prepared by the sheriff's office on the need for a new station in the eastern end of the county. He said that five sites have been examined on an extremely preliminary basis and that two of these are in Diamond Bar.

Gardner said that part of the study presently under way is aimed at determining if a new police station is needed to replace the currently heavily used Industry station or if a new station is needed in addition to the present Industry and San Dimas stations.

Gardner said the Industry station currently serves an area approximately 112 square miles in size with a population of 225,000 with a great population increase anticipated over the next few years.

The council also continued final approval of the Diamond Bar general plan presented by the Trans america Development Co. until its meeting of June 28.

YMCA to hold swim program

Pomona Valley YMCA will hold a "Learn to Swim" program for one week beginning Monday.

Boys and girls of elementary school age, grades one to six, may register for the program through Friday.

Cost for five days of instruction is $2. Classes will last 30 minutes and children in the program will also be allowed to use the YMCA pool during open swim hours.

The goal of the program is to teach youngsters basic swimming safety and techniques for the summer.

Beginning Tuesday, the YMCA will also offer an advanced lifesaving course. The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. and will be taught by a Red Cross certified instructor. Cost is $5 for members and $10 for non-members.

For information, persons may call 623-6433.

Valley residents should check sodium content in their water

More use of Colorado River water may make difference

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Heart patients and others on restricted sodium intake should check the source of their water supply to see if the drought had caused an increase in the sodium content.

It may affect many valley residents, a local spokesman said.

"All of the water coming out of taps contains some sodium," says Mrs. Ruth Johnson, nutritionist for the Los Angeles Affiliate of the American Heart Association. "How much depends on the source."

Her statement is supported by Stan Kawa, general manager of the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District who says the amount of sodium in water in some areas of the valley is "increasing markedly."

The Heart Association warns the system supplying water to Southern California is extremely complex and may vary drastically from area to area.

"Because of these variations we ask anyone with questions about water to call their local water department," advises Mrs. Johnson.

Kawa says that the water systems in the valley, too, are extremely complex.

"Under normal conditions, the valley uses a mixture of water from its own wells, water from the northern part of the state and water from the Colorado River," Kawa said.

"Even then, the amount of sodium in the supply in various cities is markedly different because the content in wells differ."

Kawa said water from the northern part of the state normally supplied through the Owens River is low in sodium. But current drought conditions have resulted in a decreased supply from the Owens River Aqueduct which is fed largely by snows from the eastern slopes of the Sierra Nevada.

This naturally soft water contains 30 milligrams of sodium per liter. The snow-melt water is now being replaced in the valley, to a great extent, by undiluted Colorado River water which contains 106 mg. per liter, according to current measurement.

Kawa says the sodium content of the Colorado fluctuates, but is always higher that water from the north.

Kawa said the wells which supply the City of Pomona have a relatively low percentage of sodium, from 10 to 23 parts per million, while Claremont's water supplied by its wells has a high sodium content.

The ratio of sodium is also increased in the Claremont water supply, Kawa says, because the city imports from 30 to 40 per cent of its water.

"We have discovered that Claremonters use a higher percentage of bottled water than most other valley areas because of this," adds the district manager.

Kawa added that Walnut and Diamond Bar water users also face a possibility of high sodium content in their tap water.

The Pomona Valley Municipal Water District may be forced to increase its use of the Colorado River during the summer months, Kawa warns, thus increasing the sodium content.

"In view of current conditions, the Heart Association recommends that anyone on a 1000 mg. a day sodium restriction consider using distilled water in preference to tap water," comments Mrs. Johnson.

"It is essential that individuals who must limit their daily sodium intake to 500 mg. use distilled water," she adds.

Kawa adds that pregnant women and others bothered by water retention due to sodium should consider the use of distilled bottled water.

Kawa added, "Don't use a commercial water softener if sodium intake must be limited since they increase the sodium level to from 210 to 220 parts per million."

Individuals restricting their sodium intake should also be aware of the sodium content in bottled water, cautions Kawa. The differing sources and processing techniques used by individual bottling companies do result in a product with greatly varying mineral content.

Both "purified and "distilled" water have negligible sodium content.

WHAT'S IN IT?

Individuals who are concerned about their sodium intake should check the local water supply where they live. Due to the drought, water from Northern California which has a low sodium content is being replaced by water from the Colorado River which is high in sodium.

Improved bus service is sought

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Complaining about the "antiquated" buses the Southern California Rapid Transit District is running on the loop from Los Angeles to San Bernardino and Riverside, the West Valley Transit Service Authority agreed that improvements are in order for the upcoming fiscal year.

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair opened the discussion about the downgrading of equipment and service by RTD for the West End and San Bernardino County leg of the freeway run that links the three counties of Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Riverside.

"They're running the oldest, doggiest buses they can find," Hayes said. He described the buses as "Tijuana, pre-war" vintage and verbally admonished RTD for the "audacity" of offering passengers such poor service.

"They've probably had those buses since the year one. It's a shame that people riding the longest are in shabby, inconvenient, non-air conditioned buses. We should ask that the buses utilized in the West End are of the vintage offered in the Los Angeles central areas," Hayes said.

Paul Marsh, general manager of Omnitrans, the transit operator for San Bernardino County, reported that he and San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG) executive director Wes McDaniel had held several meetings with RTD over the problem.

"What happened is that they pulled their better buses off the inter-county route for airport service. We are pursuing this concern in our upcoming contract discussions with RTD," Marsh said. "It is uppermost in our minds that they provide equipment and coaches that are of the level of service we're paying for."

Marsh estimated the length of the run from Los Angeles to San Bernardino and Riverside at at least 65 to 75 miles.

The WVTSA board unanimously approved a motion to send letters requesting air conditioned and modern equipment be utilized by RTD "for the comfort of the riders," and that this be spelled out in the new contract for 1977-78.

In another matter relating to RTD, Marsh reported that the Holt Boulevard line to Ontario International Airport (OIA) operated by RTD will probably be discontinued next fiscal year because of low patronage.

City Manager Roger Hughbanks of Ontario commented that figures show that on the line beyond Euclid Avenue and to the airport "ridership is nil."

Marsh said the Omnitrans Route 14 between Yucaipa-Calamesa and Montclair will be altered slightly in the upcoming year to provide service to OIA from both the east and west; and this should meet airport traffic needs.

In Ontario-Montclair District

Spanking policy unchanged

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

There will be no rush to spank children in the Ontario-Montclair School District.

School trustees decided on an informal vote Thursday night not to change their current policy which requires parental permission before a child is spanked.

The vote was 3-2, with trustees Sam DiGiovanni and Kathleen Brugger favoring more corporal punishment. Rose Kelber, Richard Pearson and Bill Hennie voted to retain the present district policy.

DiGiovanni had raised the issue at last month's meeting. He referred to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in April which said paddling does not violate constitutional protections against cruel and unusual punishment.

Supt. Jack Jones has maintained that district policy (and state law) requires prior written permission from parents before school personnel can spank children. Jones says state law has not been superseded by the Supreme Court ruling.

DiGiovanni claimed Thursday that the Supreme Court held school officials don't have to provide students with a hearing before they are spanked.

He called on the board to expand the present district rule to allow spankings without permission or a hearing. "Kids aren't going to get a Supreme Court ruling each time they get spanked."

DiGiovanni said he disagreed with requiring teachers to notify parents before children are paddled. "We're putting the teacher in jeopardy — if he acts, he's in violation of law. But not according to the Supreme Court."

Mrs. Kelber said she did not want "teachers raising their hands in anger. They need time to think about it. It's better if they have to seek permission before spanking."

DiGiovanni said there are many "ills" in society, "and this is one of them. We're becoming too permissive."

Negotiations for salary, fringe benefits

Montclair team denies police attorney's claim

Members of the City of Montclair's negotiating team denied a police attorney's claim that the city picking up the tab for police officers' dependent health coverage would provide a long-term savings to the taxpayers.

Mike Milhiser and Laurie Page, assistant city administrator and administrative assistant, represent the city in current negotiations with the Montclair Police Association for salary and fringe benefits for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Stephen H. Silver of the Los Angeles firm of Silver and Wells which represents the 34 officers in the association, reported an impasse had been reached following a meeting with city officials Wednesday.

The major issue, according to Silver, is the officers' request for the city to use a portion of the recommended salary increase to meet the costs of dependent medical and dental insurance.

Silver contended that because the city ordinarily increases the percentage payment into such areas as retirement fund, workers compensation, long-term disability, life and unemployment insurance on the basis of salary level, the city would save money because the salary would be less.

Miss Page estimated that about 2.4 per cent of the 5¼ per cent salary adjustment could meet dependent health costs. She guessed a savings of about $4,000 in the city's increase of related fringe benefits this year.

But the factor that Silver and police have chosen to ignore at this point, said Milhiser, is "if the city consents to dependent coverage, the salary adjustment could put Montclair officers on pay scales comparatively lower than other West End and surrounding officers.

"And next year when salaries fall behind, they'll want a salary adjustment and we'll already be locked into paying dependent health coverage. That coverage will be an astronomical increase to Montclair taxpayers over the next few years," Milhiser added.

The administrators added that the Montclair City Council "is opposed to paying dependent health coverage. Any opening of the door (on this issue) would be a violation of council philosophy."

Milhiser indicated the city gives each officer a paycheck to meet the costs of his own dependent health care, and such care is not the responsibility of the city.

On the side issue of the city paying two hours standby court time while officers wait for court call after 10:30 a.m., Milhiser said that the city had offered a compromise solution that had been rejected by Silver.

Police reported an average court testimony time of 45 minutes, but the city automatically pays four hours. They do not get paid for the standby time at home. The city offered to pay the requested two hours standby and cut the paid testimony time to two hours, but the officers opted for retention of the testimony payment schedule plus the additional two hours for standby at home after 10:30 a.m.

"The court policy was a mutually agreeable solution supported by city, court and police personnel several years ago. The original agreement was that the court would call the officer if needed by 10:30 a.m. The court has now extended that time to 11 a.m. in some instances," Milhiser said.

In addition to the compromise on the compensation, Milhiser said the city had also offered to arrange a meeting of other cities' administrative and police personnel, court representatives and the county district attorney's office to attempt to re-establish the 10:30 a.m. deadline for court call.

"We're not under any obligation to do it, but we're willing to do it to help the men," Milhiser said.

He voiced resentment because Silver had only entered the negotiations after four meetings were already held. After attending the fifth meeting, the problems developed, according to Milhiser, and the impasse was declared after the sixth session.

Miss Page said the city's total package is about 7.7 per cent and includes the 5¼ per cent salary increase, increases in the city's payment to related fringe benefits, increase from $20,000 to $1 million per employe on the maximum coverage for the health insurance plan, an optical insurance plan and increase to 64 hours from 40 hours in overtime pay for working sick relief and vacation.

Possible D.B. high school sites down to two

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The number of sites considered for a Diamond Bar high school shrank to two Thursday night when the Pomona school board reached a consensus to eliminate a third site.

The consensus was reached following an informal motion by board President Don Donnelly to eliminate the Sycamore Canyon site north of Grand Avenue on the east side of Diamond Bar Boulevard in Diamond Bar.

Donnelly described the canyon as too narrow, with only one area for an entrance and exit. This could be hazardous in case of fire.

In eliminating the site, the board also took formal action to appropriate $15,000 for an engineering and geological study of the two remaining sites: one at the northeast corner of the intersection of the Pomona Freeway and Golden Springs Road in Diamond Bar, and north of Mission Boulevard an equal distance between the Orange Freeway and the Humane Society of the Pomona Valley offices. The latter site is on the Phillips Ranch within the Pomona city limits.

Former trustee Ken Pine, who is heading the school district's committee to study the Diamond Bar high school site proposals, appeared at the meeting presenting fresh figures on the cost for developing the Phillips Ranch site.

Preliminary figures had already been presented on the two Diamond Bar sites. The figures presented by Pine Thursday evening were rough figures provided by Phillips Ranch developer Al Lessor.

Pine said Lessor's figures showed 641,500 cubic yards of earth would have to be cut and another 1,038,000 cubic yards would have to be filled in order to provide a leveled site on which to construct the school.

At 70 cents a yard for cutting and blasting and $1.25 a yard for filling, Pine said cost of preparation would run to $1,746,550. Additional drainage and sewer work would run that figure to $1,996,550, he said.

These figures differ substantially from preliminary figures supplied by the district's architects, who reported to the board in April estimated costs for site preparation on the Phillips Ranch site of between $2,800,000 to $3,600,000.

Lessor is offering the site to the district free of charge.

Figures already supplied for the remaining Diamond Bar site on Golden Springs Road by the Transamerica Development Co. place total development cost of that site at $2,930,595. This price includes a $978,750 cost for purchasing the land.

Both sites have the capability of eventually providing an approximate 36 usable acres of land, depending on the type of grading plan used.

The studies authorized Thursday night should provide even more accurate cost information on the two sites; particularly the type and hardness of the soil that will be moved.

Assistant Supt. for Business Lynn Rountree suggested, and the board approved, hiring a firm in no way related to either the Phillips Ranch or Diamond Bar developments to conduct the tests and engineering studies.

Restraint due on tax boys

It is time for the legislature and the Congress to clean up the act of the income tax collectors. Armed with laws which trample roughshod over civil rights, the income tax boys harass and intimidate honest taxpayers into millions of dollars of excessive payments largely because of the confusion of their own regulations.

To start with, the forms, both federal and state, have become so complicated that anyone reporting anything more than straight wages is well advised to seek professional help.

Unfortunately, even with help the taxpayer has no certainty of filing a return which won't be found faulty. How can your accountant be certain your returns are without error when he is working on false instructions issued by the taxing agencies?

Recently the IRS admitted mistakes had been made in the 192-page instruction manual it issues to all taxpayers to assist them in filing their returns. If the initial form was not confusing enough, the errata sheet issued thereafter served to thoroughly foul up understanding.

Similarly, the state Franchise Tax Board issued a newsletter on Feb. 11 which went only to the professional tax preparers advising them of errors made in the instruction pamphlets sent to more than eight million Californians.

When the taxpayer makes a mistake, he must pay for it. But who pays for the mistakes made by the tax officials? Right, the taxpayer.

For the law provides that a taxpayer may be liable for interest and penalties, including fines and jail, for errors in returns. Also the professional tax preparers not only are liable for malpractice suit damages to their clients for errors but can be fined by the IRS for negligent advice to taxpayers which result in the payment of less than full tax liabilities. (IRS will not fine a tax preparer found negligently requiring clients to overpay their taxes.)

Such penalties may be applied even when it can be proved that the taxpayer or preparer was acting on the advice of the IRS manual or one of its agents.

The fact the legislature has been busy seeking a solution to property tax relief shouldn't serve to ignore the critical need for review of the state's tax collection operations. To a far greater degree, that need also exists in Washington. Nothing should convince the congressmen more of that need than the recent utterances of Jerome Kurtz, the new director of IRS.

In his view taxpayers should be required to notify IRS of any deductions of which the taxpayer is uncertain and be subject to a penalty for failure to snitch on himself.

As ridiculous as it sounds, such a rule might not be too difficult. All the taxpayer need do is include a statement to-wit: "The complexity of your form together with the errors in your instructions, compounded by the conflicting rulings received from your agents, make me uncertain of my deductions."

Seriously, honest citizens have every right to get straight answers from tax officials which will be binding upon the government. The Congress and legislature should insure this in the law.

Think on these things

Somewhere in a field of deep, golden wheat, there is usually a dog named Gus . . . he is my walking companion at any hour I choose to go . . . and then he disappears into that golden sea and there's not a ripple, not a stir . . . until he is at the far side and he lifts his head to check where I am.

I often stand watching . . . trying to detect where he is and what he is doing . . . but there isn't a hint and I have to wait until the right time . . . like so many of my ideas and thoughts and prayers . . . they go out and I try to see what they are accomplishing . . . and like Gus, I know they are out there . . . because I sent them out, but if I waited for them I wouldn't get anything else done . . . so I go patiently on down the lane . . . and pretty soon, like Gus, they catch up with me . . . and I'm glad to see them.

* * *

Have we forgotten the importance of good manners and respect in all our relationships? . . . Have we not realized that these things are the best adhesives . . . surpassing even beauty and going beyond many other things considered all important?

Showing good manners is simply being well-behaved, kindly and gentle . . . treating someone else the way we want to be treated . . . being tactful when the opportunity calls for firmness.

Good breeding shows not just in dealing with what one considers equals or superiors . . . but with everyone and everything. . . showing that there is also respect for self . . . for without that there's only fear and uneasiness in any relationship . . . as Emerson said, "Manners are the happy ways of doing things."

Who's to set energy prices?

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Writer

WASHINGTON — Energy policy discussions always raise one fundamental question — should a free market or the government determine energy prices?

Without an answer, effective national energy direction is impossible.

And the answer has eluded us since doubts about free enterprise discretion surfaced late in the 19th century.

The Sherman Anti-Trust Act and the Clayton Act were manifestations of those 19th century doubts. Those doubts in 1911 proved warranted.

This century began with no energy industry competition. One company, Standard Oil of New Jersey, controlled more than 60 per cent of the crude oil and 64 per cent of all the refining.

In 1911 the Supreme Court ruled Standard Oil a monopoly and broke the giant up, restoring competition to the energy market.

The court was concerned with maintaining free enterprise, not with controlling energy prices.

More than four decades later (1954), the Supreme Court again decided a question of energy price controls.

Its decision which permitted government control of some natural gas prices ignited the government-vs.-free market pricing debate.

A pay-off scandal forced a veto of a deregulation bill or the debate might have ended in 1956. The scandal haunted deregulation and a plentiful supply of natural gas eased regulatory pain, so the status quo existed for nearly 20 years.

Then came the energy crisis and gasless winters and again we are faced with the question — should a free market or the government determine energy prices?

What will be the answer? The President and Congress must decide.

Mr. Carter as a candidate advocated trial deregulation. As President he prefers government control.

Congress is divided. The Senate, last session, approved the first deregulation legislation since 1956, but only of new gas. Last week a House subcommittee narrowly approved a similar bill. What the full House will do is anybody's guess.

Complete deregulation is no more than a gleam in an energy producer's eye. So the answer will probably be more of the same — government price control, with exceptions.

Castro aimed plot at Nixon

WASHINGTON — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, himself the intended victim of U.S. assassination attempts, plotted in 1969 to send frogmen on a commando raid against then President Richard Nixon's vacation home at Key Biscayne, Fla.

The secret plan called for the underwater raiders to blow up the winter White House. It is unknown whether Castro expected them to catch the American President on the premises and kill him in the explosion.

The only hint of the plot appeared afterward in a cryptic State Department announcement that a Cuban official at the United Nations, named Lazara Eddy Espinosa Bonet, had been asked to leave the country. The statement explained tersely that his expulsion was related to the "security" of the office of the president."

From intelligence sources, we have now learned the suppressed details. It should be emphasized that the raid was a contingency plan and that no known attempt was made to implement it.

But Espinosa Bonet tried to recruit a Cuban-American servant inside the Nixon compound to bug the President's seaside villa and to draw up blueprints of the security arrangements.

To coerce the servant, the Castro agent threatened him and his family in Cuba with physical harm. The frightened servant was told that he would be provided with microtransmitters, which he should plant throughout the Nixon home. These would have to be monitored by Cuban agents in Miami or aboard fishing boats off the Florida coast.

The requested blueprints would have been used to guide the attacking frogmen. Our intelligence sources speculated that the raiders would have sought first to blow up the communications complex inside the Nixon compound. Then, presumably, they would have struck the Nixon home itself.

Despite the threats, the servant refused to betray Nixon and informed U.S. authorities of the plot. The servant's story, though vague on some details, was convincing enough for the State Department to expel Espinosa Bonet.

If Castro would consider sending frogmen against Nixon, some investigators wonder whether he might have instigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. We first raised this possibility on March 3, 1967.

We had learned that the CIA, using Mafia killers, had tried to eliminate Fidel Castro. This was at the time, we reported, that Robert Kennedy "was riding herd on the agency." We questioned whether Kennedy "may have approved an assassination plot, which then possibly backfired against his late brother."

Former aides of the late Robert Kennedy have now confided that he was furious over our column. It was published at a time of strained relations between Kennedy and then-President Lyndon Johnson. Kennedy thought Johnson had leaked the story to us.

The aides recall, significantly, Kennedy acknowledged to them that our story was correct about the assassination plot. But he denied that he had approved the plot; he told them, on the contrary, that he had stopped it.

It took us until January 1971 to get the details of the CIA attempts upon Castro's life — details that were denied at the time but were confirmed last year by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

In a series of columns we told how the CIA had recruited Mafia mobsters who made six attempts to kill Castro. We named the mobsters and their CIA contacts. And again, we raised the possibility that Castro had retaliated against John F. Kennedy because of the CIA plot upon his own life.

Significantly, the attempts to knock off Castro continued through 1963 until he angrily warned on Sept. 7, 1963, that he was aware of the CIA's efforts, that two could play the same game and that U.S. leaders would no longer be safe. Some two months later, President Kennedy was gunned down in Dallas.

Last week, CBS in a two-hour television documentary stressed the theory that Castro had retaliated against Kennedy. Sen. Robert Morgan, D.-N.C., who played an active role for 18 months in the Senate investigation of the CIA-Castro caper, was quoted.

"I believe the circumstances in this case are so strong," he said, "that they convince me beyond every reasonable doubt that the assassination of our President was an act of retaliation for what we had tried to do in eliminating Castro."

The Cuban leader responded with a vigorous denial. "It would have been absolute insanity," he declared. The CBS moderator, Bill Moyers, carefully termed the retaliation theory as "unsubstantiated speculation."

Keynes out, conservatives in

Economics has to be the most inexact science.

The rules considered inviolable for generations don't work any more.

What it means to you is: Houses used to depreciate, used to become worth less each year. Now they become worth more each year.

Raw land used to be a sure-fire investment. Now your profits from raw land appreciation can be consumed by increased taxes.

It used to be assumed that the best hedge against inflation — against cheaper dollars — was the stock market.

And that does not hold true any more!

John Maynard Keynes — who figured all those old rules were the last word, who created the sacrosanct economic orthodoxy which came to be known as "Keynesian economics" — and his followers would have no way to explain "stagflation."

New-school economists since 1926 have assumed that government had only to "tax and spend" in order to ensure prosperity and full employment.

But we are taxing and spending at a record pace — and we are still bedeviled by too much inflation and too much unemployment at the same time.

Keynesian economists had figured that when you have large numbers unemployed, they would lack buying power, and the result would depress business.

But today's unemployed may have more after-tax dollars to spend than many employed, thus, "stagflation."

Keynes' theories were somewhat more complex than I have described but, in essence, he led generations of us to assume that high demand must be maintained regardless of its unbalancing effect on the budget.

Pay everybody enough money and the demand for goods and services would ensure prosperity.

Keynes had little respect for such virtues as "thrift, industry and diligence."

And he did not anticipate the manner in which continuing budget deficits would make money worth less, that heavier taxation would tend to stifle economic expansion.

Thus the Keynesians did not anticipate stagflation.

Thus we are turning back to the more conservative economics of laissez-faire with modifications to match entrenched government programs.

Thus it is that the Nobel Prize now goes to the most conservative economist — Milt Friedman.

He urges progressively less government interference with the marketplace.

He says Britain is doing so badly because the British government tried to spend itself rich. Governments, even as people, can only spend themselves poor.

He says Japan is doing well because Japan's government spending is one-third what Britain's is, one-half what ours is.

Where does he say you should invest any surplus money today?

He considers any fixed-value investment — such as United States Savings Bonds — "a ripoff." He favors, instead, putting surplus private savings in "things." He suggests things such as art, which you can enjoy while it appreciates.

Many islands dot coastline

By EARL G. WATERS

One of the oddities of life is the fact that people often know more about distant lands than their own. This seems to be true of Californians with reference to the islands of the Pacific.

Most are well informed about the Hawaiian Islands, especially since the islands' achievement of statehood. And because of World War II, many have an awareness of the islands constituting Micronesia and Melanesia, as well as the Philippines and, of course, Japan. Some even know of the Aleutians.

But what does the average Californian know about the islands in the Pacific no more than 10 to 60 miles off the coast of their own state?

Some may be surprised even to know there are any islands that near to the shores but, according to F.D. Uzes of the State Lands Commission, there are probably 1,000 offshore islands dotting the coastline "depending upon what you want to call an island." Some are no more than large rocks but at least nine are large enough to support human life, although many more are habitats for birds and marine life such as otters and seals.

That the islands are not household topics of conversation is understandable. Although a part of California, they are all either under the jurisdiction of the federal government or, in the case of three, in private ownership. In either case, excepting for Catalina, none are open to public visitors.

The principal offshore islands are divided into two groups. Anyone who has ever arrived in San Francisco via ship will have at least a vague knowledge of the existence of the Farallon Islands standing sentinel 28 miles outside the Golden Gate.

The group, consisting of three clusters spreading over about 12 miles, divides into the Southeast, Middle and North Farallons, all under the ownership of the federal government. Total land area is about 220 acres, 70 of which comprise the Southeast Island which is adjoined by several "rocks" for a total area of 120 acres. Atop the highest peak, rising 340 feet above the sea, the United States maintains the lighthouse to warn approaching ships. None of the Middle or North islands are as large which accounts for the name given the islands by the Spanish which means "little pointed islets in the sea."

Far to the south lie the Channel Islands which consist of eight major islands adjoined by "rocks," the most noted being Santa Catalina, acquired by chewing gum magnate William Wrigley and developed as a resort area where an earlier generation romanced to such tunes as "I found my love in Avalon." Two other islands which, with Catalina, represent the largest of the group, are the 62,000-acre Santa Cruz and 55,000-acre Santa Rosa islands. They are some 20 miles off Santa Barbara and are also in private ownership. Title to the three islands stems from Spanish land grants. Santa Cruz, the largest island, 21 miles long and five miles wide, is used for livestock ranching as is Santa Rosa.

The five remaining islands, held by the federal government, are San Miguel, Anacapa, Santa Barbara, San Nicolas and San Clemente. Excepting for the latter, which is the most distant, being 18 miles beyond Catalina, all are protected as wildlife areas. San Clemente, however, has been used extensively by the Navy as a bombing range.

The National Park Service administers Anacapa and Santa Barbara islands where lighthouses are maintained by the Coast Guard. Also protected by the Park Service is the 13-acre Sutil Island offshore of Santa Barbara Island. The Navy administers San Miguel Island as well as its offshore 10-acre Prince Island.

Ann Landers

Nasty men—our customers

Dear Ann Landers: I am employed by a small contractor. In all my years of working I have never run across such rude, ignorant, and downright nasty men — or customers. I'm not into Women's Lib, but believe me, I can understand why some women are.

I received a call today from a customer (male) who, when I answered the phone, said, "Let me talk to a man."

I'm the only person in this office. The men who work here are laborers in the plant. I asked the "gentleman" what he wanted to know and said politely, "Perhaps I can help you." He replied, "I doubt very much if a dumb broad could answer my questions."

I kept my cool and replied, "Well, sir, this dumb broad would like to try." I answered all his questions and he was very apologetic when the conversation ended.

At least 20 times a day a man will call and say, "Let me talk to someone who knows something." They just don't believe a woman can have any brains in this business. Why? — Burned Up

Dear B.: Because they are ignorant and unsophisticated — conditioned by years of sexist nonsense. But cheer up, lovey, the game is changing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing for my mother. When I visited her last week she showed me a newspaper clipping my father had pasted on a piece of paper and left out for her to see. It said wives of government pensioners who killed their husbands couldn't collect any benefits.

Mom then told me that Father has been accusing her of trying to poison him for the last 30 years. Whenever he gets a fever blister or a stomach ache, he's sure a plot is at work.

My father is in debt up to his neck. He doesn't have a savings account so there is no possibility of an inheritance. Except for this quirk, he's a very sweet man.

What can be done about this, Ann? — Their Daughter

Dear Daughter: Your father's "quirk" is a classic symptom of mental illness. If you could persuade that "sweet man" to get some counseling it might help. If he refuses to go, your mother should go — for HER sake. She needs some understanding of his illness in order to deal with it realistically.

Dear Ann: What is wrong with a grown woman who uses offensive language — I mean the dirtiest four-letter words you can think of, in the presence of her refined, cultivated mother? This woman brings up subjects that pertain to sex in a manner more befitting a stag party than a tea in her mother's gracious home.

I find it astonishing that this foul-mouthed daughter continues to embarrass everyone within ear-shot. Stranger still, her mother never bats an eye. It's as if she doesn't hear a thing. Can you explain it? — My Lobes Are Burning

Dear Lobes: The daughter is letting the world know (in an immature and disgusting manner) that she is not under her mother's thumb. People who use four-letter words in the presence of those who find such language offensive are trying to prove something.

Mother probably "plays deaf" because she doesn't want a confrontation — or she's already had one and lost.

Feline falls too common

FELINE FALLS . . . Are all too common any time of year, but more so in good weather, when sliding doors open onto balconies, and windows are left wide open. Cats love fresh air and sunshine. They prefer perching on balconies and windowsills. Unfortunately, many of these are in apartment buildings several stories high. It's a bad combination for cat survival. Owners have a false sense of security about their cat's ability to retain its perch on a windowsill. Unfortunately, cats do fall asleep and roll off. They can also lean too far out toward a passing bird or insect. Many simply slip. Cats have survived an 18-floor fall onto concrete — but many have succumbed to a fall of three floors.

Those cats that do survive have given rise to a new designation for the syndrome of injuries. It's called HRS — the high rise trauma syndrome.

While an amazing number of cats do survive these falls, with intensive treatment, all to many are DOA, or succumb to injuries later. The important thing here is that this constantly recurring tragedy is unnecessary, and cannot occur if windows and doors are screened, or if unscreened windows have a safety latch so they can only open less than a cat's width. Complacency concerning windowsill-perching cats (on the second floor or above) is misplaced. Cats can and do fall, often to their deaths. You can protect yours — and should.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is there any objection to using colored gravel in the fish tank? — K.E.

DEAR K.E.: If the colored gravel you use is aesthetically pleasing, and it's a natural product, proven safe to use in a tank, then why not? Dyed gravel is something else. It's undesirable. The colors often can tint the water and, more importantly, may alter its chemistry.

DEAR DR. MILLER: There must be some way to tell whether parakeet seed is nice and fresh or not. Is there? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Fresh seed should be clean, plump, and shiny. One test for nutritional value is to keep a layer of seed between moistened blotters, or use one of the currently available seed sprouters to see what percentage of your parakeet seed will actually sprout. If most of it does indeed sprout, it's fresh and nutritious. If only a small percentage of this bird seed sprouts, you should seek a better batch.

Big salaries don't make cents

Did you hear about the guy who inherited $1 million and ran it into a fortune?

John Jacob Astor once said, "A man who has a million dollars is as well off as if he were rich."

Time Magazine recently turned its all-seeing I on the recent crop of nouveau riche, many of them quite young, who have graduated abruptly into megabucks. Time calls them "the hot new rich,' people like Muhammed Ali who g $5 million for mugging somebody in South Africa; Marlon Barndo — $2.5 million for cavorting in front of a camera; and Catfish Hunter, who earns about $1 million a year for occasionally striking out opponents of the New York Yankees. Johnny Carson gets $3 million a year; President Carter gets $200,000 per annum. Obviously the latter is working for peanuts. How about a Jimmy Carter Show? "And now . . . herrrre's Jimmy!"

Time ponderously enemerates reasons why some Americans live like Russian czars (pre-revolution) while the rest of society is peasants — ability, talent, hard work, luck — but aside from business acumen and the Protestant work ethic (Why is it a Protestant work ethic? Don't the Catholics work, too?) it is a matter of how many people will pay how much to see you doing what you do best. Bill Walton, Thurmon Munson, Steve Cauthen, Elizabeth Taylor, John Denver, Jack Nicklaus, Joe Namath — each is worth a king's ransom in coin of the realm because each brings in to the coffers many times the investment. Sports writers have measured with computer-like accuracy the increase of crowds at Dodger Stadium when Sandy Koufax was scheduled to pitch. Opera buffs could do the same when Beverly Sills would sing; the names of Nureyev and Fonteyn are box office gold.

Time rightly attributes much of this instant wealth to what it calls "the great Golconda of TV." (I looked it up for you — a city in 16th Century India famous for diamond cutting, hence any source of great wealth. You're welcome.) Baseball players once performed for the crowd in the ball park, then to radio audiences and now to televiewers. Exposure. Some 70 million people watched the last World Series — and advertisers were eager to lay out $250,000 for a half-minute pitch in all those homes. (Imagine kicking a ground ball in front of 70 million people. And then doing it again on instant replay! These guys earn their money.)

Accompanying the Time piece was a box of "a random sample of pay" that brought the rumble of the tumbrels to my ears. Annual salary for a trial lawyer in Washington D.C., was $500, 000. And that's just a TRIAL lawyer. Think what a REAL lawyer must get paid! Chairman of Dow Chemical, $453,000. he could buy a lot of chemicals for that. And so on down the line. A U.S. Senator ($57,500) makes less than a charter fishing boat skipper ($60,000) but more than a truck driver ($30,000). A junior high school teacher in Evanston, Ill., makes more ($19,500) than an assistant professor at Yale University ($14,750). And deserves it. Junior high school teachers should get combat pay.

But imagine making half a million dollars a year! The IRS would take $300,000 and your wife would take $100,000, but that would still leave you $100,000 to fool around with — buy a tankful of gas, a pound of coffee, maybe a couple of tickets to a Rams game. I guess it wouldn't last long, at that.

Joe Morgan, second baseman for the Cincinnati Reds, makes $500,000 a year compared to Carter's $200,000. Half a million to be a MVP in an athletic contest; less than half that to run run the most powerful nation in the world.

Asks Morgan, "Can the President hit Tom Seaver?"

World's first oyster cocktail

In 1866, a California miner walked into a bar and ordered a shot of whiskey and a plate of raw oysters. He downed the drink, but the oysters kept slipping around the plate, so he poured them into the empty shot glass and doused them with ketchup and hot sauce. Historians say that was the first oyster cocktail. The miner talked so loud and long about how good it was that the bartender decided to sell the concoction for 50 cents a glass.

Q. "How can you stiffen nylon curtains?"

A. 1. Mix a little cold water with one tablespoon of gelatin. 2. Add two quarts of boiling water. 3. Dip curtains while still wet from washing into galatin solution. 4. Squeeze and roll in towel. 5. Iron while still damp but not wet. The stiffer you want your curtains, the less water you use to make your solution.

Your Birthday, June 18, 1977

You could conceive of a project this coming year that has elements of real promise. It might test your patience because the returns are slow, but they should prove steady.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your mate may not be as realistic today in money matters as you are. Don't leave your checkbook in his or her custody. To find out more about yourself send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Look out for your self-interests today in a manner that measures up to your high ideals and standards. Anything less will spawn regrets.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Not all your friends should be privy to your secrets today. Be discriminating enough to know who you can trust and who you can't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're optimistic today regarding your ability to cope with challenging situations. You should be, but leave some margin for error.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Departing from lessons learned from experience could temporarily impede your progress. This is not a day to experiment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In commercial situations today you tend to let the other party gain the upper hand. You open strong, but fade in the clutch.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Rather than being satisfied with the good things you have today, you yearn for something better. This will only lead to disappointment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be compelled to make a decision today that seems stern to those involved. Letting sentiment cloud the picture will ruin its effectiveness.

ACQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One who is jealous may downgrade your efforts today. Don't let this disturb you if you know you've done your very best.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Bear in mind that your true friends admire you for what you are. It's unnecessary to put on airs or create illusions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Being too ambivalent is no way to handle those under your wing today. You can't be too firm on one hand — or overly lenient on the other.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In a matter where something of value is at stake today there's a possibility the other party is not as ethical as yourself. Be alert.

Skin ulcer on foot

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any cure for a skin ulcer, which is the result of poor circulation. The ulcer is on the top of my husband's foot at the ankle area. He is a victim of strokes.

DEAR READER — What needs to be done depends entirely on what is causing the ulcer. I suspect from its location that it is caused by varicose veins, not from inadequate blood flow through the arteries to the foot. If it is arterial disease the bottom of the foot or the toes are more often affected first.

Varicose ulcers of the ankle area are a complication of varicose veins. The best approach is to decrease the pooling of blood in the lower part of the foot by using support stockings or elastic bandages. Another solution is to get the foot up above the heart level so that the veins drain down hill toward the heart. If a person can stay in bed enough that will sometimes help heal such an ulcer. The problem is that the bed rest can be harmful too.

A good compromise is to wrap the foot or put on effective support hose before getting out of bed and then when sitting up keep the foot elevated as much as possible.

To give you more information about the treatment of varicose ulcers and the role of surgery in varicose veins I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What exactly is cancer? What actually causes it?

DEAR READER — Our cells are capable of reproducing themselves. Your skin is a good example. The skin cells constantly produce new cells. The older cells migrate to the surface and are flaked off. The reptiles shed the old skin.

A cancer is nothing more than the normal cell growth gone wild. Let's say it is a cancer of the liver. The liver cells involved become abnormal in that they rapidly reproduce and the new cells are different from the original cell structure of liver cells. Usually the greater the difference is the more malignant the cancer will be.

This cancer would be a primary cancer of the liver. If some of the abnormal cells are carried by the blood or lymph to distant parts of the body they can start another area of cancer growth there. The cells in this new area will be similar or even identical to the cancer cells in the liver. This is a metastasis or spread of cancer. When a pathologist looks at the cancer tissue, regardless of where the tissue comes from he can usually tell where the original or primary cancer started.

We know there are many different things that can cause normal cells to become abnormal and start the wild growth pattern. Tars as found in cigarette smoke is one example. Radiation is another example. At least in some animal experiments virus infections can be a factor. Apparently anything that upsets the cell's normal reproduction cycle is capable of triggering cancer growth. That is why cancer may be several different diseases and may be caused by many factors.

Jacoby's bridge

South overcomes trump lead

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The trump lead made it impossible for South to ruff two hearts in dummy. Every card was wrong in the side suits, yet South found a play for his contract in spite of the bludgeonings of chance.

He won the lead in dummy, cashed the ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart, drew trumps, led his last heart to catch East in an end play at trick seven.

East had done his best to avoid this by throwing the eight of clubs on the third trump lead so as to keep that fifth heart in his hand, but this did him no good at all. When East led that fifth heart, South just chucked his singleton club.

Now if East led a diamond, South would lose just one diamond trick. If he led a club it would set up dummy's king and again South would lose just one diamond trick. Either way, South was sure of 10 tricks.

TUG OF WAR

Mudslinging: not dirty politics, just good, clean (?) fun

NEWINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Politicians are nothing but a bunch of mudslingers, right?

Last Sunday afternoon a gang of politicians gathered in the park. They brought their families and picnic lunches and also hauled a load of fine red dirt from beside the road and piled it in the shade of a big maple tree.

They fetched buckets of water from the park pond and mixed it with the dirt. Their children helped, with obvious delight and anticipation. Soon it was mud. The kids squeezed it through their fingers and approved.

The politicians took up handfuls of the mud, stood back and let fly. They slung mud at one another, the children slung mud at the politicians, the politicians at the children. Everybody ran around slinging mud.

"Dirty politics," said Paul Ucello, Democrat.

"Muddy but unbowed," said Bill LaPorte, Republican.

When it was over the politicians clasped each other's slimy hands, slapped each other's splattered backs, laughed at each other's grimy faces and headed for the keg.

"Did you enjoy it?" asked LaPorte, toweling off his wristwatch. "Meet Bunny Husmer. She's the nut over whose kitchen table this crazy idea was hatched."

"I confess," Mrs. Husmer said, shaking mud out of her hair.

"We were sitting around trying to think up ways to get more people involved, to take an interest in the town. It was late, we were all tired, ready to go home, when suddenly we came up with the idea of a mud-slinging contest. It was so silly we figured it might work."

The challenge was issued forthwith to the Democrats and accepted grandly, not only to a mud-slinging contest but also to a tug-of-war across the park pond.

At a time when the dirt of less literal mudslinging, and worse, has not yet worn off the American politician's image, there they were, the town's councilmen, school board members, zoning commissioners and all their families, out on a Sunday afternoon cooking hamburgers and playing in the mud.

Ludicrous? It was a joy to behold.

"In 15 years I've watched this town grow from 15,000 to about 28,000," said Councilman Ucello. "We not only grew fast, we grew apart. This is the sort of town event that can get us all together. I think it's a great idea — even if it was the Republicans'."

Republican LaPorte laughed.

"In a small town, your political opponents are also your neighbors. Politics has never been dirty in Newington," LaPorte said. "We go after each other on issues, but we work together. I'd like to see us work together and make this an annual event."

For the record, the Democrats seemed to get the worst of the mudslinging but redeeomed themselves in the tug-of-war.

The rope was stretched across a corner of the pond. LaPorte gave a rousing pep talk to his stalwart tuggers. Ucello did too, but also donned a life jacket. Ready, set, tug!

The rope held. The Republicans didn't. LaPorte picked himself up and presented Ucello with the grand prize, a toy elephant.

"Next year," LaPorte said, "why don't we invite the muckraking reporters? They can prepare the mud pile."

Campaign to ban abortions now picking up steam

By Associated Press

The drive to ban abortion picked up steam this year as seven state legislatures passed resolutions urging enactment of a constitutional amendment to make termination of pregnancy illegal in most cases.

Backers of the so-called "Right to Life" amendment still have a long way to go, however, before achieving their goal.

The drive for an amendment has been spearheaded by Right to Life groups whose members gathered Thursday in Chicago for a four-day national convention. The session drew an advance registration of more than 2,000.

Among items on the program was an opening-day speech by Dr. William C. Brennan, professor in the school of social services at St. Louis University, a Roman Catholic institution, on "The Medical Holocaust: Physicians as Executioners in Nazi Germany and Contemporary America." Cowboy stars Roy Rogers and Dale Evans were scheduled to appear at a Friday night rally.

The Right to Life movement sprang up following a Supreme Court ruling, in 1973, which legalized most abortions, while allowing states to set certain limitations in the latter stages of pregnancy. Opponents of the ruling argue that the court ignored the rights of the fetus and contend that the unborn child is entitled to constitutional protections granted others.

Article V of the U.S. Constitution provides that amendments may be initiated by Congress or by a constitutional convention, called at the request of legislatures of two-thirds of the states. To become law, an amendment must be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

Thus far, abortion opponents have failed in Congress, but they have fared better at the state level. Four states, Louisiana, Missouri, Indiana and Minnesota, approved resolutions prior to 1977 calling for a constitutional convention to pass an antiabortion amendment. Approval of similar bills came this year in Massachusetts, Arkansas, Rhode Island, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and New Jersey.

An Associated Press survey showed resolutions for a constitutional convention are pending in six states and are given a good chance of passage in two of them. Antiabortion proposals were defeated in 12 states and the amendment was not an issue in the remaining 21 states.

The AP survey showed that most of the antiabortion measures are similar to the one passed in North Dakota, calling for adoption of a constitutional amendment to "guarantee the explicit protection of all unborn human life throughout its intrauterine development subordinate only to saving the life of the mother ..."

The measure was approved in North Dakota with little controversy, but the issue evoked heated and often emotional debate elsewhere.

In Rhode Island, state Sen. Stephen J. Fortunato Jr. unsuccessfully attempted to amend the measure to exempt women who had been raped or whose health was in danger. "No one would stand aside if their wife ... or daughter were raped," he said. "There is no force on earth ... that is going to keep my daughter, if she is raped, from getting an abortion."

The sponsor of the antiabortion measure in Utah says he won't stop with the single resolution approved earlier this year. State Rep. Roger Livingston said he plans to introduce future bills, including one to declare the anniversary of the Supreme Court decision on abortion "a day of mourning in Utah." Livingston said: "In Utah, a 16-year-old girl can't get her ears pierced without her parents' consent, but she can get an abortion."

In New York, the state Senate passed a bill 35 to 22 on June 1 urging an antiabortion amendment. Sen. Karen Burstein told supporters of the measure: "You'll return us to coathangers and lye, the way we terminated pregnancies before the liberalized laws."

AND THERE WAS NOTHING — This was Jackie Wilson, left, in 1961, a top singer billed as "Mr. Excitement." Today, right, he is a patient in a New Jersey nursing home, unable to speak or feed himself. He suffered a heart attack and brain damage when he collapsed on a night club stage 21 months ago. On his 43rd birthday, June 9, he got six cards.

'Mr. Excitement' bedridden

MEDFORD, N.J. (AP) — Singer Jackie Wilson, once billed as "Mr. Excitement" for his flashy style and high-geared performances, now lies bedridden in a convalescent home, unable to speak or to feed himself.

His voice is quiet except for occasional grunts that may be efforts at formulating words. He communicates by blinking his eyes. His meals consist of baby food.

On Thursday, Wilson, a top artist for nearly two decades, marked his 43rd birthday at the Medford Leas Retirement Community, a nursing home here.

He received six birthday cards.

Wilson, whose hit songs include "Lonely Teardrops," "Higher and Higher," and "To Be Loved," suffered a heart attack as well as brain damage when he collapsed on a nightclub stage 21 months ago and lapsed into a coma.

Since then, he has been in three hospitals and three nursing homes or convalescent centers.

He undergoes rigorous physical therapy for several hours each day. The official prognosis is uncertain.

Joyce McRae, a friend from Chicago who takes care of Wilson, described the singer as "incapacitated, spastic, handicapped." She said, however, that he definitely is not in the vegetable state he was considered to be in shortly after he collapsed.

"He's come a long way," said Ms. McRae, who said she thinks Wilson may be on the verge of uttering his first words since his attack and may soon be able to stand on his own.

Ms. McRae said few people visit or call and Wilson receives little mail.

"He can understand love and he can understand if people are caring about him," she said. "I am disgusted and very disheartened that only lip service has been paid to him by his 'friends and superstars' in show business."

Wilson's life is also complicated by legal and financial problems.

Two women claiming to be his wife have sought to become his guardian. Both women testified at a hearing in Camden County Court that Wilson married each, without benefit of a divorce.

The Internal Revenue is trying to collect $234,000 in alleged upaid income taxes and penalties dating to 1964.

Wilson's court-appointed lawyer has sued a New York record company, claiming it is withholding money from the singer.

Ms. McRae said she is hopeful Wilson may recover. "As long as there's life, there's a chance of recovery," she said.

Klondike Park opened

SKAGWAY, Alaska (AP) — The sounds of bawdy bars once kept people awake in this old Gold Rush crossroads. There was a day when a young lad could play pool with Jack London or shiver in his boots when an outlaw lost his life in a Main Street gunfight.

The 800 people here today sleep soundly through nights stirred only by the wind, but they remember what was.

This past weekend the residents celebrated the opening of the Klondike Historical Park, a U.S.-Canadian project to commemorate one of the great gold rushes on the North American continent.

Skagway is the headquarters of the park, which has satellites in Washington state, Alaska and Canada.

There's a small memorial in Pioneer Square in Seattle, the jumping off point for those struck with gold fever. The killer "Trail of 98" leading north from Skagway across Chilkoot Pass to the Klondike gold fields in Canada's Yukon Territory also is part of the park.

Once the Alaska gold rush began in July of 1897, the stampede to the Klondike and Northwest Canada was on.

A Northwest Mounted Police report of 1898 said 5,000 persons arrived in Skagway during the month of February alone. The same report says the town quickly became "little better than hell on earth."

Ships came jammed with treasure seekers, cattle, horses, food, equipment and outlaws like Jefferson Randolph "Soapy" Smith.

"Every other place was a saloon or a gambling parlor or a pool hall. And Soapy was the leader of the gangster people who would rob your money by hook or crook," recalled 94-year-old Bobby Sheldon.

Sheldon is one of the few remaining witnesses to the gunfight that killed Soapy. Sheldon, who left Skagway in 1908 and now lives in Fairbanks, was 15 when the shooting occurred on July 8, 1898.

Somehow Frank Reid, an early arrival, and Soapy tangled. A gun battle followed and both men were fatally wounded. Sheldon remembers that no one would go near Soapy.

"He was sprawled out with his Stetson lying there ... but nobody dared put his feet together to place his hands over his heart. They didn't dare show sympathy for fear somebody would pull out a gun."

Canals

One of the busiest canals in Europe is the Gota, crossing Sweden for 115 miles and linking the Baltic Sea south of Stockholm with the Danish Straits between the Baltic and North seas. Other major European canals are the Kiel, 61 miles, and the Elbe, 41 miles, both in Germany; the Amsterdam, 16 miles, in the Netherlands, and the Manchester Ship Canal, 35.5 miles, in England.

Women criminals scheduled to spend more time in prison

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Women criminals in California generally will be locked up longer — in some cases twice as long as before — because of the fixed-term sentencing law that takes effect July 1, officials say.

That's because women, generally given lighter sentences under the old system, are supposed to be treated the same as men under the law that ends the 60-year-old indeterminate sentencing system.

For example, women convicted of manslaughter who were paroled in 1974-75 served an average of 27 months in prison, compared to an average for men of 48 months. The statutory sentence was six months to 15 years.

Under the new law, the fixed terms are 2, 3 or 4 years — for both men and women, with discretion left to judges to impose the term with probation added.

Take second-degree murder, a 5, 6 or 7-year penalty under the new law. Women, under the old five-year to life sentence, averaged two years in prison in 1972-73. Men released in 1975 averaged 5½ years.

Toni Rudillo, head of the women's parole board, said of the prospect for longer terms for women who commit crimes after July 1:

"That's true, as far as initial incarceration goes. In the past, women spent less time, generally speaking. Now, for the same types of offenders, sentences go up in almost every category.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's one of the bad effects of the new law."

But she quickly added that determinate sentencing is "a good idea" because it gives the convicts — and the public — a concept of how much prison time will be served.

It will be up to judges whether offenders receive minimum, middle or maximum terms.

Howard Way, chairman of the state Adult Authority, and Ms. Rudillo agreed that women often will receive the minimum sentence. Fewer women have violent criminal histories, they said. But the fixed minimum terms are still about as long or longer than actual times served by women in the past.

"Actually, most women are not in on crimes of violence," Way said. "If they get sentenced for armed robbery ... maybe they should be treated exactly as men."

Way said some feminists would be offended if treatment were not equal.

Patricia Holder of the Prisoners' Union, a convicts' rights group, said: "I'm not advocating longer sentences by any means, but I've talked to the women in prison and they would rather do double time than do time under the Adult Authority. They'd rather know how much time they'll spend."

A LINK MISSING — A Cottonwood, Calif., farm family is seeking the missing link to complete their haywire household — one individual of the human persuasion. They belong to John and Shirley Phillips and it all started when the duck built a nest in the tall pasture grass. The other animals in their daily foraging trampled the grass down to where the duck was roasting in the summer sun. Phillips took pity and grabbed an old sign off his woodpile and drove it in next to the nest to provide shade. A few days later he noticed the humorous wording as the other animals gathered around, perhaps to wait for the duck to hatch the eggs.

Six-year mystery

No trace yet of missing coed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Countless skeletons and Corvettes have been checked, but no trace has yet been found of an 18-year-old coed who disappeared more than six years ago on the Hollywood Freeway.

Robin Graham vanished one night after she called her parents to say she had run out of gas near the Santa Monica Boulevard off-ramp. Her unsolved disappearance is strikingly similar to at least two others in the Los Angeles area.

A California Highway Patrol officer who saw Miss Graham that night said she had been talking to a man next to her disabled car. A blue Corvette was sitting nearby.

The officer had stopped earlier to see if she needed help, as required by CHP policy, but Miss Graham told him help was already coming. The officer later assumed the man in the Corvette was that help.

A year-and-a-half before Miss Graham's November, 1970 disappearance, an abandoned car with a flat tire was found on the same freeway by the Highland Avenue off-ramp. The car's owner, Rose Tashman, 19, was later discovered in a ravine off Mulholland Drive. She had been raped and strangled.

In June, 1975, Mona Jean Gallegos apparently ran out of gas on the San Bernardino Freeway near El Monte. Her car was found locked and empty. Skeletal remains of the 23 year-old woman were discovered almost six months later in a Riverside ravine.

Both the Tashman and Gallegos cases remain unsolved.

Although thousands of days have passed since Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Graham last saw their Pierce College daughter, they continue to check with police every few weeks for new developments.

In the beginning, Los Angeles police homicide Sgt. Don Ham said he followed up innumerable tips on the mysterious Corvette. "I must have checked millions of blue Corvettes," said Ham. "I was checking Corvettes until I was going nuts."

Ham added that he continues to check skeletons. "We thought she had been found in Pennsylvania over a year ago," he said. "They came across a skeleton there. A bunch of pathologists put it together and even had a drawing made of what the woman would look like. It kind of looked like Robin."

But dental charts showed it was not.

The Grahams "won't ever give up," said Ham. "They still feel she's alive somewhere. They always want to have that feling that she's going to walk through the door someday."

Over loss of homes

Legal battle will test state law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Willia V. Moore of Watts didn't pay a streetlight assessment, the city in effect sold her $30,000 home for $173.70 and now she faces eviction. Her plight is stirring a court test of a law which one legal aid lawyer calls "a boondoggle for speculators."

The 66-year-old state law was intended to make street improvement easier. But in the past year alone, the Legal Aid Foundation says, it has cost 143 Los Angeles County residents their homes

"It's unbelievable that all this is happening," said Mrs. Moore a 53-year-old hospital clerk who, according to attorney Ron Javor, bought the duplex for $30,000 in 1955 and paid it off in 1962.

"It s like waking up after a dream and all the parts don t fit. I'm praying for my home every day " she said.

Statewide, according to Legal Aid lawyer Stan DiOrio, "very easily we could be talking about several hundred (home losses) a year."

The problem, says DiOrio, is that the law "does not provide adequate and clear notice for homeowners and taxpayers; (it) provides a boondoggle for speculators."

The Legal Aid Society is helping Mrs. Moore sue the city in state Superior Court on grounds that the Improvement Act of 1911 allows property sales far below real value without enough notice to owners.

The society also says there isn't enough recourse, such as hearings.

Four of Mrs. Moore's six children and two grandchildren live with her. DiOrio said she has dutifully paid property taxes of about $250 a year — even since the house was taken away.

The trouble began when the city put lights on her street in 1971 and assessed the residents. Mrs. Moore said she saw no need for the lights and ignored her bill — originally $121.60.

She says she was told by Councilman John Gibson she would have 10 years to pay, but Gibson's office says it warned her she had to pay.

She ignored foreclosure notices, and the assessment bill was sold in 1974 for $173.70 — the assessment plus such costs as interest — and was later resold to Pauline Rust for $500. Mrs. Moore said she was unaware of either sale until an eviction notice arrived in January.

She has refused to move, and DiOrio says the current owner has now offered to sell the home back to Mrs. Moore for $6,000 rather than market value. "I guess it was her way of being nice," she said.

Under the law, property owners have 30 days to pay an assessment or to make arrangements to pay it in installments over as much as 10 years. If they don't, the city treasurer's office can sell the unpaid bill to anyone interested and must notify the home owner within 30 days of the sale. Full title to the property reverts to the purchaser of the bill if the original owner doesn't buy it back within one to four years — at the price of the assessment plus interest.

Critics of the law say it encourages speculation based on the hope that an unsuspecting homeowner will neglect to buy back the assessment bill and unwittingly lose property worth far more.

Under the law, the original owner must tell the buyer within six months that he intends to buy back the bill. Javor also says a person without legal training would not easily understand the legal notices.

He met Monday with city officials and said they agreed the language should be clearer. But he said the city treasurer would not agree to a moratorium on similar sales until new regulations can be written.

Two months ago, Mrs. Moore mailed a $173 check to the city treasurer in a belated effort to put things right, but he mailed it back.

A Superior Court hearing has been scheduled next Monday.

ORDEAL'S OVER — Bank manager James Spoelma is comforted by woman identified as his wife shortly after shootout ended their ordeal Thursday in Lansing, Mich. Delays in new transport treaty could halt U.S.-England flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most air travel between the United States and Great Britain could halt in less than a week unless the two countries break a stalemate delaying agreement on a new transportation treaty.

A halt in flights over the North Atlantic would disrupt vacation plans for thousands of summer travelers.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams, described as "worried" about the situation, scheduled a news conference for Thursday to discuss the talks underway in London, but later canceled the meeting with the press without explanation.

Adams met Tuesday and Wednesday with the presidents of Trans World Airlines, Pan American and Seaboard World Airways to consider alternate landing sites in Europe in case the carriers of the two nations have to stop service between the United States and Britain.

TWA and National Airlines, which flies between Miami and London, have filed proposals with the Civil Aeronautics Board to divert their London-bound flights to Paris.

Pan Am likely would shift flights to Brussels and Amsterdam. Pan Am also is proposing that its Tokyo-Hong Kong flights land at Taiwan because Hong Kong is British territory and falls under the agreement.

Seaboard, a cargo carrier, also is likely to change to Paris.

Some American officials have expressed optimism that an agreement in principle can be reached by the deadline next Wednesday. That would allow extension of the present treaty while details are made final.

The chief negotiators, Alan Boyd of the United States and Patrick Shovelton of Britain, said in May that "concrete progress" had been made. The talks, which began last September, are being held in secret

Agreements reportedly have been made on some issues, but many stumbling blocks remain.

Carter eyeing fresh travel destinations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 20 years of jet-age travel by American presidents has whittled down the number of White House options for going someplace different, but Jimmy Carter has a searching finger on his world atlas.

The President, who has tried to "break the mold" in approaches to foreign policy, is described by associates as equally eager to seek out fresh travel destinations. Although Carter has said he probably won't go overseas again this year, having visited England and Switzerland last month, aides already are searching out innovative possibilities at his behest.

One who is privy to the preliminary and still-tentative search is pointing to black Africa and Latin America as offering likely prospects, which could be unsettling news to French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

While Carter was in London, he and his French counterpart had a cordial private session during which the American chief executive was invited to visit Paris, preferably in the fall.

The meeting had barely ended when French officials began leaking word that they expected Carter in their capital later this year. The prospect meant a lot to them because, many observers believe, Giscard d'Estaing would welcome whatever coattails Carter might provide for his centerright coalition that faces a major challenge from the left in parliamentary elections next March.

Alas, Carter had hardly had time to read about the French leaks in the European press than he went out of his way to say he had not agreed to make the Paris trip this year but rather had said he would like to visit France at some unspecified, mutually acceptable time.

It is probably pure coincidence that France is the one country where Carter has said he was treated badly during his foreign travels as governor of Georgia. And he surely is no more anxious than Giscard d-Estaing to see the French Communist party score gains in the March balloting.

However, a White House source who should be knowledgeable about the matter reports another Carter trip to Europe this year is quite unlikely. But he did not rule out such a journey before March, and it should be noted that timetables for international economic summits, like the one in London, are somewhat flexible. Another conceivably could be arranged to complement the electoral needs of the French president.

The same source who questioned the likelihood of a quick return to Europe added that travel to some other continent is a possibility for late 1977 or early 1978.

One official suggested that chances of a presidential journey to Latin America were enhanced by the generally favorable reception accorded Rosalynn Carter during her south-of-the-border tour that ended Sunday.

Another enticement might be the fact that the most recent U.S. presidents, Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, never got farther south than Mexico. However, Latin America cannot be regarded as terra incognito in the broader sweep of presidential travel.

Franklin D. Roosevelt went south to expound his "Good Neighbor policy." Dwight D. Eisenhower was welcomed as a world hero. John F. Kennedy captured Latin imaginations with his Alliance for Progress, and the people there flooded into the streets to demonstrate something close to affection.

UC minority enrollment dwindling

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The percentage of minorities at the University of California and the two-year community colleges dwindled between 1973 and 1975, a new state report shows.

Minority enrollment increased at state colleges over the same period.

The report by the California Postsecondary Education Commission staff Monday said UC minority enrollment declined from 20.3 per cent in 1973 to 19.9 per cent in 1975, while community college minority enrollment was falling from 24.5 to 20.8 per cent.

At the California State University and Colleges, minority enrollment increased from 19.6 per cent to 21.7 per cent.

All three college systems have been trying to encourage minority enrollment by recruiting and financial aid.

The report said barriers to enrollment include a shortage of bilingual teachers in public schools and UC's shortage of programs for part-time students.

Commission member Geraldine Woods said another problem was high school counselors who discourage minorities from going to college.

Old habit

The rule of driving on the right in the United States originated with pioneers of the West. As Contestoga wagons traveled west along the National Road, the teamster sat astride the left wheel horse. On meeting another wagon, he passed along to the right in order to watch the space between the wheel hubs.

'Your career handed to you on a silver platter'

STARS OF 'WARS' Actors Mark Hamill, left, Harrison Ford and Carrie Fisher, with the creature Chewbacca in the background, are shown in a scene from the hit film, "Star Wars." The actors, in Seattle, Wash., on a recent promotional tour said the movie has done wonders for their careers.

SEATTLE (AP) — For actor Mark Hamili, the dazzling success of the movie "Star Wars" means he'll no longer be asked if he is the brother of ice skater Dorothy Hamill.

He isn't.

For Carrie Fisher, it translates into liberation from eternal identification as the daughter of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher — or the teen-ager who boldly propositioned Warren Beatty in "Shampoo."

For Harrison Ford, it means not having to act in B Westerns again or return to carpentry to support himself.

It's like "having your career handed to you on a silver platter," says Hamill of the film's record-breaking houses.

"I was excited when I read the script ... but I never imagined lines around the block."

Hamill, Ford and Miss Fisher were in Seattle this week on a promotional tour of the tale of a rebel space army pitted against an evil galactic dictator.

The movie has dazzling special effects, swashbuckling music and a lot of Errol Flynn-type heroics—but no sex and almost no violence.

In its first week of distribution, "Star Wars" broke the house record of every theater in which it played. The show business newspaper "Variety" is already declaring the $10 million epic the greatest potential moneymaker of all time. The price of stock in its production company, 20th Century Fox, has doubled since its release.

All three of the stars give full credit for the movie's success to its 32-year-old writer-director, George Lucas.

Lucas, vacationing in Hawaii, is reportedly too shy to do a publicity tour. "You get him in a room with four people and he gets nervous," said Ford. The three speak of him in tones akin to hero worship.

"There were a lot of times when I wasn't sure that I could say some of the dialogue," said Ford, who also appeared in Lucas' "American Graffiti."

He at first considered some lines extremely melodramatic.

"But George knew what he was doing. It all sounds right in the film. I made a leap of faith when I signed for the picture, and I had to trust him."

Said Hamill, who plays Luke Skywalker, a boy-who-becomes-a-man in the film: "I'd like to say that George just walked into a room and said 'That's Luke' when he saw me, but actually quite a few people tested for the role."

Hamill's credits include 140 television shows, including "Search for Tomorrow," "Texas Wheelers" and "Sarah T." Last week Hamill signed for the lead in M-G-M's "Stingray."

"Now I'm thinking of hiring gypsies to go out in the dead of night and destroy some of those old TV tapes and films I did," Hamill said.

Miss Fisher said, "I'm at that awkward age — too old to play Jodie Foster roles and too young for Ellen Burstyn's parts.

"I don't know exactly why George cast us, but Marcia (his wife) said he wanted people with personality."

All three performers have signed to repeat their roles in a sequel scheduled to begin filming next summer.

Hamill's sister works with mentally retarded children, and for him one of the most positive things about the film's impact is their reaction.

"They've written letters to say how much the movie and the role I play inspired them," he said.

"They've told me they understand how this farm boy can feel so strongly that what he's doing is right that he can win out. They feel they've done that in their lives, too."

Warner Bros. now filming 'Night Full'

LOS ANGELES —(AP) — Warner Brothers reports that filming has begun in Italy on director Lina Wertmuller's first English-language film, "A Night Full of Rain," starring Giancarlo Giannini and Candice Bergen.

Miss Bergen plays a feminist photographer and Giannini is her anti-feminist Italian journalist husband. Wertmuller has signed a contract to direct three more films for Warner Brothers.

"A Night Full of Rain" will also shoot in San Francisco, with interiors in Rome.

ROLLING STONE Record Reviews

By DAVE MARSH

ARETHA FRANKLIN: "Sweet Passion" (Atlantic SD 19102).

This is an improvement over last year's "Sparkle," which was an improvement over the album, before that. But Franklin is still relying on mannerisms to get her past the limitations of poorly chosen material. Even the exceptions, "A Tender Touch" and "Break It to Me Gently," suffer from an excess of pyrotechnics. For raw talent, Aretha is simply unmatchable — Natalie Cole couldn't carry her mikestand — but with Lamont Dozier providing a merely unchallenging disco drone on the upbeat songs, and with such fluff as "What I Did For Love" passing as ballads, Franklin's chances of a serious, artistic rebound seem slim. The key would seem to be a return to the production team of Jerry Wexler, Tom Dowd and Arif Mardin — or someone like them. Here's hoping she makes a move fast — she is too great a singer to waste like this.

* * * *

CAT STEVENS: "Izitso" (A&M SP-4702).

A big improvement on last year's exercise in numerology, with some especially nice synthesizer work on Side Two. But somehow Stevens' lyrics always seem as though they were written for a freshman composition class.

* * * *

Q: "Dancin' Man" (Epic PE 34691).

These guys come from the same Cleveland company which produced Wild Cherry and "Play That Funky Music." But Q actually has some serious respect for soul music. At their worst, as on "Sweet Summertime," the abomination that opens Side Two, they might as well be Rare Earth. But at their best — all over the first side — they're a fine white R&B vocal group, a bit in the tradition of the J. Geils Band and the Asbury Jukes.

* * * *

THE DICTATORS: "Manifest Destiny" (Asylum 7E-1109).

On their Epic debut, the Dictators were perhaps the most inept and obnoxious group ever recorded. As instrumentalists, they have improved. Now they're merely boring.

* * * *

JESSE WINCHESTER: "Nothing But a Breeze" (Bearsville BR 6968).

Winchester, the noted draft resister and singer-songwriter, painted himself into a visionary corner with his first album; his work since has made different claims — he may be the best homiletic writer we have. There's absolutely nothing startling on this album, but there are several songs — notably the title track, "Bowling Green" and a version of Stoney Edwards' "Seems Like Only Yesterday" — that are as purely pleasurable as anything I've heard in a while. In this album's oft-quoted phrase, Winchester wants "to live with my feet in Dixie and my head in the cool blue North." Thanks to the draft pardon, he can now do it—and from the sound of things, it may be excellent for his music.

'Angels' shooting in Hawaii

By BRUCE DUNFORD

HONOLULU (AP) — Shooting has begun here for the second season of "Charlie's Angels," minus Farrah Fawcett-Majors. But the remaining stars of the top-rated television series see the future as bright even without the famous blonde.

Co-star Kate Jackson says she doesn't think the apparent departure of Miss Fawcett-Majors from the ABC series will hurt its ratings, adding that an earlier time slot next fall will make the program available to younger viewers.

Miss Fawcett-Majors and the makers of the series, Spelling-Goldberg Productions, appear headed for a legal battle over the actress's decision to quit the program so she can go into movies.

Miss Jackson, co-angel Jaclyn Smith and newcomer Cheryl Ladd, along with their co-star, David Doyle, held a news conference Monday at the Sheraton-Waikiki hotel.

The remaining angels didn't comment directly about Miss Fawcett-Major's departure, although Miss Jackson said in answering a question about how long the series might run that "we're signed to five-year contracts. When one signs a contract one should keep it."

Miss Ladd said her role is not to replace Miss Fawcett-Majors, but to portray her younger sister on the show.

"I don't feel any pressure because I'm not in anyway going to try to be Farrah Fawcett. I will just be myself," she said.

Miss Smith said she and the others will be losing the angel stereotype, of three glamorous female detectives who perform dangerous assignments for an unseen boss named Charlie who gives his instructions by telephone.

"Last year, we were very similar in character. But now we'll have our own individual characters and will be able to develop them," she said.

The episode being filmed in Hawaii will be for a two-hour special to launch the next season.

Star Trek to become a feature

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attention Trekkies: the feature version of "Star Trek" is making progress.

Producers Gene Roddenberry and Jerry Isenberg have signed Terry Carr as production manager for the Paramount movie to be based on the legendary TV series. Carr's latest film was "King Kong."

Camp letter from critic rips reruns

By JAY SHARBUTT

CAMP RERUN, Calif. (AP) — Dear Mom: How are you? I am fine. Well, here I am at Camp Rerun, winding up the one-week summer training they make all us TV critics attend each year.

It is a nifty place, but I must say I do not like the exercise period in the morning. They make us watch "The Gong Show," then leap up and cry, "Poor taste! Poor taste!"

You do this 100 times before breakfast each day and pretty soon you wish you were back covering Washington.

Yesterday, a short, swarthy man in a T-shirt, Baretta, I think his name was, ran a refresher course on what to do about TV violence.

He said we should get the PTA in a dark alley and mug it. Everyone laughed, of course.

Later, a fellow in a dark suit from New York taught us how to spell "profoundly moving." He said it was to be used only when reviewing a TV movie about Franklin D. Roosevelt.

We had been told Farrah Fawcett-Majors was going to hold a course called "The Art of Acting." Due to a prior engagement, though, she couldn't make it and sent her hair instead.

We began the week with a lecture by Lamont Doze, the noted news commentator. He spoke on why it is important to have commentary on the network news each night.

"They would put in four 30-second commercials otherwise," is what he said.

Another good lecture was "The Art of the Stand-in," by David Bald, who we were told is Kojak's stand-in. He wore his Hollywood toupee, the one with the rhinestone part, and was very impressive.

After a TV dinner last night, we heard from Sartre du Tube, the famous French TV critic. His topic was: "Being and Nothingness: A Case for Existentialist Situation Tragedy."

He spoke entirely in French, though. The only TV critic who understood him was some guy from San Francisco who kept crying, "Zut alors! Zut alors!"

But it was a good evening for Mr. du Tube. An ABC vice president who heard his talk bought the rights to it. He says it'll premiere next fall under the title, "Happy Daze."

Today, our last lecture will be by Gentle Ben. He'll speak on discrimination against bears in television. Ben hasn't worked for several years and maybe needs a good agent.

The agent could put an additional claws in Ben's contract. That is a bear joke, Mom.

Incidentally, your cookies arrived this morning. Thank you. But next time, please don't put name tags on each one. Well, got to go. Best to Dad and ask him not to talk so much at the TV set.

It hears everything he says and will get even some day.

UA names woman manager

H'wood Bowl breaks record

Sales of nearly $1 million for season subscriptions to Hollywood Bowl's Summer Festival '77 have broken all previous records, according to general director Ernest Fleischmann.

This all-time high figure for the subscription sale to the Los Angeles Philharmonic's regular 10-week, 35-concert Hollywood Bowl season, from July 12 to September 17, represents a continuing upward trend in the popularity of the outdoor concert center.

Although this year's unprecedented demand for season tickets has resulted in a virtual sellout of box seats for the Bowl's four series, single tickets in the reserved sections are still available for all concerts.

Summer Festival '77 gets undeway on July 12 with an opening night performance of Mahler's Symphony No. 8 — ''Symphony of a Thousand,'' with Erich Leinsdorf leading the Los Angeles Philharmonic, distinguished soloists and three choruses.

Tickets are on sale at the Hollywood Bowl box office, 2301 N. Highland Ave., all Mutual Ticket agencies and Pacific Stereo, 637 S. Hill St.

Persons wishing to charge their ticket purchases on either Master Charge or BankAmericard may order by phone to (213) 851-5212.

Eagles sue over album

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Members of the Eagles 22 group have filed an antitrust suit against their former manager, David Geffen, their present publisher, Warner Bros. Music and their former publishers, Companion Music and Benchmark Music, according to court records.

Band members Glenn Frey, Randy Meisner, Don Henley, Don Felder and ex-Eagle Bernie Leadon filed suit in federal court here last month charging violation of the group's rights under the Sherman Antitrust Act. One of the issues was reportedly the selling of the group's ''Desperado'' album without consultation with the band.

Alice act getting snaky

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock star Alice Cooper is scheduled to hit the road next week in his first concert tour in more than two years.

For his new stage show, Cooper auditioned a group of snakes, looking for one particularly responsive ''to the lights.'' The early favorite is a 10-foot boa constrictor named Hershey.

Beverly Sills, Superstar

The division between the traditional arts such as opera and popular entertainment world is fading. Like no other person today opera star Beverly Sills leads the way and moves in sparkling clarity between the two worlds. Miss Sills is called America's Queen of Opera because her flawless coloratura voice takes from opera its best and gives to the audience its finest. But there is another Beverly Sills. When she did a soft-shoe with Danny Kaye on his TV special, she astonished everyone with the snap she put into the act. Not long ago she and Carol Burnett joined the "impossible" worlds of opera and variety show to produce the TV special, Sills and Burnett at the Met. She is also been dubbed as "The Fastest Voice Alive." But that's only one part of Beverly Sills. Her personal life has been laced with tragedy because of her birth-defected children. Remarkably, her verve in the theater is matched by her strength in marriage and in parenthood. For all her busy schedule — she is booked years ahead — she finds time for social causes and a TV interview show called "Lifestyles." Accompanying this fascinating profile of Miss Sills is Carol Burnett's tribute to her: "There's something unique about Beverly, I feel. It's her humanness."

A BLAST FROM THE PAST — "Grease," the hit Broadway musical celebrating the 1950's, will open June 28 at the Pantages Theater in Hollywood. It will run through July 31.

Broadway musical of the '50s scheduled for Pantages Theater

"Grease," the Broadway musical comedy salute to the high-spirited 1950's, opens June 28 at the Pantages Theater in Hollywood. Tickets will be half-price for those showing up for the premiere in sneakers and other garb of the '50s.

"Grease" remembers the days when rock 'n roll was King, and sock hops, pajama parties and tales of young love were the order of the day.

Producers Kenneth Waissman and Maxine Fox debated several years before deciding to mount a third national tour of "Grease." They reasoned though, that with the success of "Happy Days" and "Laverne & Shirley," a whole new generation had developed without seeing the catalyst for the '50s nostalgia craze.

They were right; now on its third tour, "Grease" continues to set theater records unequalled by the two previous companies.

Performances are scheduled for Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8:30, Sunday evenings at 7:30, with matinees on Saturday and Sunday at 2:30.

Tickets are now on sale at the box office and all Mutual, Liberty and Ticketron agencies.

Hello, Dolly!

Singer joining the crossovers

By STAN MIESES

"First Gathering . . . New Harvest," Dolly Parton's latest record, is a statement of strong will by a woman heretofore thought of simply as a flashy doll. As far as Dolly Parton is now concerned, country music will never again be the same for her, though as she says, "the rumors that I am leaving country music are purely a lie."

It's taken some doing for her to get to this stage. For close to ten years she shared billing and recording space with the Porter Waggoner Revue, where she was half of one of the best country and western teams. Unfortunately, they were exclusively regional in their appeal.

Several records (and years) later, after receiving unanimous support as a solo artist, and even some recognition outside country circles as a superior songwriter, Dolly Parton decided to make her biggest move yet. She took control of a project, top to bottom, and altered the course of her career.

She consulted with RCA who gave her the go-ahead on her own project, aimed specifically for pop acceptance.

"You must understand," said Dolly, "it was not the fans who were telling me to change. I found myself ruining my voice, playing in places that weren't well-miked, places that had no class at all, killing myself. I wasn't making all that much money — you really don't in country music unless you're a real superstar — and I knew I could make more. It's not the country fans' fault," she is quick to say. "They deserve better. I just wanted to be respected. I just wanted to do something a little more involved outside country music."

DOLLY PARTON

The youngest daughter of 13 from Sevier County in the upper reaches of the gorgeous Smoky Mountains is no country fool. Under that ultimate cocktail waitress wig is a calculating mind, every bit as impressive as her oft-pictured buxom profile. Dolly's set out to create her own character, and that blonde atomic bombshell coupled with the rhinestony toothpaste tubes she squeezes into on-stage are plenty for any caricaturist's pen. That's the way she wanted it.

"Why did I keep it (the wig) all these years? Because I felt I had some sense under this wig, I wanted people to know who Dolly Parton was when they SAW her. I know I'm not in style. I don't ever worry about dressin' properly cause people don't expect me to dress like the crowd. But I know I've become a character, and a character never dies. Sure, looking the way I do has made it more difficult for a lot of people to accept me seriously. I do it," she grins, knowingly, "because I like to make the whole climate a little more interesting by overcoming obstacles."

One of the obstacles she's discovered in attempting to "cross over," as they say in the trade talk, has been her long-standing business associates and fellow musicians. They fall into two camps: "Some people are afraid FOR me, they think I'm going to, or already have, embarrassed myself. Others are resentful, I think, because they've always wanted to do the same, but didn't have the nerve.

"I mean, no matter how country you are, you hope for a cross-over hit. Why not? There's more money and recognition involved. What are most of these people working for if not that? I hope what I'm doing will be good for other country musicians, and for the fans most of all. That's why I'm going through a lot of this. You ask me how I can be photographed with the Average White Band and Mick Jagger and people like that who may not know me personally real well. I'm real happy these people are coming out to see me, and it's the first time because I'm playing in different places where they have the chance to see me. Otherwise, they'd feel out of place.

"The more successful I've become, the more humble I feel. I know the dues you have to pay, so no matter what, I feel grateful."

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

Several events of interest have happened this week. They take us from Mt. Baldy to Chino and several points in between.

I want to talk first about the great things happening at the former Ice House Canyon Lodge, now renamed Bonnie Krick's Incredible Ice House Restaurant, if you please. And the changes in the place are, indeed, incredible.

Since Trudy Dayton, editor and publisher of WE GUIDE magazine, has done such an incredible job of describing the renovation there, I'm going to filch some of her material. (Notice how easily that word 'incredible' rolls off the typewriter once I get used to it!)

In describing the 3-month renovation of the Mt. Baldy restaurant, Trudy says, "The bar has been rebuilt and moved to the side wall creating a lounge area next to the dance floor. The small alcove near the front entrance has been furnished with love seats for a more intimate lounge setting. Next to the dance floor the old waterwheel still turns slowly, adding its charm to the rustic atmosphere." Trudy continues, "The entertainment stage and kitchen have also been revamped."

You've really got to see it to believe it. Whether you've been there before or not, you really have something to look forward to when you visit the new Ice House Restaurant.

The dinner menu has been carefully selected by manager Gary Cunningham and owners Bonnie and Ted Krick to entice the most discriminating gourmet food lovers — Shrimp Scampi Saute, Mountain Trout in Crab Sauce, Baked Filet of Sole Chasseur, Breat of Chicken A'la Bigarde, for several for instances. You'll also find such favorites as New York Cut Steak, Filet Mignon and Prime Ribs of Beef. Really a continental cuisine menu. Plus a selection of fine dinnfer wines to compliment.

I haven't eaten there yet but I have it on excellent authority that the food is great. Dinner prices range from $5.25 to $8.50 and the restaurant is open Wednesday through Sunday. Singer Rita Graham will entertain there this weekend during Grand Opening. So get up the mountain this weekend. Just a mile past Baldy Village.

A very together entertainment trio billed as the "Brad Mercer Show" opened Monday night at Claremont's Beef 'n' Barrel.

A poised and mobile showman, Mercer sang, played, joked and pranced his way through his opening night with the aplomb of a professional. He uses a long extension on his mike to charge around the room, coaxing, flirting, doing anything to keep the attention of his audience. His material is clever, his musical arrangements and interpretations excellent, and the show he puts on is very much in keeping the Beef 'n' Barrel policy of providing their customers with quality entertainment.

While Mercer is the frontispiece of the act, much

ONE NITER will be presented next Tuesday night by "Balance," an exciting brass group, at Rock City, 1923 E. Alosta, Glendora.

credit for their outstanding assists goes to organist Ken Michaelis and drummer Mike Neil. Michaelis is musical arranger and a superb organist, and Neil provides skillful drumsmanship (in addition to special effects and humorous asides during comedy routines.)

I think you'll like this group. Mercer plays banjo and guitar, sings, does impressions, and is very entertaining. The Brad Mercer Show will be at the 'Barrel for several weeks, appearing Mondays through Saturdays in the Loading Dock Lounge. Catch 'em if you can.

"I haven't heard pickin' like this since the old Rockette days," was a familiar comment Sunday and Monday nights at Casa de Narod in Chino as Phil Baugh displayed his skill on the guitar to a large and appreciative audience.

I dropped in on a reunion there Monday night as Baugh was joined on stage by a couple of Rockette sidekicks, Eddie Joe Downs and Jack Reeves. They just rared back and let it go. And the crowd loved it!

Griswold's really seems to be getting on a T.G.IF. kick. The Thank God It's Friday happy hour, a popular (and needed) attitude adjustment after a busy week, has been around for a long time, but Griswold's have given theirs a little twist.

The Casa Ramon interpretation of T.G.I.F. is called Bota Bag, an experiment in convivial tippling in a casual patio setting. It's been a regular thing for some time now, and has proved popular. This week Griswold's Indian Hills is following suit with a Good Time Times happy hour they call Thank Griswold's It's Friday! The Indian Hill Restaurant will be hosting the affair every Friday from 5:15 to 7:30 p.m. with reduced prices on well drinks and beer. The weekly event will be held on the patio and will feature entertainment, dancing, and free hors d'oeuvres.

OPENING attraction of remodeled Ice House Restaurant this weekend is Rita Graham, who has performed with Harry James.

AROUND 'N ABOUT

. . . Orlando's are suggesting a novel gift idea for Dad. (Sunday is Dad's Day, you know!) They suggest treating him to an evening of dancing and dining Saturday night in the restaurant's Royal Crest Room. Lou Dokken is musicmaster there, leading his 7-piece band through melodies of the big band era that'll put a catch in romantic old Dad's heart.

. . . A heavy brass rock group called "Balance" are coming up from San Diego to play for one night only at Glendora's Rock City next Tuesday, June 21. The group has recently played dates with Tower of Power and Sons of Champlain while on the road, according to Joe Knight, procurer of some outstanding talent for the 1923 E. Alosta nitespot. "Balance" offers a variety of Top 40, funk and rock and roll dance music that is original and powerful. Rock City is located at the corner of Lone Hill and Alosta. (Foothill becomes Alosta in Glendora.)

Oscar winner happy

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "If you can play bass or write lyrics, you'll never be out of work in Hollywood."

That adage is comforting to Paul Williams, the compact lyricist and recent Oscar winner who would not seem in need of comfort. He earns millions with his songs, concerts, records, movie scores and now has developed a mini-career as an actor.

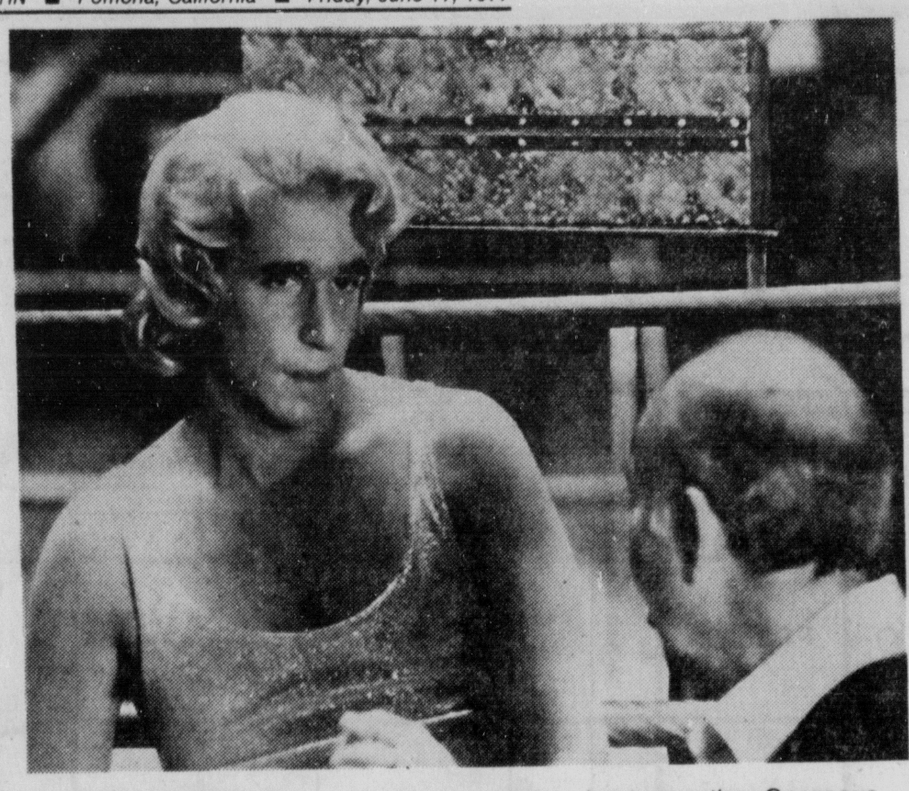
And yet he remembers "seven years of great inactivity" when his family had to make explanations on what Paul was doing. What he was doing was trying to be an actor. A "celluloid junkie," he had spent a boyhood of soaking up the great movies. He once remarked that he dreamed of becoming a new John Garfield but "unfortunately I looked too much like Hayley Mills."

During the lean period, he landed roles in two important films, "The Loved One," as the boy rocket inventor, and "The Chase," as one of the locals who fired a junkyard to smoke out escapee Robert Redford. Alas, both films proved major disappointments of the 1960s, and Paul Williams returned to watching daytime television ("now I do daytime TV, on the game shows").

The change came when Mort Sahl recognized something of promise in Williams' portrayal in "The Loved One." Sahl hired him to write for a local TV show, not the best of moves since Williams was apolitical. But through Sahl, Williams met Biff Rose, a song writer in search of lyrics.

The pair moved to A&M records, where Williams was told, "you write beautiful lyrics, but you will never have a hit." That was when the music world was into acid rock, and the basic lyric was "I love ya, baby."

The scene began to change partly due to a bank commercial which Williams expanded into "We've Only Just Begun." Then came "You and Me Against the World," "Cried Like a Baby," "Rainy Days and Mondays," "Nice to Be Around" and others. Ballads were suddenly in.



FONZY HAIRDO — Henry Winkler, The Fonze of television's Happy Days, is decked out in blonde wig and pink tights for his role in "The One, The Only," a movie about wrestler Gorgeous George. Winkler is getting some tips on wrestling from director Carl Reiner.

Drama classes at Poly

The Office of Continuing Education at Cal Poly will offer a new Summer Theater Production class starting Monday.

Students will have the opportunity to involve themselves in all phases of production — acting, technical, box office and publicity. The course will involve preparation, rehearsal and public performance of university sponsored productions in an organized summer theater similar to a professional stock company.

The course is scheduled Monday to Aug. 31, (usual involvement is 20 hours per week), at the University Theater. The course is being offered for university credit of 2-6 units depending on the number of hours arranged with the instructor.

PREMIERE VIEW — John F. Kennedy Jr. and his sister Caroline arrive for the premiere of "A Bridge Too Far" at the Rivoli Theater in New York City Tuesday. The first screening of the World War II film was a charity gala for the New York University Medical Center and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It is a Joseph Levine production.

Dodgers are rollicking again

Don Bradley

Progress Bulletin Staff Writer

What a week this has been!

The Reds got Tom Seaver. The Padres got Dave Kingman. The Angels got Gary Nolan and Ken Brett. And the Dodgers got disappointed.

It certainly has been a momentous week in sports.

Gene Bartow bottled up his tears and fears and quit UCLA. The Rams dumped James Harris. And the baseball clubs went wild at the trading mart.

Did anyone really think winning the pennant would be easy for the Dodgers this year? Now that the Reds have Seaver, there should be no doubts the task will be difficult though not impossible.

The Reds are probably the first two-time defending World's Champions ever to re-tool their pitching halfway through the season.

Gone are Santo Alcala (11-4), Rawly Eastwick (11-5), Gary Nolan (15-9) and Pat Zachary (14-7) from the staff that won last year's title.

Between them, they won 51 and lost only 25. Will McEnany (2-6) was an off-season departure.

Now the question is who will the Reds' starters be? There is Seaver, Jack Billingham, Fred Norman, Woody Fryman and rookie Paul Moskau, just called up from Indianapolis.

Norman, Fryman and Moskau are all lefties. Moskau starred for Azusa Pacific and was the first player ever to win both ends of the Progress Bulletin Hitting-Pitching Derby Award.

Two-way threat

Moskau batted .412 for APC in 1975 and posted a 9-5 pitching record with a 2.09 earned run average. He has been a pitcher and pinch-hitter since becoming a pro.

Whether Sparky Anderson plans to use him as a starter or reliever is not known. Moskau was the most impressive rookie pitcher with the Reds in spring training after two years in the minors with ERAs under 2.00.

One of the three lefthanders is likely to be used in relief since the Reds also dealt lefthander Mike Caldwell in their Wednesday night splurge.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers will have to win with what they started the season with . . . and hope everybody stays or gets healthy.

There have already been some problems in the health area. Second baseman Davey Lopes, suffering from another rib cage injury, missed four straight games.

Lopes also has a chronic back problem that sidelines for eight or nine games at a time. Last year Lopes, bothered by both back and rib cage problems, played only 117 games.

Shortstop Bill Russell is limping on a sore ankle and Teddy Martinez also has a gimpy leg. Rick Monday has a back problem that has taken him out of the lineup twice.

Meanwhile, down the freeway, the Angels appear to have solved their pitching problems. No more will you hear the cry, "Tanana and Ryan and then the Angels are cryin.'"

Brett (6-4) and Nolan (4-1) will move right into the starting rotation. That allows the shift of Paul Hartzell back to bullpen where he has been most effective this year.

Provided relief

It was when the Halos moved Hartzell to relief and acquired Dave LaRoche that the club began it's turnaround. Hartzell has since been shifted back to the starting rotation and it can only be hoped that the shifting hasn't hurt him the way it did Don Kirkwood who never recovered.

All Nolan cost was minor leaguer Craig Hendrickson and a player or players to be named later. Usually these turn out to be minor leaguers or fringe players.

Hendrickson was the Halos' number two choice in last year's free-agent draft. The shortstop was hitting .213 at Quad Cities.

The only player on the 25-man roster the Angels traded was Kirkwood (1-0) with a 5.10 ERA. Kirkwood has been inconsistent the last two years and ineffective this year.

For Brett, the Halos gave up Kirkwood, former La Verne star John Verhoeven and third baseman John Flannery plus cash.

Verhoeven, on option at Salt Lake City, was 2-0 with a 5.76 ERA. The big Dutchman injured his arm last August and has never been the same.

Flannery was batting .293 at Salinas. So the Halos gave up no one that was currently helping the team. The only catch is that both Nolan and Brett have a history of arm trouble. But, as little as the pair cost, it was a good deal.

Likewise, it would seem that Kingman can only help the Padres who gave up only Bobby Valentine and Paul Siebert, a rookie lefthander just called up from Hawaii (PCL).

What happens at San Diego should be interesting.

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers gave themselves a lift Thursday night.

They had been in a down mood Wednesday night despite a lopsided 10-1 victory, the malaise apparently caused by the news that Cincinnati had obtained Tom Seaver.

Following Thursday night's 3-2, 11-inning victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates — to give the Angelenos a sweep of the three-game series — the mood again was light and the players were rollicking.

The win increased the Dodger lead to 7½ games and gave them a 10-2 mark against the Eastern clubs in games at Dodger Stadium.

They also regained the prestige of having the best record in the major leagues, 41-21 for a .661 percentage.

The team with the second best record (38-20 for .655), the Eastern Division leading Chicago Cubs is in for three games beginning tonight.

Burt Hooton (4-3) gets the call tonight against rookie Mike Krukow (5-4). Tommy John (6-4) faces former UCLA star Bill Bonham (6-5) Saturday night (7 p.m.) and Don Sutton (7-2) goes against Rick Reuschel (9-2) Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Tonight is Cap Night. All fans will receive a free Dodger cap. Box seats have all been sold, but plenty of reserved and general admission seats are available.

The Dodgers got their runs in two brief eruptions Thursday night.

After the Pirates had tied it in the ninth to send the game into extra innings, the Dodgers won it in the 11th.

Russell, who had been charged with an error that let in the tying run, opened with a double. Smith walked and Ron Cey got his first sacrifice bunt of the season.

Steve Garvey was intentionally walked loading the bases. Dusty Baker, moved up a notch ahead of Rick Monday in the batting order, hit a fly to medium center that Al Oliver caught and fired to the plate.

Russell appeared to have the throw beaten anyway, but catcher Duffy Dyer blocked the plate and Russell was forced to barrel into the Pirate catcher and knock him out of the way.

"Oliver doesn't have the strongest arm in the league," said Russell. "I thought I could score. Then I saw Dyer coming down the line.

"I think he (Dyer) could have gotten out of the way. I had the throw beaten. I'm not the biggest guy to go around knocking into those big catchers."

Dyer has 25 pounds on the slender Dodger shortstop.

"What a game. Wasn't that exciting," yelled manager Tommy Lasorda. "Did you see that bleeping Dyer block the plate? Did you see what Russell did to the bleep bleeper!"

Russell called his double that led to the winning run a "redeemer." It had been his error on a twisting bouncer hit by Bobby Tolan with two out in the ninth that allowed the tying run to score.

"We thought we had the game all the way," Russell said. "When I came up in the 11th I said to myself I have to get something started. (Rich) Gossage (5-4) hung a slider on me and there was my redeemer."

The Dodgers got good pitching from starter Doug Rau and reliever Charlie Hough (4-4). Rau struck out a career-high nine batters and didn't issue a single walk in his eight-plus innings.

Hough pitched three hitless innings in relief.

"I felt good tonight. I could have gone three more innings," said Hough and added with a grin, "if my catcher (Steve Yeager) doesn't scare me to death. Do you know what he did? Three times he called for fastballs against (Willie) Stargell. I couldn't believe it."

Hough got the massive Stargell to ground to first twice and flyout to center once.

DODGER DATA — The paid attendance of 34,350 put the Dodgers over the million mark with 1,017,525 tying their own record for the earliest date ever. They first did it in 1975.

Smith's homer was his 15th, but only his fourth righthanded. He went into the game hitting .320 lefthanded and .268 righthanded.

The Dodgers now have hit 74 home runs in 62 games. Last year they had 43 homers at this time. They didn't get number 74 until August 22.

Brutal 18th KOs scores in Open

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME

Minnesota first baseman Rod Carew reaches out in vain after falling trying to field grounder hit by Angels' Andy Etchebarren in third inning Thursday night.

TULSA, Okla (AP) — Arnold Palmer provided the electricity, Jack Nicklaus was happy to get out alive, and the brutal 18th hole at Southern Hills scored a clear kayo of the field Thursday with defending champion Jerry Pate its prime victim in the first round of the 77th U.S. Open.

Seven players who have never captured a major championship shaved a stroke off par over the 6,873 yards of one of the toughest par-70 courses in Americe.

Rod Funseth, Terry Diehl, Larry Nelson, Hubie Green, Grier Jones, Tom Purtzer and Argentina's 38-year-old Florention Molina struggled to 69s in pleasant 80-degree weather that featured gusty, tricky winds. Never in Open history had so many players been clustered in first place.

There was a logjam of 10 players at par including the 46-year-old Palmer, who had to qualify to get here and sent his "Army" into a frenzy by holing a wedge for a birdie on his roller coaster round of four birdies and four bogies.

Nicklaus shot 74, Masters champion Tom Watson, looking for the Grand Slam, also floundered to a 74, and Pate suffered an agonizing six on the unforgiving final hole for 72.

"The best thing for a man to do is come to that hole Sunday with a three-shot lead," said Al Geiberger, who bogied it for a 70.

The 449-yard, dog-leg right last hole was strickly X-rated by the 153-man field which fired and fell back in headlong retreat against the monster.

Green called it "a killer."

Nicklaus, one of the longest hitters in the history of the game, branded it "too long."

Palmer, not exactly your everyday puffball hitter, claimed: "It's as close to a par five as you can get."

Pate declared: "It's a helluva hole. It got me."

The hole is bordered by a creek on the right and left. Towering trees line the right side and thick bermuda rough chokes the left. Deep bunkers guard the approach to an elevated green which is slick as a marble top table. The fairway slants right, creating fades that plunk into the right bunker.

"I had a six-foot downhill putt there and it broke a foot," said Johnny Miller, attesting to the lightning bent grass contour of the 100-foot long green.

Miller added: "I'm not very gung-ho about that hole."

Nicklaus said: "I hit the best tee shot I can hit and still had a one-iron to the green. I'd hate to have to make birdie there the last day to win."

There were only four birdies Thursday and Palmer said: "I'll wager there will be more bogeys there than par." He was right.

Green questioned whether the hole was playing 449-yards.

"Who stepped it off?" said Green who added it was more like 465. "I killed a drive and still had a five-wood 210-yards uphill into the wind. Hit your tee shot into the rough and forget it. You can't get there."

"It's one of the most difficult finishing holes I've ever played," said Tom Weiskopf. "It's very, very, very, difficult. You have a sidehill lie no matter where you hit it."

Only Molina had a kind word for the hole—a backhanded compliment since he parred it.

"I like 18—not for me but for the other players," said Molina, meaning he was delighted to escape with par while others like Pate were branded with double bogeys and bogey.

The hole averaged 4.9 strokes Thursday with par outnumbered 2-1 by mini-disasters.

Palmer, using only 29 putts, charged up a large majority of the total crowd of 14,818 with the some of his old magic. He made three putts longer than 15 feet.

"The crowd pumped me up and I guess they were more exuberant than usual because I haven't given them a chance lately," he said. "I was doing things like I used to do."

Angels to test Ken Brett tonight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — One of the two new acquisitions who the California Angels hope will solidify their starting pitching rotation will get his first test in a hurry.

Left-hander Ken Brett, 6-4, who came to the Angels from the Chicago White Sox just before the trading deadling Wednesday night, will pitch for California in the opener of a three-game series against Milwaukee tonight.

The Angels, who also acquired Gary Nolan from Cincinnati Wednesday, will be trying to snap a two-game losing streak. Oddly, the losers in California's last two games were hurling standouts Frank Tanana, now 10-3, and Nolan Ryan, now 9-6.

Minnesota rookie Rob Wilfong grounded a Ryan curveball into shallow right field with two outs in the bottom of the ninth Thursday night to score Butch Wynegar from second base and give the Twins a 7-6 victory over the Angels.

Despite the loss, Ryan fanned 14 in the game and moved into fourth place on the all-time strikeout list.

Wynegar and Mike Cubbage had receive successive one-out walks before Ryan retired Larry Hisle on a shallow fly to left field for the second out.

"Even though I had only four walks, they ended up beating me," said Ryan. "I felt that I really only threw one bad pitch, but Minnesota is an awfully good hitting club."

The speedy Twins put together four hits and took advantage of several mistakes by Ryan to score four runs in the second inning.

California chased Twins starter Paul Thormodsgard in the third with a four-run inning on six hits. Andy Etchebarren, Jerry Remy and Tony Solaita singled in runs and Rusty Torres scored on a wild pitch by Thormodsgard.

The Angels took a 5-4 lead in the top of the fifth on a double by Solaita and Bobby Bonds' RBI single

Ryan, who now has 2,252 career strikeouts and has whiffed 10 or more hitters in seven straight games, was hit hard in the fifth inning when Larry Hisle hit his 16th home run of the year, Rod Carew tripled and Lyman Bostock singled to put the Twins in front 6-5.

The Angels tied the game in the eighth against Tom Johnson when Bonds led off the inning with a triple and then scored on a wild pitch.

California Manager Norm Sherry said Nolan may pitch Saturday.

"I'm really glad we're getting a couple of experienced pitchers," said Sherry about the new members of the Angels. "Nolan wes 15-9 for the Reds last year and had the same record the year before. Brett has been a steady pitcher, and the addition of both of them gives us four good starters."

Shields earns TKO victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Randy Shields of North Hollywood, Calif., scored a technical knockout over Pancho Del Toro of Gomez, Palacio, Mexico at the Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

The bout was stopped between the fifth and sixth rounds. Referee Dick Young halted the fight because of a cut over Del Toro's left eye.

Shields, a former top contender in the lightweight division, is now fighting as a junior welterweight. He has a 32-2 record and 17 knockouts. Del Toro dropped to 34-4-1. He has 16 knockouts.

Shields weighed 143¾ pounds; Del Toro scaled 142¼ pounds.

North needs better luck

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Sports Writer

If things don't go any better for the North team in the Pomona Valley All-Star Basketball Game than they have in practice, the South may have a pretty easy time.

Good fortune has not exactly smiled upon the North's players thus far. First, Royal Oak's Bill Cavanaugh broke his hand before practice sessions even began, and will miss the game, leaving the North a player short.

Then San Dimas' Ken Muraki sprained his ankle on the first day of organized practice for the North team.

Finally, Charter Oak's Brady Keilty was mugged on the way to a doughnut shop and suffered a mild concussion.

Muraki and Keilty are both expected to be in fine fettle for the All-Star contest, but North head coach Bill Roberts of Damien and assistant Jeff McCall of Alta Loma have their fingers crossed that nothing else goes awry.

The fourth annual Pomona Valley classic will be played at La Verne College Tuesday night at 8 p.m. Tickets, at $2.50 for adults and $2 for students, will be available at the door. Not surprisingly, All-CIF players Bill Duffy of Damien and Rich Davis of Alta Loma have stolen the show at the North camp.

"They're so good," said Roberts, "that sometimes the other kids just stop and watch them in action."

For Roberts, there is a particular joy in having Davis, a 6-10 center, on his team.

"I've never had a center that led the team in either points or rebounds. So I'm looking forward to having a big guy like Davis in there."

Actually, though, Roberts will not have great size across the front line — after Davis and Alta Loma's Kevin Comstock, a burly 6-5, 200-pound forward, the third-tallest player for the North will be Duffy, a 6-4½ guard.

"We'll probably go with a three-guard offense, the way we did (at Damien High) during the regular season," said Roberts. "After all, we've got eight guards."

The remaining players on the North roster are Bonita's Mike Boyd and Keith Brandt, Claremont's Kyle Fortson and Ray Kwiatek, Damien's Ed Carlson and Pomona's David Moore.

"We should have a slight advantage in quickness," Roberts offered, "although I'm not too sure about that. Steve Polee (of Ganesha, a player for the South) is awfully quick."

Roberts doesn't feel his squad rates the favorite's role despite the presence of Duffy and Davis. The South probably has better overall depth, with seven All-Valley players to the North's three (Duffy, Davis and Comstock).

"Of course, in a game that long (the all-star contest will have 12-minute quarters rather than high school basketball's eight-minute periods), Billy could score a lot of points. If he can score 36 in 32 minutes (as he did twice this year), there's no telling how many he can score in 48 minutes.

"He's really improved a lot since the end of the season," Roberts said, though fans who saw Duffy perform during the school season may find that difficult to believe.

"He went up to Oakland to play in the Sunshine Classic, a tournament with 120 of the best players from across the country, and the competition there sure didn't hurt him any. Billy made the all-tournament team and Tony Anderson (Victor Valley's 2A Player of the Year and good friend of Duffy's, was named MVP."

Half-time entertainment at the Pomona Valley All-Star Basketball Game, which is sponsored by the La Verne Rotary Club and supported by several area clubs — including Chino, Glendora, Pomona, Rowland Heights and San Dimas Rotary Clubs and La Verne-San Dimas and Montclair Kiwanis Clubs — will be a gymnastics demonstration by ten girls, ages 8 to 18, under the direction of Jesse Staples of La Verne College.

Crystal Water heads Cup field

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A dozen handicap stars, headed by Crystal Water, who was assigned the highweight of 129 pounds, were named Thursday to battle for the $210,000 winner's share of the $350,000 to be paid in Saturday's Hollywood Gold Cup.

The horses will go 1¼ miles at Hollywood Park in thoroughbred racing's richest programmed event.

Connie Ring's Crystal Water, winner of the Santa Anita Handicap, will be ridden by Laffit Pincay.

Ancient Title, with Sandy Hawley, was assigned second high weight at 125 with Caucasus at 124 with Fernando Toro.

The 38th running of the Gold Cup provides a second-place award of $60,000 with $40,000 for third.

In post position order, the entries are Legendario III, 114; Taras Bulba, 118; Pay Tribute, 120; Balmerino, 120; Caucasus, 124; Rajab, 114; Mark's Place, 120; Cascapedia, 116; Austin Mittler, 109; Ancient Title; Crystal Water; and Festive Mood, 114.

Pay Tribute and Rajab run as a betting entry, both owned by Elmendorf Farm.

Nine foreign-bred runners have won the Gold Cup in past years and there are three in this year's field. Taras Bulba and Balmerino both come from New Zealand and Legendario III hails from Uruguay

Angel Cordero will ride Taras Bulba with Maurice Campbell riding Balmerino and Jerry Bailey on Legendario.

Pincay gained ground on Hawley in the Hollywood Park jockey standings Thursday with three victories, including a triumph aboard Ensign Ruken in the $22,000 feature race.

Hawley, however, scored twice and has a meet-leading 75 winners, six ahead of Pincay.

In the feature, a 1⅛ mile turf race for 3-year-olds and up, Pincay took Ensign Ruker quickly to the lead and kept him there for most of the distance. Favored Exact Duplicate made a late bid, but Ensign Ruker had something left for the stretch and won by three-quarters of a length.

Summer loop opens tonight

LOS ANGELES — The nationally acclaimed Olympic Development Basketball League, which divides Southern California into eight super high school district all-star teams, will tip-off tonight at Cal State Los Angeles.

The league, which will play through July 31, will include defending champion Los Angeles, San Gabriel Valley, South Bay, Orange County, Ventura-Santa Barbara, San Fernando Valley, Inland (San Bernardino County), and San Diego.

The strength of the league is highlighted by over 50 all-CIF and all-City stars and 15 bonified all-America selections. This year the ODL will have several players outside of Southern California which should make the competition extremely tough. College coaches will again flock in groves to view the 1978 senior class, which many feel will be as great as the 1975 class, considered California's best-ever.

All of next year's bumper crop of prep stars are in the IDL which means "keen" eyes will be able to view first hand the likes of Leonel Marquetti (6-7) and Mo Williams (6-6) of Verbum Dei, Mark Snow (6-11) of Poway, Dan Larsen (6-9) of Ventura, Michael Zeno (6-8) of Serra, Tyren Naulls (6-5) of Lynwood, Greg Goorjian (6-3) of Crescenta Valley, and Doug Marty (6-1) of Long Beach Millikan.

Joining the blue-chip underclassmen will be this years top players such as Northern California Player of the Year Cliff Robertson (6-9) of Castlemont High School headed for USC, UCLA-bound Tony Anderson of Victor Valley, Colorado-bound Jack Tuz of Corona Del Mar, USC-bound Barry Brooks of Pasadena and George Ratkovich of Alhambra, Minnesota-bound Bill Duffy of Damien, Arizona-bound Russell Brown of Inglewood, and Pete Lallas of South High School in Oregon, who is going to Stanford.

Joining the top prep stars will be the Junior Olympic Development League which features the choice junior high cagers in the southland. These youngsters, like their older heros, play under international rules, the only summer league in the country that uses international enforcement. International rules includes the 30-second clock, widened free throw lane, and constant movement.

Both the senior and junior division play on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoons.

Sun Devils show a Bird

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — College baseball has found its answer to The Bird.

Arizona State do-it-all Jamie Allen doesn't talk to the ball like Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers but it seemed that way as he kept the top-rated Sun Devils alive Thursday night in the College World Series by preserving a 6-2 victory over South Carolina.

"I'm not showing off out there," said the enthusiastic Allen. "It's just something that helps me get ready. Most of the time, I'm more subdued. But I really bring it out for big games."

The freshman right-hander wiggled out of a bases-loaded jam and pitched three innings of one-hit relief to hand South Carolina its first loss of the series.

He stalked around the mound, jumped up and down after strikes, frequently backed off the mound and taunted batters to get in the box.

"Allen really put on quite a show," said Arizona State Coach Jim Brock. "Coming in and throwing fast balls after Mitch (Dean) had thrown so many breaking pitches kept them off balance."

Southern Illinois staged the biggest comeback of the series and up-ended California StateLos Angeles 9-7 in the night's elimination-round game.

Southern Illinois, 41-11, is matched against top-rated Arizona State, 55-12, in an elimination game Friday night with the survivor facing South Carolina for the series crown Saturday night.

South Carolina, 43-11-1, received a bye into the finals by beating Southern Illinois 5-4 Wednesday night in a meeting of then series unbeatens.

Although the crowd of 10,193 seemed to delight in Allen's performance, South Carolina Coach June Raines didn't like what he saw.

"I thought Arizona State made a joke of the game with all that stalling and delay tactics," said Raines. "That's not meant as anything against Allen because he pitched very well for them."

The decisive play came in the seventh inning with Arizona State ahead 5-2.

Johnny Long and Greg Jonson opened the inning with singles and Allen came on to be greeted by a single by Mark Van Bever to load the bases.

But Allen picked Jonson off second base and then struck out the next two hitters. He finished with five strikeouts.

A bases-loaded walk and Bob Horner's two-run single gave Arizona State three runs in the fifth inning to break a 2-2 deadlock.

California State-Los Angeles, 42-22, built a 6-0 lead on Southern Illinois but a five-run eighth inning climaxed the Salukis' comeback. Jim Reeves' two-run homer provided the tying and go-ahead runs.

After the early outburst, two Southern Illinois relievers held the Diablos to three hits.

CSLA Coach Jack Deutsch was philosphical about the loss.

"We came back all season like SIU did and you have to give them credit," said Deutsch.

The Diablos State, a Division I school only in baseball, were making their first series bid.

Ben Lefebvre to visit Plaza

Bennie Lefebvre, father of former Los Angeles Dodger second baseman Jim Lefebvre, will be at the Montclair Plaza today and again on Saturday to demonstrate his newly developed three-dimensional baseball hitting tee.

The senior Lefebvre, for many years a prominent high school BB coach in Southern California, will be at the Plaza until 9 p.m. tonight and again Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

In addition to demonstrating his hitting tee, Lefebvre and two of his sons, Gil and Tip, will be giving free personal instruction on hitting.

Sanford is top thinclad

James Sanford, who paced Pasadena to the Southern Section championship, was named today as the CIF's track & field Athlete of the Year.

Sanford was a standout sprinter this year for Pasadena, and set a new state record in the 440-yard dash at 46.6. He also recorded a 21.2 220, and anchored the Bulldogs' winning 440 and mile relay units.

Named as CIF City track & field Athlete of the Year was Ron Williams of Chatsworth, who was the city champ in the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes.

S.D. starts T-Ball loop

Because of a heavy demand, the San Dimas Recreation Department is starting a second T-Ball league for boys and girls, ages 5-6-7.

To register, visit the department's offices at 245 E. Bonita Avenue before Wednesday, June 29. Games will be played on Saturdays and everyone plays. There is an $8 fee which covers tee-shirt uniforms, instruction and awards.

The department had to turn away 50 applicants because of the heavy registration for the first league so it is asking those who were turned away to re-register.

Services set for Bill Lee

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for Bill Lee, who won 169 games during a 14-year National League career with Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston.

Lee, who pitched in the major leagues from 1934-47, had his best years in 1935 and 1938, when he led the National League in victories pitching for Chicago. He was 20-6 in 1935 and 22-9 in 1938.

Lee was 0-2 in four World Series games and finished his career with a 3.45 earned run average and a 169-157 record.

Lee died at his home Wednesday after an extended illness. He was 67.

Harris happy about trade

MONROE, La. (AP) — Quarterback James Harris, traded by Los Angeles to the San Diego Chargers, said Thursday he never asked to be traded but is glad to be playing with a club that wants him.

"I never said that I asked to be traded. I was quoted as saying that, but I never said it," remarked Harris, who is visiting his family here.

"It's evident they didn't want me to play," he said of the Rams, where he was displaced as starting quarterback last year after leading Los Angeles to the National Football Conference playoffs two years in a row.

"I never asked to be traded but I prepared myself to live with the decision they made," Harris said. "This is the way I have to take it."

In moving to San Diego, the seven-year National Football League veteran returns to the direction of coach Tommy Prothro, under whose tutelage he became the first black to quarterback an NFL team while Prothro was at Los Angeles.

Harris said he is encouraged that the Chargers showed an interest in him by trading future draft choices. But he said he would take a "wait and see" attitude on his position with the team, where he must displace quarterback Dan Fouts to earn a starting spot.

"I'll just try to prove myself as a football player and do anything I can to contribute to the team winning," he said.

North squad gets together

The valley will be well-represented Saturday when a get-acquainted luncheon is held for the North team in preparation for the 26th annual Shrine All-Star Football Game.

Two local high school products, San Dimas' Sonny LaFargue and Chaffey's Bob Sebro, will be on hand for the luncheon, along with the other 26 members of the North squad.

That unit will be meeting at noon at the Rodger Young Center in Los Angeles for the luncheon, the kickoff affair for the annual Shrine classic.

LaFargue (6-1, 235) is listed as an offensive guard on the North roster. The San Dimas gridder is headed for Cal State Long Beach next season.

Sebro (6-3, 250) is carried on the North roster as an offensive tackle. He is heading for the U. of Colorado in the fall.

Both LaFargue and Sebro were on the Progress Bulletin All-Valley team last fall.

Other members of the North squad include quarterback Randy Hertel from Los Altos, and running backs Tim Brown (Cleveland), Robbie Chapman (South Pasadena) and Darren Rogers (Agoura).

Top name on the South squad is running back Freeman McNeil from Banning High. McNeil was the L.A. City Player of the Year.

The All-Star clash is expected to draw more than 50,000 fans to the Rose Bowl this year. The game is set for Saturday evening, July 23. Its proceeds go to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

FOR THE LAST TWO WEEKENDS we have been practically living out of a suitcase. First it was at Loyola-Marymount conducting AYSO's Coach Development Program, and last weekend at the Airport Marina Hotel conducting coaching workshops, reviewing proposed changes to rules and regulations, and providing some "halftime" show-biz buffoonery at the Annual General Meeting of the American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO).

NANCY KENT HAS BEEN NAMED THE NEW AREA DIRECTOR FOR AYSO becoming the first woman Area Director in this organization. Nancy became involved with AYSO in 1972 as a team mother in Diamond Bar. The next year she was Secretary of Diamond Bar AYSO and in 1975 Nancy moved up to Regional Commissioner. Last year she got close again to the "grass roots" by coaching and officiating. The new board of Regional Commissioners for AYSO Area G spearheaded by Nancy are: Region 3, Claremont—Herman Schoene; Region 23, Hacienda Heights, Rowland Heights — Jim Holt; Region 30, Pomona — Ross Martin; Region 31, Diamond Bar, Walnut — Jerry Hancock; Region 32, Upland — Rick Williams; Region 37, Corona, Norco, Home Gardens — Mike Hughes; Region 65, Cucamonga, Alta Loma, Etiwanda — Judy Massagli; Region 66, Ontario/Montclair — Waynn Pearson; Region 67, Chino — Lois McCollough; and Region 112, San Dimas/La Verne — John Della Penna.

OF THE 25 PROPOSED CHANGES to the AYSO Rules and Regulations 15 passed. Although most of the changes were administrative in nature, some were significant to the local teams. These changes are:

1. — A player may be a member of only one AYSO team (excluding All Stars) at any one time.

2. — Regions may form co-ed (K) divisions for 5 and 6 year old boys and girls. Teams formed in this division will be primarily for the introduction of soccer skills and techniques to the children, not for competitive purposes.

3. — In case of a tie following overtime, (if the game in question is the final game of a playoff series where neither of the teams involved will be entering further AYSO playoff competition which is contingent upon the result of the game in question,) play shall cease and the two teams involved shall be declared co-champions. Prior to the final game of a playoff series, in case of a tie following overtime, the winner shall be determined by playing an additional "sudden victory" overtime.

4. — All Star players must compete only in the division in which they participated during the regular season.

5. — If a player is injured, the coach may substitute for the player, in which case the injured player may not return until the beginning of the next quarter. Only the player who is injured is credited with a quarter's play regardless of the actual time played.

6. — It shall be the duty of each coach to participate in positive coaching that instructs and encourages players during AYSO games. Sideline coaching shall be limited to two coaches from each team, and they shall be limited to an area outside the field of play adjacent to the area in the field and no closer than 18 yards from each goal line.

7. — In the event that play has been stopped with the ball in the penalty area and the FIFA rules call for play to be resumed with a drop ball, or play has been stopped in the penalty area because of injury, the game shall be restarted with the drop ball being taken at the closest point outside the penalty area.

THE MOST HISTORIC AND TOUGHEST soccer competition in the United States is the 63-year-old U.S. Open Cup tournament whose first champion was the Brooklyn Field Club in 1914. Since then the Open Cup, known also as the Dewar Cup (the Scotch company donated it), has been won mainly by teams from Massachusetts towns, NY, Philly and St. Louis. In the Fifties the west coast started to show strength in this competition when Albert Ebert's L.A. Kickers copped the national title and the Canvasbaks of San Pedro (both with Scottish international Billy Steel helming) added a second straight for the west.

Within the last five years our Los Angeles Maccabees have won the Dewar Cup twice, and San Francisco Athletic Club has added another to western laurels showing the rise of the far west in national soccer.

Now Far West fans have a chance to see the Maccabees try for a third this Sunday when they tie into the strong German/Hungarian club of Philadelphia . . . a strangely-named club for a lineup of all American-born players!

Heading the Philly lineup are the Bahr brothers, Chris and Casey, whose father Walter Bahr was right half on the USA World Cup team which defeated England in Belo Horizonte, Brazil in 1950. Both Bahrs have already won Olympic honors and are examples of the upcoming American player. Will it be Philly or L.A. who will be the 64th U.S. Open Cup winner? The answer will be unfolded Sunday at Jackie Robinson Field (formerly Rancho Cienega) at LaBrea and Rodeo Avenues at 3:15 p.m. Try to see this most rugged of knockout competitions. There will be overtime and penalty-kicks in effect if they tie in regulation 90-minutes.

THE NASL-LEADING AZTECS with only 12 games under their belt have managed to become high-point leaders by virtue of their 30 goals scored in a lesser number of games . . . a fact that will carry much strength in the stretch run for playoff positions. Still heading the stingiest defense is the Las Vegas Quicksilvers and they've played more games to-date than any other NASL club which intensifies their claim to best defensive team.

The Quicksilvers loosened up a bit last week in a 3-0 loss to the Aztecs but we were all treated to the finesse of the Magnificent Mozambique, Eusebio, whose twilight skills are still beautiful to watch.

Add the weekly wizardry of George Best and you've got an athletic attraction that is worth far more than the meager crowds coming to the Coliseum. Everything is first class and you've got the world's greatest weather.

Now if the media would give soccer its share of time and space like we are getting out here in our soccer-conscious valley area the great game might have a chance of making a dent in the big-time of sports.

The high-flying Aztecs are off on a long road trip to Minnesota, Rochester, New Jersey and the Yale Bowl before returning for the "game of the season" when a new record for soccer attendance could be set for L.A.

Why?

Well, four of the world's finest players will come to town with the Cosmos on July 2 when Ramon Miflin of Peru, Giorgio Chinaglia of Italy, Franz Beckenbauer (European Footballer of the Year) from West Germany and the Peerless Pele will dig their cleats into the natural Coliseum turf.

Add George Best to that attraction and you've got what might be the top soccer attraction in the world coming right o'here to our town. How can anybody miss it? Especially the sports editors.

THE AMERICAN SOCCER LEAGUE shows Sacramento's Spirits heading the parade with 42 points but they have played at least three more games than the rest of the Western Division and with the multiple-points system that is not a real lead.

The defending ASL champ Skyhawks and Santa Barbara's Condors are breathing hard on the Spirits, and the California Sunshine have four extra games to make up the difference which could make them a contender.

This week's sked shows Santa Barbara at Van Nuys Friday; the Sunshine at Santa Barbara Saturday; and Santa Barbara at Santa Ana Wednesday.

SOUTH AMERICAN ACTION: Brazil tied England 0-0, and West Germany 1-1 before Maracana crowds of 77,000 and 106,000 last week.

Chino coach gets surprise

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Ilse Scheffer of Chino thought she was having dinner with two friends as she stepped into a local restaurant.

Actually, she was being honored by the women coaches of the San Antonio League during a surprise dinner and awards ceremony at Lord Charley's restaurant.

Miss Scheffer is retiring after serving 35 years as a teacher at Chino High School and a coach of women's sports.

The schools in the league field women's teams in basketball, volleyball, tennis, field hockey, track and field events, softball and badminton.

Miss Scheffer has coached all but badminton.

"I've had a good share of championship teams over the years and really have loved every minute of coaching," said the trim, young-looking teacher. "But now I want to retire while I'm able to be active in sports myself."

She plans to play tennis, travel and enjoy her hobbies.

But sports will continue to be a part of her life. She already has reservations for the 1980 Olympic games in Moscow.

Miss Scheffer started teaching at Chino High School in September, 1942, after having graduated from UCLA with a degree in physical education.

In addition to her teaching and coaching duties, Miss Scheffer has written several articles on coaching basketball and speedball and has been a national officer in softball and basketball organizations.

A unique planter "trophy" was presented to Miss Scheffer by Jean Brennecke of Bonita High School. The surprise party was organized by Shirley Wright and Madra Flaherty of Claremont High School.

Other league schools, in addition to Chino, are Montclair, Ganesha, Upland, Pomona, Garey and Pomona Catholic high schools.

Racers need more money

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The general manager of the Indianapolis Racers, out of money to meet Wednesday's payroll and faced with the possibility of losing his coach even if the team survives, took his problems to Chicago for today's World Hockey Association meetings.

The league's fact-finding committee was expected to report to the WHA trustees on possibilities for merger with the National Hockey League.

Park planned near San Diego

San Diego County Parks and Recreation Department has targeted this October as a deadline for acquisition of approximately 180 acres of land — most of it uplands — that would complete an 800-acre wildlife-oriented regional park at San Elijo Lagoon in the coastal area between Solano Beach and Cardiff-by-the-Sea.

The lagoon has been the subject of public controversy since it was first zoned for development in 1964, with opposing pressures to develop it for housing and commercial purposes and to preserve it for wildlife values.

It is proposed that part of the park — approximately 500 acres of wetlands below the 100-year flood line — be designated a state ecological reserve. Approximately one-half of this wetlands has just been acquired by the California Department of Fish and Game through its adjunct, the Wildlife Conservation Board.

Escrow closed June 1 on 268.31 acres of the lagoon purchased for $910,000 from United California Bank, formally concluding several years of negotiations for the property. The purchase, authorized by the WCB at its March 24 meeting, also settled litigation between the State Lands Commission and the property owner over tideland claims by the state.

One-half of the WCB's purchase price is reimbursable from the Land and Water Conservation Fund of the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

The bureau has also put up $500,000 toward county acquisition of the remaining 180 acres of uplands included in park plans.

Pete Cuthbert, planner for the county Parks and Recreation Department, said that with the addition of the federal grant the county now has $1.6 million for purchase of lagoon uplands. He said it is hoped the purchases can be completed by October.

Cuthbert said plans for the park included trails, a docent program, nature interpretive facilities and perhaps in the future a nature museum.

In Sacramento Chester Hart, executive officer of the Wildlife Conservation Board, said negotiations were now underway for an agreement that would give the county the management of the ecological reserve in conjunction with operation of the remainder of the regional park.

San Elijo Lagoon is one of the major stops for migratory water birds along the San Diegy County coastline, and at one time, when it was connected to the sea, it was a productive fish nursery and shellfish area.

COLLECTOR'S ITEM — Jerry Kramer (L) and Alex Moeller display one of their collection of rare Tipup Pistols, which they will be showing at the California Gun & Collector's Show, due June 25-26 at the L.A. County Fairgrounds in Pomona.

Gun show due at Fairgrounds

Don Bullock's California Gun & Collector's Show will be playing at the L.A. County Fairgrounds June 25-26, and Bullock has promised weapons buffs that some rare and unusual guns will be on display.

For example, there's the Tipup Pistol, a single shot calibre 22, with a 10-inch barrel and a skeleton stock made of what looks like light brass bands, detachable, of course. The weapons were in vogue circa 1879 through 1886, and were first used for gallery and target shooting, later for hunting small game. They were manufactured by Joshua Stevens at his Chicopee Falls, Mass. factory and were so popular for a time they were distributed all over the U.S. and exported to Great Britain and the Continent. Today only a handful of these unusual guns survive, a few being owned by collectors Alex Moeller and Jerry Walters, who will be showing them at the Pomona Show.

Ever since guns were invented, men have been fascinated with them, and gunsmiths have been producing odd specimens. The Derringer is one, noted for its diminutive size, some so small they could be concealed in the palm of a lady's closed hand, or in a man's waistband, in the top of his boot or in a woman's bodice.

The Blunderbuss was another oddity. The mouth of its barrel was shaped like a funnel and the weapon was loaded with grapeshot. The idea was that when the little pellets spewed out, they would fly in all directions over a wide circumference. Experts, however, say this didn't happen too often. Later, the shotgun came upon the scene and remained popular through present time.

Many other such items will be seen at both of the California Gun ' Collector's shows, which will be held in Bldg. 3-A of the Fairgrounds, near the main entrance at White and McKinley Streets in Pomona.

Parking is free. Admission is $1.75 for adults, 75 cents for kids. Hours of the shows all days are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Clammer turns to wrong man

Never trust a stranger to help you out of a jam with the law. You could wind up in worse shape than you were before.

Three clam diggers at Huntington Beach discovered that the hard way early Saturday morning, June 4, when they were found by Department of Fish and Game Warden Chet Gall with 59 Pismo clams in their possession.

Ten Pismos per person is all the law allows, so Gall got out his book and started to write citations for 29 clams over the limit. The men argued that 20 of the clams, two limits, were for two of their wives, who were at the scene but not digging. In fact, one of the women said she couldn't dig for clams because of her heart condition.

Warden Gall explained that once you have taken your own limit, it is unlawful to take another limit for someone else, even if that person is present. And how could they account for the other nine overlimit clams?

One of the suspects pointed to a man and his young son, both carrying clamming forks, who had approached to observe the incident and were standing nearby.

"The nine clams belong to him; we were just holding them for him," the suspect said. He turned to the man and said loudly, "Say, buddy, you'd better come and get your clams. We have to leave now."

"No, they're not mine," the bystander protested. "We just got here. We're not even wet yet. And we'll dig our own clams, thanks."

Mets option Staiger

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets announced early Thursday they had optioned third baseman Roy Staiger to Tidewater of the International League.

The National League team also announced that Joe Torre, who had remained on the active roster after taking over the managerial reins from Joe Frazier, no longer would be a player.

The move lowered the Met roster to 25 players, the major league maximum.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Against a conflicting news background, prices moved little during the morning Friday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

While traders were inspired by a Commerce Department report on personal income, they also were disheartened by failure of Citibank of New York to shave its prime rate, now at the 6¾ per cent level. Earlier this week Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. cut its prime rate a quarter point to 6½ per cent, but no other major banks followed suit.

Citibank announced at Friday's market opening that it was making no change in its rate, a move that would have been welcomed by traders and investors. Any move that cuts the cost of doing corporate business is good news to Wall Street.

At the same time, the Commerce Department reported that personal income in May reached its best level on record. The 0.6 per cent rise for the month brought personal income to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.5 trillion, the highest ever.

With these developments to digest, the Dow Jones industrial average, up 2.88 points in the previous session, was unchanged at 920.45 shortly before noon. Advances edged declines, 548 to 500, among the 1,558 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to about 9,040,000 shares, compared with 9,280,000 shares traded in the first two hours Thursday.

A bright feature was the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. The issue moved up ⅝ to 11⅛ after a delayed opening. Directors of the supermarket chain approved payment of the first quarterly dividend for shareholders since November, 1974. The five-cent dividend contrasted with its previous payment of 15 cents two and a half years ago. The company also reported higher earnings for the first quarter.

Most active issue was Franklin Mint, up ⅜ to 11¼. The issue gave ground Thursday after the company said profits for this year would be substantially lower than a year ago.

Second most active was AllisChalmers, off ½ to 31⅞. A block of 105,200 shares moved at 32. Third most active was Twentieth Century-Fox, up ¾ to 24 on 105,200 shares. The movie maker has been higher and active on the box-office draw of its science-fiction movie, "Star Wars."

Warner-Lambert Co. said it expects to report higher earnings for the second quarter. The issue was up ⅛ to 28⅝.

Gulf Oil, whose company executives have admitted the company was part of an international cartel to raise uranium prices, gave up ½ to 28½.

Rosario Resources Corp. and Fresnillo Co. have approved a merger plan. Rosario gave up ⅜ to 22. Fresnillo, traded on the American Stock Exchange, gained ½ to 19⅛.

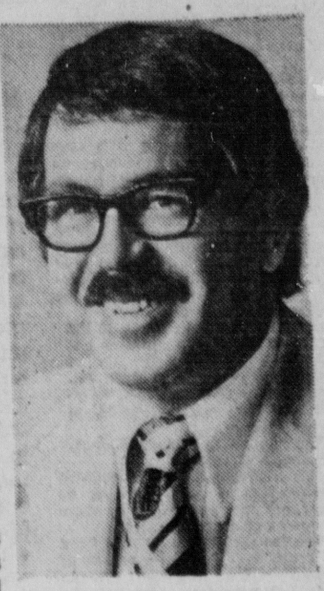
S&L office to open in Walnut



ERNEST J. STINES

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of South Pasadena will hold the grand opening for its new branch office at 312 S. Lemon Ave., in Walnut, June 25, from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend ribbon cutting ceremonies and tour the new facility. Refreshments will be served and gifts will be given away. A musical program will be presented.

The office, fourth in the chain of the 41-year-old association, is a slumpstone building with red tile roof in the Walnut Business Park complex. This is north of Valley Boulevard and opposite the Walnut Post Office.

Ernest J. Stines, a resident of Walnut and for the last three years manager of the Monterey Park office, will transfer to manage the new office as assistant vice president.

Public officials, civic personalities and business executives will join in the opening ceremonies. Association executives will include Robert F. Clanton, president and managing officer; William E. Clanton, senior vice president and secretary; Kenneth P. Ford, vice president; William J. Thomas, treasurer; Charles E. Clark, assistant vice president; R.A. Young, assistant vice president and Stines.

Government spending facts

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tax Foundation, a publicly-supported, nonprofit, tax-exempt organization that hates to see money spent by the biggest nonprofit institution of all — government — has just published its biennial admonition.

"Government expenditures for 1977 are projected at $9,607 per U.S. household," writes chairman Willard Rockwell in the 1977 edition of Facts and Figures on Government Finance.

The chairman relates that the comparable figure for 1950 was only $1,615, but that comparison isn't quite cricket. In another part of the book you learn that the 1976 dollar stands for less than half the value of the 1950 dollar.

Nevertheless, the point is made. Government spending is rising like June temperatures. It takes close to half of household income.

Rockwell asks: Do we as citizens want our government units to spend that much? Do we know where all this spending is leading us? Is the money being raised in ways that best promote our national goals?

The Tax Foundation's answers to these questions are not provided, but based on past declarations we might assume them to be negative. Government spending, it feels, is often mindless, directionless and opposed to free enterprise goals.

But government spending also is misunderstood. True or false: Each year the federal government takes an increasingly larger percentage of total tax receipts, and state and local governments less.

The fact, as computed by the foundation, is that federal tax receipts in 1976 amounted to 63.7 per cent of the total, the lowest percentage since 58.1 was recorded in 1942.

At the same time, the percentage taken by state governments rose to 21.7 per cent, highest since 1942. Local governments took 15.1 per cent, a figure exceeded as recently as 1971, 1972 and 1973.

Ah, but that's not the full story. In fact, the recent trend of states to acquire an almost imperceptibly larger part of the receipts is almost insignificant when matched against the big change.

And what is that? Let some figures tell: In 1902, the percentage distribution of tax receipts was federal 37.4, state 11.4, and local 51.3.

As recently as 1940, local government received 31.6 per cent of receipts, but since then the numbers have seldom reached half that level. The low point was in 1944, at 9 per cent. Match that against 1932's 53.6.

Since World War II, the federal percentage of receipts has ranged from nearly 80 per cent at the close of the war to the 1976 figure, falling by small amounts in an irregular pattern. State receipts have inched higher, while local numbers have ranged around 10 to 15.

Contained in those figures are many stories: The marked change in the relative power of local versus central government, the federalization of services, the international power balance that requires huge sums for defense.

There are some questions, too. For example: Does the sharply lower percentage of local tax receipts explain in part the plight of cities? You'll get an argument from those who note, low percentage notwithstanding, that local tax receipts have continued to rise in dollar amounts.

Chrysler lists foreign bribes

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. says its overseas operations paid foreign government officials, union representatives and employes some $2.5 million in bribes, extortion money and other questionable sums between 1971 and 1976.

In a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the nation's No. 3 automaker said recently that the payments over the six-year period averaged about $425,000 a year. Sales outside the United States and Canada at the time averaged $3.3 billion a year.

None of the payments was made in the United States, according to the company, which did not identify any of the countries or subsidiaries involved. Chrysler has wholly or partially owned subsidiaries in 15 countries outside the United States and Canada.

Earlier this spring, General Motors Corp. said its foreign subsidiaries made at least $1.25 million in similar questionable payments over a five-year period.

Chrysler said a special internal investigation ordered by management revealed the existence of 10 secret funds in seven countries which paid out $720,000 to expedite business.

The company also said it paid a total $179,000 in two countries because of "extortion by public officials resulting from abusive demands for taxes not legally due."

Chrysler added that several subsidiaries handed out more than $1 million in bribes to minor government employes.

About $480,000 in "facilitating payments" were made to union representatives and employes in six countries, Chrysler said.

Some $90,000 was paid to governmental employes in one country, nearly all of it at the direction of a sales agent who works for Chrysler on a commission basis.

Another irregularity uncovered by the investigation, Chrysler said, involved a foreign subsidiary which failed to record its ownership of a business with a book value of about $100,000.

The firm noted that its investigation found no illegal political contribution of corporate funds in the United States or overseas.

Chrysler said it has improved its policies and internal controls and taken other steps to restrict future unquestionable payments and "provide additional assurance that there will be no improper disbursement of corporate funds."

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — In buying flashing for certain places on my roof, is it necessary to stick to one kind of metal? A friend of mine says you can't put two different metal flashings on the same roof. I have some copper left over from another job, but the new metal I intend to buy is aluminum. Can I use them on the same roof? It's an asphalt shingle roof.

A. — Your friend is right in the sense that different metals cannot be combined because of a corrosive process that takes place when this is done. But if you were to use copper flashing around a chimney, for instance, there is no reason why you could not use another type of metal some other place on the roof.

Q. — I read a magazine story in which a house builder was being interviewed. He referred several times to the overcoat of the house. What did he mean?

A. — It's one of several terms that simply mean the exterior walls of a house. Another expression of this kind, the skin of a house, means the same thing.

Q. — My grandfather, who used to be a cabinetmaker, keeps talking about the beautiful finishes produced on wood with nothing more than linseed oil and turpentine. Is this kind of finish all he says it is?

A. — Yes, if you have plenty of time and energy. There are several finishes of this type. All must be used on raw wood or wood from which the old finish has been removed. One calls for a half-and-half mixture of boiled linseed oil and turpentine, another for equal parts of linseed oil, turnpentine and spar varnish. The mixture is rubbed in, being especially careful to rid the surface of all excess oil. It must then be rubbed vigorously every week or so for several months, after which it develops the kind of satin finish that wood ordinarily gets after many years of tender care. The sheen will last indefinitely, but may collect dust, so the surface must be wiped every now and then.

Q. — I have never used shellac on a piece of furniture, but have experimented with it on scrap wood. It seems to come out all right, but now I have to know whether it must be sanded between coats, since I understand that several thin coats are much better than a single thick one. Also, can it be used on any kind of unfinished furniture?

A. — Yes, it should be sanded between coats, and yes, it can be used on any kind of unfinished furniture. The qualification on the furniture is that shellac is soluble in some liquids, so it is better to use it on pieces of furniture that will not be exposed to liquids. This does not mean that other finishes are not susceptible to damage from certain liquids, only that shellac is a bit more vulnerable.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y., 11743.

Guide to care free vacation

Choosing a house-sitter

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

How do you go about choosing someone to mind your house while you are on vacation? It's a question that has puzzled a lot of people.

Two categories of house sitters are available — sleep-in and live-in. Sleep-in sitters come and go, airing and feeding animals, watering plants and the like, and sleeping in your house at night. A live-in sitter will be at your house or apartment as if it were the sitter's own abode.

Sleep-in sitters include short-term sitters who live close by and arrive with a minimum of personal effects. It upsets the household little as the sitter continues to use another home for meals and changes of clothing. The fee is based on the services required.

Live-in sitters will cook, use your closets and bureau drawers, and perhaps even use your car. You will need to make space for them as you would for a person to whom you are renting your home. That may be a big nuisance if your vacation is a short one, but on a long term basis, it works quite well. A lone sitter or a couple may have no other home, depending on house sitting jobs for a roof overhead. That type of professional sitter usually works without a fee. They enjoy moving about usually and will expect to entertain and live in your house as they might in their own home.

For short-term two week or one month vacations, a sleep-in sitter may work out best, particularly if the sitter is a neighbor. Some of the most reliable sleep-in sitters may be in the 18 to 25-year-old group, but unfortunately people often skip this group, unfairly assuming that all are liabilities because they are at the partying age. Responsible young sitters will observe ground rules — no entertaining, a limit on visitors, smoking rules, or whatever. Young people usually like animals and plants and are likely to have more patience than older people who might merely tolerate some of the house chores.

Senior citizens make good short-term sitters if you remember that not all older persons are blessed with built-in halos. You must provide ground rules for them, too.

A good source for finding sitters is the neighbors. Many people have relatives who would like to visit but the hindrance might be space and they can't afford a hotel. It's a freebie, usually if you can locate such a person or couple.

Local church societies might be consulted about house sitters, young and old. School students can be checked out, even if schools are closed in summer. A principal, teacher or guidance counselor would be happy, no doubt, to answer a telephone question. Or a note could be dropped to the school so that a letter might be forwarded to the proper person. Many schools have a career consultant who would be happy to help.

Most houseplants need a little 'summer' attention

Now that summer is here, can it be that the outside garden is so inviting that your houseplants are a little neglected? Shame! Remember what a comfort they are during the winter. Show them some attention now, or they might not flourish next December.

The highlight of summer, at least for the plants, is a vacation outside. They'll certainly enjoy it and show their appreciation with healthy new growth. But, before you push them outdoors, give it a little thought of preparation. Sinking the pots into the ground is good; it keeps the roots cooler and moist, but snails and bugs may crawl inside the soil ball within the pot. If you decide to go this route, place plastic or wire screening over the drainage hold to keep insects from crawling in.

When you relocate plants outside, do so on a cool or cloudy day and pay attendtion to the plant's light requirements. Few will tolerate more than filtered sunlight; most will grow best in light shade. Direct sunlight even for the short time will burn the leaves and probably cause them to drop. Sun grown plants will also be harder to acclimatize next fall when brought indoors. Also, remember to lift the pots periodically to be sure they haven't rooted outside the pots.

As usual, keep the foliage clean by spraying with jets of water to remove the dust, dirt and grime and discourage bug populations. Houseplants outdoors are more susceptible to insect attack than when indoors. Continually check for and destroy the insect pests as they appear and be especially thorough before you bring them back in the house.

At the end of their outdoor vacation, about a month before house heat goes on, bring them back inside. Clean them first by removing dead leaves and insects before they get inside. They should quickly readjust to the house without difficulty and give you another year of winter solace.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

You may never have put up a brick wall or constructed anything made of brick, but there's no reason why you can't do repointing.

Repointing is the professional term for the repair of crumbling mortar in the joints of brickwork. If you have any brickwork at all around the house, it's likely that sooner or later you will find that some of the mortar has come loose. Entirely aside from the standpoint of appearance, this condition should get quick attention, since water coming through the joints will turn a minor repair into a major one. Also, rain which enters a single location on an exterior house wall can cause extensive damage to inside walls and ceilings.

Premixed mortar to which only water need be added is best for most repointing projects. But when it is necessary to make your own mixture, use one part of portland cement to one part of hydrated lime, five parts of sand and enough water to make a workable solution. Too much water will weaken the mixture.

The trick in picking away at a joint to remove crumbling mortar is to apply enough force to break up any mortar that is loose or threatening to become loose but not enough force to dislodge material that is solidly in place. Although it is generally recommended that this be done with a cold chisel and hammer, almost any fairly pointed tool, such as an old screwdriver, can be used. Remember that it is not enough to break up the loose mortar; it must be extracted from the opening. When that has been done, thoroughly wet the cavity. Either spray water into it or throw a glass of water at it so that the area is soaked. Don't spare the water, the object being to prevent the moisture being sucked out of the new mortar too quickly.

Use a small putty knife or something similar to slide the new mortar into the joint. Pack it in so that it sticks out just a little. Dip the knife into water, then scoop up the excess mortar. There are several ways to finish off the joints. Probably the easiest for the novice is to push the tip of a pointed trowel along the joint at a 45-degree angle, which will push out a little of the mortar, which is then forced into a V-shaped groove; hence, the name V-joint. You won't do this perfectly at first, but you'll get the hang of it and nobody will notice that the joints aren't exactly right. All that matters is that you achieve the objective of making a joint that sheds rain.

During all this, keep a wet rag handy. If any of the mortar gets on the face of the brick, wipe it off instantly, as it is difficult to remove a few minutes later.

When a brick is damaged so badly that it has to be replaced, you will have to remove all the mortar around it to remove it. This time you not only soak the opening, you soak the replacement brick in water for at least 10 or 15 minutes, more if feasible.

As with all masonry repairs, curing the patches is necessary. This calls for wetting down the repaired joints a couple of times a day for several days.

(Repairing concrete and patching plaster are among the 35 subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Gardeners check list

—Now's the time to sow seed of many perennials to bloom next summer. Try sowing some delphiniums, penstemons, coreopsis, columbines or sweet Williams in flats or wait until started plants appear in nurseries.

—For unbelievably lovely sweet peas, prepare a trench of manure and fertilizer for the planting of seeds next month. Plant early varieties that bloom well in December and January.

—Dig down a few inches into soil after you water to see if you're doing a good job. Remember the most effective watering is deep and infrequent.

—Make use of the good gardening ideas at local county fairs. Visit them this month or next and something may catch your eye.

—If water is in short supply and you are hand carrying water to thirsty plants, be sure to water the same area of the root system each time. It's better to maintain some of the root system throughout the season rather than teasing different sides of the plant with water.

—Water tomatoes and melons deeply so water penetrates at least two feet. You should water shrubs deeply too.

—Keep after mildew problems on roses, lilacs, euonymous, begonias, etc. Spray weekly as long as disease is evident.

—Pinch back Chrysanthemums three or four more times for bushy plants and more flowers next fall.

—Hibiscus will soon be in full display. If you have a sunny and warm, but protected area for flowering shrubs, run down to the nursery and buy some.

Joyce Brothers

Tattoo turns her off

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I was getting serious about a man I know until I went to a local pool with him and discovered he has tattoos on his chest and back. It shocked me and somehow turned me off like few other things could. I know he's still the same person but this tattoo business just seems so dumb and crazy to me. I can't explain it to him because I don't want to hurt his feelings and he doesn't know why I don't want to see him anymore. I can't be serious about him now and I think he'd be wasting his time because our relationship can't possibly get anywhere. — O.V.

Dear O.V.: If a tattoo can demolish your whole relationship, then it must have not been founded on very solid ground to begin with. If you could overcome your horror at this needlepoint on your boyfriend's torso, you might gain some insights into his background by asking him when and how he got his decorations.

Tattoos can be a sign of growth and health, according to Dr. James Orten and William Bell of the University of Tennessee.

Instead of viewing tattoos as a badge of defiance, it might be more productive to see them as an attempt to cope or adjust to one's circumstances and to communicate one's feelings about them or about one's self.

Men, especially young men, get tattoos in an attempt to establish some kind of clear, personal identity. It's as if they don't know who they are and they feel if they put some kind of tag or label on themselves, their identity will become clearer to themselves and to others. Men often get tattoos when they are in environments that are depersonalizing, such as the armed services.

It's possible your friend dislikes and regrets his tattoos as much as you do. You'd hurt his feelings less by discussing them than you would by simply dropping him without any explanation.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My wife and I just learned that both our college son and daughter are living with friends as if they were married. My wife feels this is immoral. I think, as far as my daughter's concerned, it's just damn stupid. No man's going to marry a girl if he doesn't have to. I'm really tempted to cut off funds from both of them. I don't see why college authorities can't do something about this sort of thing. If you ask me, this is one of the reasons that marriage is going down the drain. Is there anything my wife and I can do short of ranting and raving? — C.N.

Dear C.N.: I'm afraid not. Parents who interfere in their youngsters' romances seem to make the bonds between the young lovers stronger, rather than weaker. This change in life style is part of the sexual revolution that has been taking place over the last decade. I don't agree that living together before marriage is necessarily destructive. It can teach the individuals involved that they're not ready for marriage, it can lead to individual growth, and as long as there are no children involved, it needn't be viewed as totally negative.

I sympathize with you and your wife but I think you may be overreacting. Situations and philosophies are different today and most young men don't automatically shun marriage just because they can enjoy sexual relations without it. Young people are now more apt to marry for the right reasons — common interests and companionship — rather than to satisfy their desire to have sex. Since they can have sex without marriage, marriage, in a sense, becomes more serious than in the past.

I definitely think you shouldn't penalize your children by withholding money. This will create many problems and will accomplish nothing.

Mother's Day and Father's Day were born about the same time but it took Dad almost 50 more years to gain "official" status. Mother's Day was made official in 1914. Father's Day was popularized in 1910, but it was not until 1972 that it achieved status as a national celebration.

Super Solomon

The king of the fathers had to be Solomon. He had 700 wives and 300 concubines, with the inevitable offspring. The Bible doesn't say how many, says Sally Hopkins of Hallmark. On the king's heels was Emperor Maulai Ismail of Morocco, who reversed Solomon's statistics with about 300 wives and 700 concubines. He died in 1727 at the age of 81, leaving 548 sons and 340 daughters.

Q. "WHY ARE THE YEARS IN THE 1900's CALLED THE 20th CENTURY?"

A. IF WE SEEM TO BE A CENTURY AHEAD OF OUR CALENDAR, IT IS BECAUSE WE FORGET THAT THE 2ND CENTURY BEGINS WITH THE YEAR 101.

© 1977 by NEA, Inc., T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. DICK ROGERS

We seem to be a century ahead of our calendar by calling the years in the 1900s the 20th century, instead of the 19th century. A century is a period of 100 years, and the first century A.D. was between Christ's birth and 100 A.D.

It is the second century, the years from A.D. 101 through 200, that seems to put us a century ahead of our time. For in the year 201 A.D. we had entered into the 3rd century.

By continuing to count in this manner, we find that the present century — the years between 1901 and 2000 — is indeed the 20th century.

The 21st century will begin in the year 2001 A.D.

The years before the birth of Christ are marked B.C., which means "before Christ." The years after Christ's birth are A.D., or Anno Domini, meaning "in the year of Our Lord."

All years after the birth of Christ are called the Christian Era.
